RHODES SUCCESSFUL IN HIS REQUEST.

SECURES THE AMOUNT FOR THE RHODESIAN RAILWAYS.

The Americans are Alive to Trade Chanc and are Welcomed to South Africa.

London, May 6 .- The personality of Mr. Decil Rhodes has been a towering figure this week. His welcom at the meetings of the Chartered British South Africa Company at the Osmnon streets hotel on Tuesdays was one of blind anthusinsm. Mr. Rhodes carried his audience away with his breezy optimism, which served as a conting for the unpleasant fact that the negotiations with the Government for aid for his Cape to Chiro railway had failed, and that the company, needed naother $15,000,-000. The audience among whom were a number, of fashionable ladies, cheered him wildly. At the conclusion of his speech Mr. Rhoden was obliged to address an overflow meetings outaide the hall, Such an enormous crowd surrounded thim, enthusiasically cheering him, that policemen were required to comport him back to the offices of the Chartered Company. The after offect of Mr. Rhodes speech was less favorable, however, and, the shares of the British Bouth Africa suffered a decline. Mr. Rhodes reference to the Carnegie company's tender of railway iron for the Rhodesian road and his explanation of its rejection has attracted considerable attention.

attention.

RHODES INTERVIEWED.

The correspondent of the Associated Press interviewed Mr. Rhodes upon that subject, Mr. Rhodes maid,—"My policy has been to support home industies wherever it can be done, from a business point of view, but there is no need for Americans & be idiscouraged. We positively will go into open markets in the future. I. personally, believe the open market to be the best in every interest. I can seed no reason why the American into said steel industry should not watch us even more closely than in the past, for Rhodesia is going forwithout Government, support, and we want to attract enterprising Anglo-fixons and let them see the enormous stops before them. The Government's caution in supporting us is no new thing. Take Madagassar, for example. No man' has dused more, for that island whan' General Gallient, and yet even now he is obliged to go upon his loness end uspplicate the French Governjment to follow even out insited example, and open up the country. The German Emperor, who see in an of imments, intelligence, sees clearly the ustimate value of present support in ismilar cases.

I believe that Americans are quicker to see business possibilities than the average Englishman, who is cautious, conservative, and insular as a tule, but once the Briton sees clearly, then no amount of capital is enough to sink. Yuo cast my that Americans are as welcome in Rhodesis as brothers. Three years will see us on the creat of an enformous wave for prosperity.

Regrerding the opening up of the Philipoints Mr. Rhodess said, ..." If my RHODES INTERVIEWED.

the creat of an entrimous wave for prosperity.

Regarding the opening up of the Philippines, Mr. Rhodes said,—"If my observation is correct, the Americans will be quick to see the great uposition in that direction and will not stand waiting," but will rush with capital to devige up the industries of the islands. It is impossible to believe that the American Government, with such facts and associalities beyond a shedow of a doubt, with histiates a momentual that the British Governments that down regarding Rhodesis.

Mr. Rhodesis.

Mr. Rhodesis that the interview by the statement that teh whole of the $15,000,000 needed for railways in Rhodesis has already been assured.

THE DUKE REINSTATED.

London, May 6.—An interesting event in connection with the Russian Easter fastival was the Caur's reinstatement of the Grand Duke Michael Michael voitch as utaff caprain inf the Causses rifles. The Grands Duke fell into disgrace with the late Caar, Alexander III., owing to his morganistic marriage in 1891 with the beautiful Countess Vom Merenberg, granddaughter of teh celebrated author Pushkiov. The Caar deprived him of all military honors and entited him. His present appointment means early and rapid promotion. THE DUKE REINSTATED.

Young Charley Tupper is back at Ottawa again and the members are looking at him as if he were some sort of political Guy Fawken bent on blowing up the whole blooming government.

Victory or defeat in the Philippine four is said to be largely a question of shows. The burefooted and lightly-clothed patites of warm regions have much less work to do, in marching a given destance, than that which white soldiers or laborers perform in seping up with them. The difference in weight of clothing and equipment is aufficient to be a serious handicap to the civilized races, however strong and recolute they may be. In a march of ten miles a civilized white er lifts at least ten tons more weight in the angle item of shoes and sorks than a parefected Filipino. The difference is seen to be no slight matter. Imagine adding to the necessary labor of walking ten miles the lifting of ten tons with the feet, a pound at a time, for 20,000 steps. It a difference quite enough to reinforce the effects of the climate poworfully, especially when the handicap for the civilized soldiers is still great-

THE 1899 E & D. hasn't a score of useless experimental changes, but what changes it has are improvements. A careful examination of its construction will convince you of its superiority. The test of previous seasons has proven that only the best material is used, and in its matchless construction, finish and general make-up it thoroughly deserves the title of "ARTISTIC." Fork heads, swivels, cranks, hangers, hubs, seat posts and seat masts in the 1899 models are drop forged steel. Positively no castings or stampings used.

The following taken from the Tro-onto Telegram, speaks for itself, Mr. Totten, is head of head of the license

"A Cheerful Look Makes a Dish a Feast."

"Cheerful looks" depend just as much upon physical well-being as upon natural disposition and temperament. If the blood is disordered, the brain is staroed, and no "dish is a feast," for the reason that the vitalising elements do not reach the proper spot.

A step in the right direction is to purify the body by the use of a astural remedy. Hood's Sarsaparilla is Nature's remedy. It acts upon the blood, and whether the seat of the disorder is brain, stomach, liver or kidneys, the purifying process of this medicine is equally sure and successful.

It never disappoints.

Creat Businer—"Have used Hood's Saraparilla for indigestion, constipation and finds it builds up the whole system and gives relief in cases of catarrh." WILLIAM E. WELDOW, MONCOON, N. P.

Bad Cough -- My sister was troubled with a cough which caused pain in her left side. She was confined to her bed. We gave her Hood's Sarsaparilla and in a few weeks she was able to sit up in bed, her appetite improved and the cough and accompanying pain disappeared." LELY WALKER, department of the Government, and what he mays goes.

"There esems to be a general misapprehension regarding the issuing of permits and discenses by the Boards of License Commissionera. In Toronto it has put a number of hotelmer to considerable trouble. The License Viotuallers' Association have written to the Government saking the difference and what a permit amounts to, and an explanation has been made. Pleasing for six months are issued upon payment of $225, while $450 is required fro a license. Many have thought that at the end of the six months the Board might have the right to cort the holders of permits off, but bitis is a mistake, said Mr. Herry Totten, of the Provincial License branch, to-day," The parmits are just as good as the license legally, and whets the air months are up and the hotelman pays his second $225 he will be given his license."

This means that the Bodegs on Hun-Hunter street can not be closed at the expiration of the three months, for which Mr. Armstrong has a permit.

TO VIEW THE YACHT RACE.

floadon May 8.—There are signal of awakening enthusiasm on this side of the Atlantic negarding the forthcoming America-s Cup races. The owners of a number of steam, yachts on the Clydehave intimated their intention to attend, and there is certain to be the largest muster of British yachts ever witnessed at any contest. A striking proof of the interest that is exciting all cleases in the fact that a squad of workinghr at the Greenock shippard have opened in fusid, toward which they will subscrib weekly instalments until the end of September, to pay the expenses of a trup across the ocean to see the races.

THE COUNCIL PASSES

AMERICANS BOMBARD GUAGUA TO COUNTERACT THE TOWN TRUST COMMISSIONERS.

The action of the Town Trust Commissioners in arranging for the leas-ing of pertain property in the South part of the town, foir stock yards, was the chief topsc, at a special meeting of the flown Council held aslt evening in the Clerk's office.

The Council has all along actuated by the sentiment of the proble residing in this locality, opposed the measure. Last night's meeting showed that they have not yet changed their views.

they have not yet changed their views, but on the contrary are determined to carry the day in the matter. The following re-olution was passed:

Moved by Alderman Best and seconded by Alderman McWilliams:

Whereas flus Council has learned that the Town Trust Commissioners pro; o.e leasing parts of lots 10 and 11 North Perry, west George, and 10 and 11 Townsend west George, to Mr. H. P. Kennedy, and that Mr. Kennedy pro, o.es to use the said lands for stock yards.

And whereas this Council has received a largely signed petition from ratepayers is the South end of the town, protesting stock yards being located in that locality, and stating that they would hold the town responsible for any damages caused to their property and this Council had declined to senction the use of the said land for that purjose after a thorough investigation including visits paid to the Council stock yards.

And whereas the Frenchent of the vestigation including visits paid to the fromoto stock yards.

And whereas the President of the Stanley Piano Company, which was about to erect a large factory on the south portion of the said land, states positively that the company will not erect their factory if the stock yards are leveled there.

erect their factory if the stock yards are located there.

Be it therefore recoived—that the Council request the Town Trust Commissioners not to permit the said lands to be used for cattle yards, and thereby support to past action of the Council.

Mr. McWilliams Appointed.

Alderman McWilliams introduce the Free Library question, to inting out the necessity of appointing a representative to the committee having the matter in charge. Without any discussion whatever, Mr. McWilliams was appointed.

Salary or Fees?

The matter of appointing the Town Solictor by malary or on the fee system, was another prominent issue. The matter occupied considerable time in discussion. The conclusion was thist it be referred to the Committee of the Whole Council, and that the Town Clerk be instructed to communicate with other towns and cities of about the same po; ulation as Peterborough, with the view of ascertaining the most po; ular and satisfactory way of making the appointment.

NO HAILROAD FOR CRUIL RESOURS.

The project of Cecil Rhodes to build a railway on a meridian from the Cape of Good Hope to Cairo received its solar plexus blow when the German Emperor turned the promoter down. Up till that me had a color of financial sibility. Had Germany given it counace the British Government would have been forced to give it a guarantee and English capital would have doubtless flowed into support the stupendous undertaking.

But all that is changed now. The Kaiser did not see his way and Lord Salisbury did not have to adopt a course contrary to his own expressed opinion upon the prematurity of the work so boldly proposed by Sir Cecil. As a matter of fact the project under any conditions into which the African continent may enter within the next twenty-five years is an abourdity. It was used as an illustrative argument in its support that Russia was constructing a line of greater length cross a less productive country, and that if she could find her account in the trans-Siberian line England could certainly at hers in Africa. The parallel was ill-chosen. The Trans-Siberian Railway connects the whole population of the East, over 300,000,000, with that of Europe, 200,000,000 greater. The proposed Cape Colony and Cairo road connects no large tions. It must, if ever built at all, support and that which it creates in a vast territ by and inhospitable climate by slow produces of colonization. The experience of the Uganda Railroad, that reaches from the sea to the lakes in the interior, was a reason in African railroad construction for Great Britain which its government has predited by, and Sir Cecil in making his appeal to the investors of London on Tuesday, made the effort of Electricity has been practically applied on a farm pear St. Johnsville, N. Y. There are two falls on the land, and one of 60 feet is used to generate a current of 270 horse-power. Wires run from the power house to the dwelling, barn and other buildings, giving all the light, heat and motor energy desired. Separate motors operate a hay-cutter, threshing machine and circular saw. The cooking is done by electricity, and dairy operations performed by the same means. At night the arc light illuminates the premises around the house. A fourth of the power is sold to two knitting factories in the neighborhood, and this nearly meets the running expenses. The cost of the plant was $50000, but this can be greatly cut down when electrical farm machinery is reduced.

cover a multitude of dangers and perius, and abould when fully comprehended be taken as serious warnings.

"Tired feelings" result from a vitiated and deranged condition of the blood and nerves, which causes a general weakness of the entire system. Constitution is usually one of the dominant troubles; digestive vigor is lacking appetite is poor and sleep is never refreshing.

It banish "Tired feelings" the blood must be cleansed and purfied, and the nerves toned and braced.

This foundation work is easily and quickly accomplished by using Paine's Celary Compound, the world's famous spring medicine. This noted remedy, purely vegetable, pleasant to the usets, is in every case just what is obsimed for it. It is the one spring medicine that our best physicans vouch for; it is the great health restorer and strength giver that the best people of Canada can talk about in the home and on the street.

A few bottless of Paine's Celery Compound during the month of May, will banish all the troubles that regularly contribute to "Tired feetings" and till health. If you are nervous, sleepless, have indigestion, dysapsis, neuralgia, heart trouble, kidney or liver affections, your doctor or druggist will of Paine's Celery Compound.

THE INDIANS MUST BE PUT DOWN.

U.S. AND CANADIAN GOVERN-MENTS SHOULD COMBINE.

The St. Regis Braves Still in a Warith Mood, and Their Numbers are Growing

Ottawn, May 6 .- The interest that a taken in the St. Regis Indian trouble now centers in the preliminary trial of the prisoners, Jake Fire, Louis Sunday, Louis Thomas and Davis, Inpector McCrea, of the Indian department, and Barrister Mitchell, of Huntington, will watch the case for the povernment. The Indians have as yet no legal adviser. As stated before, the interest exhibited by the Indians in the inquest has now been transferred to the Beauharnois trial. As a result great numbers of the American and Canadian Indians from the adjoining reservations, as well as the Indians from Cornwall Island, will proceed to Beauharnots to listened to the evidence produced against their imprisoned omrades. | The St. Regis Indians heard with mutterings of discontent, the news of the expneration and sequittal of Commissioner Sherwood, and the unfavor-able finding against their captive chiefs, which will surely follow on the trial, will stir them up still Sunday's arrest still creates dissatisfaction. Contrary to general opinion, the Indiana claim to hold no grudge against Col. Sherwood. They lay the whole blame on the government who authorized him to act.

The widow of the dead Indian, Ice. is of the opinion that the government

The widow of the dead Indian, Ice, is of the cyclanon that the government will grant her a pension in consideration of the loss of her husband.

As usual the American Indians step in here and urge the Canadian redakins to make the most unreasonable demands. Blany of the St. Regis Indians, such as Mitchell Jacobs, have traveled extensively with abows, and honce are more broad minded than their fellows. Without exception these are the ones who together with Cornwall Island Indians who deal extensively with the whites, support the government measure for the elective system. The Cornwall Island Indians are now without a chief for nearly a year, and hence will be ready for an election with the St. Regis braves.

The peopl eff Cornwall who knew Ice, the dead Indian, will state he was a demond, and one wholen the lacroses field, for instance, would somer fight than score agame. The commissioner's action is held as being justiable. To add to the disorganized state of affairs on St. Regis Island, it is "the clucation, including a knowledge of the tanguage and if the school is left without a projer teacher long it will prove injurious to the progress of the tribe. After all is said and done, it is admitted the American Indians are the ones to be dealth with rather than the Eanadians. If the American reservation was situated fifty miles inland the trouble on the Canadian side would be reduced to a minimum. Unadoubtedly the Indian departments at Catanon and Warshanster will have to servation was situated fifty miles iniand the trouble on the Canadian side would be reduced to a minimum. Undoubtedly the Indian departments at Ottawa and Washington will have to set in concert before peace can be finally restored on the Canadian side.
The Canadian officers claim they will arrest all agitators. Canadian end atmerican alike, if it is found necesmry. But the thing needed is as check placed on the American Indian by the American officers themselves!
Although he has been canacted with the Dominon police for twenty years in all kinds of trying positions!
Col. Sherwood has never had to twice

THE WORSHIP OF THE HEATHEN JU-JU

HOW LIEUT. : GREGG, FOURTH A BRITISH COMMANDANT FROM

Benin City, West Africa, has just arrived in England, after mine months' saidence in the "City of Blood." He has made aspecial study of the ju-ju or fetish prorable of the country, respecting which he has valuable information to give. (While engaged in road construction at Sapeli, Major Cockburn incurred the displeasure of the people at one village, who objected to the road. On the following day he found ju-ju of of slaughtered goats and chickens placed in various positions for the purone of bringing misfortune upon him and his work. To impress the natives, he used empty sods water bottles as "white man's ju-ju," and he always found them to be regarded with the rho would on no account remove them Major Cockburn experienced some dif of signposts by the natives. To prevent this be simply surrounded them with bottles, which he solumly declared to be ju-ju, after which they were never tampered with. Since the occupation of course not been carried on openly Every house still contains its sacrificial alter, and natives continue to amear the walls and doorposts with blood, which they now obtain from animals. At Idumo, the headquarter of Olegbosheri, human sacrifices continue, the wretched victims eut up, crucified, or subjected to other forms of torture. The expedition which is about to be sent against this chief will speedily end all that.

NATIVES IN TERROR. During the past year many peace-able inhabitants and friends of the Government have been smeriflood. Laos elephant hunters have become such alarmed in consequence of the hief's escrifices, and the enormous much alarmed in consequence of the chief's eacrifices, and the enormous toole he levies. Quite recently harmless rubber-treders had been horribly tortured and merificed. Over an area of thirty mites he has stopped all the rubber trade and territories the villiages. His followers include the secun of Benin and Lagos, and among these are a umber of the King of Benin's sodiciers, who never surrended but, who remain with him and defy the Government. Clogbosheri is very strong ly fortified, and our spies report that for one and a half to two miles round his stronghold traps, rifle pits, and to how the yards are to be equipped a deep ditch. For the part six months he has been strengthening his position by every means in his shower. Many of these facts were revealed during a reconnaisance mode by Captains Jackson and Henniker, and Mr. Granville, political officer. During this reconnaise ance a slight skifrmish occured, but at the time ft was hoped that peaceable measures would prevail with Ologobseri, and the force withdrew. Since then no British officer has been near his camp and native spies have been employed. A good road six yards wide the strange and native spies have been employed. A good road six yards wide the strange and the native spies have been employed. A good road six yards wide the strange and the native spies have been employed. A good road six yards wide the strange of the first hards and the first has a chance to regulate.

WANTED—MORE STEAMSHIPS.
London, May 9.—Reliable and convervative estimates would seem to show that unions some tresh transport lines spring up between now and the opening of the Paris Exposition, hardly half the Americans who wish to visit the fets will be shi ero find steamship accomodation. This is one answer to the statement, heard from time to time, that the people of the United Sings are taking little or no interest in the great French exhibition.

SAW A CANNIBAL FEAST.

London, May 9.—To have assisted in the capacity of unssen witnesses at a cannibal feast is a rare experience for white men. But it fell to the lot of Mr. M. P. Congrave, an Austrialian pioneer, and two other whita men from Queensland, in the savage interior of New Guinea.

Mr. Congrave, who has travelled extansively among the man-caters of New Guinea, once while hiding in the bush with his companions, saw two men and a lower man cut up and eaten. The whites not being in an entreuched position war epowerless to interfers. With the exception of a few places on the coust, said Mr. Congrave, the greater part of the island is given over to sannibalum. Frequently they were attacked by the man-entara, and had to use their wiembustars to keep them at bay.

NO PEACE SIGNS YET.

The strike straisten still Enchanged at Toronto, May 9.—There are no sign of piece in the strike situation. At a special meeting this morning the offer of the master builders to refer the trouble to Judge McHougali's ofwitration was communicated to the men with a request to take like action if they may fit. The matter was put to a vote and out of 250 present there was not a dissentient vote. They declared that the offer had come too late and the matter must be fought out.

A istter sus received from Thomas O'Dea, Grand Secretary of the International Union. In it he stated that trake was bouning in the Westering States, bricklayers were in demand, and wages no object in many places.

Afany of the men will take advantage of the situation out west and go.

The stonemasons sent a letter of sympathy and said they were still determined to light dot.

coting held last evening, at which all the members were present took up he bad water question. The consersus of opinion was that samples of th ewater should be forwarded to Toronto, for bacteriolgical examination and a recolution was pused to this effect. Medical Health Officer, Dr. Bingham, enlightened the Board as to the condition of the water, when he conducted an examination at the pumping station on Monday. He amerted that while boiling the water destroy every microbes, it might contain, and which precaution he has recommended, it would not relieve it of its unpleasant taste. Representatives of the Water Works Company were present, and explained that the water was polluted only by auriace water was partitled only by auriace water. The Board decided to await the result of the bactaridiscal test before taking further action in the matter.

Dear Times,-I omitted to tell you in my last that my mail will reach me if addressed to this place. To give my friends in Peterborough an idea of what it costs to live here, I will quote a few prices : Hay and Oats are 15 cents per pound; potatoes 25c; onions 15c; flour 3ec; bacon, 40c; corn and oatmeal, 25c; bread, 25c per loaf; eggs, $2 per doz.; whiskey

I am not encouraged with the outlook from returning miners. However, I will go on to the land of gold. For the benefit of the Times' readers I interviewed a number of men on their way eastward, and they are not in love with the country. One man told me that the last daily news papers Dawson had read up to the day he came away, were dated Sept, 3. He said that some one brought one or two Seattle newspapers of an Octoberissue to Dawson, but they were worn to tatters before he saw them. The two newspapers, the Midnight Sun and the Nugget, have kept people informed concern-ing the news of the camps on the creeks searest Dawson, and the all-absorbing topics there are how rich gravel So-and-So is getting from his hole in the ground on Such-and-Such creek, and whether the latest reports of rich strikes on some new watercourse are genuine.

The winter mail facilities by relays of mounted postmen, which both the United States and the Canadian Government promined the Klondikers last summer, failed before winter set in. At this same side door women who cared to, could be admitted at any time and secure what mail there of prompt attention that men who had their good will could send by them and secure mail promptly. The 10,000 poor miners, who knew no women and were wild to hear from home and to get remittances, had to wait so month before the mail was handed out at

A DOUTON EXPERIMENT.

An original and very interesting ex riment is now being made in Boston. It is a school for aursemaids. THE 1899 E & D. hasn't a score of useless experimental changes, but what changes it has are improvements. A careful examination of its construction will convince you of its superiority. The test of previous seasons has proven that only the best material is used, and in its matchless construction, finish and general make-up it thoroughly deserves the title of "ARTISTIC." Fork heads, swivels, cranks, hangers, hubs, seat posts and seat masts in the 1899 models are drop forged steel. Positively no castings or stampings used.

As you travel through southeastern Kansess about one hundred and twenty five miles south of Topeks and eighty-five miles south of Topeks and eighty-five miles east of Wichita, the brakeman sticks his head in the doorway and yells: "Yreeky!" and a couple of minutes later the train pulls into Horreka, the prosperous county seat of Gresnwood County.

One of the happy inhabitants of Eureka is Mrs. Sarah H. Taylor, and the reasons for her present happiness are set forth in the following letter addressed to Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician to the "Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute," of Buffalo, N. Y.

Mrs. Taylor says:

"I had been a safferer for fifteen years and in August 1956 was taken with severe cramping pain in my stomach. A hard lump about the biase of a goone egg formed in my right side. It became no sore round formed in my right side. It lecame no sore to support the suppose of the county of the suppose of Do the Yukon people look for another stampede there this year? No, but they predict a good travel to the Kiondike of well-to-do men and miners of experience. The days of the poor tenderfoot, who-beare coming fast to a close in Dawson The output of Klondike gold for 1899 will be between $18,000.000 and $20,000,000. I believe from what the returning Klondikers tell me, it will be nearer the latter than the former figure. The Alaska Commercial Company's representatives in Atlin firmly predict that the output will be over $25,000,000. What of the future of the Klondike? It is going to be a permanent and a rich gold field. I don't believe that there is a practical miner there who does not now believe this. The lasting qualities of the placers, the widening of the field of operations, all show that the discovery of the mother lode or the original golden ledges is near at hand or may be already found. Some astute

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a medicine that cures on rational, scientific principles. It is the discovery of a regularly graduated, practicing physician of high standing. It tones up the stomach, stimulates the liver and regulates the bowela. It brings all the digestive organs into healthy activity. It neutralizes and eradieates all poisonous, effete matter in the blood and fills it with the rich, vital, red dorpuscles of bealth and vigot.

The "Discovery" is a temperance medicine. It contains no alcohol in any form, the transportation rates will go down to less than 15 cents at once. The miners can get in the very latest machinery then at something like reasonable prices. The mines may then be hydraulicked and no longer worked by hand. The days of monopoly in business will be ended in the Klondike and the inhabitants thereof will be in pretty close touch always with the outside world.

So I maintain that the future of the new gold fields up in the frozen north is very promising. I will now conclude by ending my regards to all the old boys in Peterborough, including the brainy Editor of the Times, Geo. Hatton, Bob McKee, Sam Ray, W. D. Parker, Bob Kidd, Bob Stewart, Ed. Cox, Jack Armstrong, E. B. Stone, Billy Lech and

He says he would give half his winter earnings to have Mr. Snowden out in the Kloudike for a few days to show him a few things.

Be sure and send the Times regularly to me addressed to Atlia. I expect to work up quite a circulation for this g. f. j. in the Artice Circle.

Who are Willing to Pay When Convinced of Cure.

SCIENTIFIC combined medical and mechanical cure has been discovered for "Weakness of Men." Its successhas been so startling that the proprietors now announce that they will send it on trial—remedies and appliance—without advance payment—to any honest man. If not all that is claimed—all you wish—send it back—that ends it—pay nothing.

This combined treatment erectes health, strength, vitality, sustaining powers, and restores weak and undeveloped portions to natural functions.

There is no C. O. D. extortion, no deception of any nature in this offer.

If you are interested and in earnest write your name and address in the blank form below, cut out the coupon and mail it to Eric Medical Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

GOLF.

The much talked of match between the Banks of Toronto and Commerce, took place on the Aburn links yester-day afternoon. It was a royal battle. Both sidas were confident, but as in all competitions one had to take a back seat; that one was the 'Bank of Toronto.'

a fack seat; that one was the fack seat; that one was the fack seat; that one was the fact of Toronto.

The day was charming, and the links with their gramy alopes and breesy hilltope never looked better. From beginning to end, every inch of the ground was stubbornly contested; the sance that it is a fact of the ground was stubbornly contested; the bankers, for the glanus they played, forgetting the erres and worries of counting house. The play on the whole was of a kind class, the driving at times being of wonderful distance, and accuracy of ju/gment. The glame was a victory for the Bank of Commerce; the score being as follows:

Mr. Francts won by 1 hole from Mr. Campbell.

Campbell. t R. C. McEnrie by S from A. Smith, who plays a strong game, A. S. Houston by 6 from E. W. Lam-

J. H. Carter by 1 from C. Pousette.
The frame was rather one-sided, the Commerce men playing without any noticable effort. It is understood that the winners in this competition will play the lawyers, four of their star players to be trawn from the Town bar. The play in pesterdays match was up in every way, to North Berwick form.

The Board of Trade held a regular meeting fast evening; the majority of the members being in attendance. The business transacted, aside from the election of the Council, was purely routine, and very little discussion descripted.

tine, and very little discussion devestoped.

A communication was read from the Stearns Bicycle Company, Toronto, replying to a letter received froin the Secretary regarding locating here. As the letter was not definite enough, no action was taken on it.

The manufacturers of Sunlight Forp wrote stating that I twas sliogether

THE STOCK YARDS.

Refitir of Times.

Dear Sir: Since I first laid the scheme of the estiminament of a cattle market before the present Council, there have been a great many statements put in print for and against the idea, and noid! I wish to clear myself before the public of any intention of either injuring the projective of any person or of carrying on a business that would be a nuisance to say one. I have always been anxious to increase my own business as well as to help and encourage any industry which welld be beneficial to the community in which I am highest and as a citizen, I would be conly toughed to encourage any manufacturing establishment or industry & any kind that would increase the circulation of money in our community and prove advantageous to the town and country.

The matter of seturing a site for a public live-stock market has be en been up to the present time one differently but ached. I have leaned the Editor of Times.

The matter of seburing a site for a public live-stock market has been to been up to the present time one difficulty, but now I have leased the property between the GATR and C.P. R. cattle yards, knowing that with the facultites that can be secured to this lot I can handle my business to a greater advantage; and to show that I am confident that the business which I may carry on on this property will not become anusance. I have signed the lease making myself subject to removal at any time on three months' noffice by the commissioners. And as flayer pained free to him by our Connett, on the ground that I have secured the balance of the property granted free to him by our Connett, on the ground that I have secured the balance of the property granted free to him by our Connett, on the ground that I have secured the balance of the property at a rental of $100, a year and laxes I have decided to submit the following offer to the Council.

As soon as the Stanley Piano Company have arected their buildings and are ready for operation, according to the resolution passed by the Council, I agree to withdraw from maid property end cancel my lease; provided Tagree to withdraw from mild pro-perty and cancel my lease; provided that it is then the wish of the Eana-ley Plano Company, this I she so, and provided that our Town Council have in the meantime arranged for a lot in any other part of the town, with equal faculities for the carrying on of my hostmess.

BRANCHES OF THE GRAIN TRADE WAGE WAR AT OTTAWA.

Ottawa, May 10.-The committee apointed to consider Dr. Douglas' elevabill, entitled "An act to regulate the grain trade in Manstoba and the Northwest." met to-day. Mr. Bain president. There were present Hon-Mosars. Sifton and Fisher and other members of the committee. Mrt Saughnessy and Judge Clarke WATE present for the Canadian Pacific, and at large deputation was in attendance from Winnipeg and the district repre-senting the elevator men. C. McGos and Mr. Burn, of the Ottawa Bank, were also in attendance.

Canadian Pacific had granted may year the privilege of loading direct on cars, and the result was that no friction took place and the producer got the tenefit. This benefit was however, confined to people living five or ax miles on each side of the railway but if a system of flat warehouses were ebuilt the privilege could be extended 200 miles. What was really wanted by the ebill was freedom in trade and no restriction. In twas ensential that no one should interfere between the farmer and the merchant. Farmers were opposed to being compelled to use the elevator. He cites cases where it was refused to handle wheat except at the elevatora. He did not blame the Canadian Pacific Railway for this, as it had already been explained by the company. Dr. Douglas read a resolution passed at the hast meeting of the Northwest Assembly in favor of shipping grain to cars. That was whated by the bill, said Dr. Douglas. The douter next read from a speech made by Mr. Connell, M.P. P. for the Souris district in the

The Elevator Man.

If the Elevator Man.

If the Elevator Man.

If the Elevator Man.

If the Elevator people, He represented the Dominion Elevator Company. Mr. Roblin said that the reasons they saked a month's delay was owing its the opening of navigation and the large amount of wheat in the elevators which was waiting shipment, and which could not be sent out until they returned. On his sent out until they returned. On his sent out until they returned. On his sent out until they returned to his sent out until the preturned on his sent out until the $5,000. passed by Winnipeg Board of Trace in opesition to the bill. These resolitations pointed out that about $250, $700 was put in elevators, and the bill before the committee would make the elevator unprofitable and finally destroy business. The obill, it was said, was based on a missapprehension of the elevator business and would interfere with most prosperous industries.

Ben effeted in a Small Way.

Dr. Douglas was then heard. He gave a brief history of the proposed legislation on the elevator subject. In this connection he said that the Canadian Pacific had granted last year the privilege of leading direct on cars, and the result was that not friction took place and the producer got the fencit. This benefit was however, confined to people living five or ax miles on each side of the rail-

Mr. Robins showed that certain dockage was made for cleaning.

Mr. Oliver—That is not what was wanted.

Elevatora Not Paying.

Mr. Roblin said that he knew nothing about $3 dokkage, and if any one did to it was a fitrilight steal. He proceeded to show that there was no combane in the business, and that the elevators had lost money. Coming to another point in Dr. Douglas' speech, which said that not ten percent, of the scheht was delivered this year at Moosomin, Mr. Robin abowed that 183,000 bushels of wheat had been delivered in comparison with 183,000 the year previous. In Douglas explained that farmers had told him to on the way down.

St. Catharines, Ont., May 10.—M. J. Cahill, a former reporter for the ext. Catharines Journal, and a prominent man around this place, was arrested this morning at Merriton, at the instigation of Detective Flynn, who has been her for the past few days, so king on the West Eigin electron trail. He was brought to M. Catharines by afternoon train. The charges against Cahill are serious ones. It is expected other arrests will be made, and some interesting developments are promised.

DESTRUCTIVE CYCLONE.

Wichita, Kan. May 16.—A cyclone struck Coldwater, Kansas, last night, completely destroying 12 houses and killing Joseph Bowers, a promisent cattleman. Aldrich's general store was wrecked, and a brick block in Main street blown down. The Presbytarian church was blown away and the courthouse unrouted.

IN EUROPEAN CAPITALS.

GREAT BRITAIN'S COAL SUPPLY WILL DECLINE IN FIFTY YEARS.

London, May 10,-At the Society of sident of the Mining Association of Great Britain, delivered a lecture on he available sources of the coal supply of future pro-perity of the country. b Hould the best of the coak sources, at a moderate depth of 2,000 feet and of the best quality, cheaply worked, would last about fifty years, but there would still remain unexhaus ted the best seams at great depth and eams at shallow depths sufficient to maintain a supply of coul of 250 mil-

MANUFACTURERS IN DANGER. Unless some measurers were taken to ounteract the increased cost due to lepth and the fact of shallow and cheap coal being available in other countries the probability was that our manufac turing industries would gradually be diverted to those countries heaper fuel could be obtained. In discussing the resources of America, China, Russia, Germany, and Belgium, Mr. Brown pointed out how the developments of the first three countries would probably affect the future Great Britkin with regard to fuel, and what the conditions of Germany and Belgium would be as coal-producing countries after fifty years thereabouts. f

SOLUTION PROPOSED.

The statesmanlike course to meet the ncreased cost of coal due to natural so forth, would be for the Government to acquire the internal means of comats, and pay off all the municipal loans for water, fighting, amitation, and other publis purposes; thus providing for a continuation of the prosperity of the country till the coal was absolutely exhausted. If some action was not we should begin to feel the pressure of circumstances and gradually dissapeal circummances and gradually dissapear as a weakthy nation soon after fifty years. It was extremely improbable that any other course of power would be discovered as cheap as coil, but if it were it would be common to other countries, and in those circumstances it would be greatly to the advantage of Great Britain to have paid off the capital during the prosperous period.

MISSING LETTER COMPETITIONS

ANOTHER BURIAL SCANDAL.

London, May 10.—An extraordinary new in the situation as regards the striking bricklayers to-day, excepting that letters have been received by the striking bricklayers to-day, excepting that letters have been received by relative of Mrs. Hannih Wilson, who resided outside the parish, desired that her remains should be interred by those of her husband. The vicar assented, but finding the old lady had wished the service to be conducted by a Nonconformst minister, withdrew his consent, refusing to permit the interment united for the settlet he matter by arbitration of the function has yet been taken.

MISSING LETTER COMPETITIONS. London, May, 10.—At the North London Pouse tourt Gabriel Wolff, elgmund Wolff and Adolph Wolff were further remanded at increased bail on the charge of compring together to obtain versous sums of money by means of the "mussing letter" competitions. It was stated that defendants, in advertising certain articles, offered prizes for the competitions, and that postal orders amounting to $64,000 were sent them between Feb., 1896, and April, 1890.

Guthris, O.T., May 10.—The freight trains and a passenger train on the Atchison. Topeka and Santa Fe road were stopped by Sheriff Newbick and an armed force of deputies at Norman yesterday and chained to the track. The engine was blocked and chained, and traffic stopped. All this property was twised on to collect $7,000 taxes owed by the railrosd company for 1808. The company tendered the county treasurer all the taxes less a mill levy for schools which was in dispute, and the company now has a suit in the court enjoining collection.

DESTRUCTIVE

WENEZUELA'S ARRITRATION.

Paria, May 10.—The British-Venezuela arbitration, which was to begin at Paria on the 24th of this month, has been post; comed until June 15. An inference has been drawn from this post; one month Russian juriet, is one of the Russian delegates to the Car's congress and also one of the arbitratura on the British-Venezuela suit is hardly expected Mr. Maertens would leave the congress while it was in dispute, and the company now has a suit in the court enjoining collection.

DESTRUCTIVE

Glasgow, May 10.—Representatives of the chief iron manufacturing houses of footland deny that a scheme has been aubmitted to them by the American syndic headed by Mr. Andrew Car-negis to ab orb the iron and steel in-terests of Great Britain. The gentle-men quoted declare that florely houses will never the themselves up with Am-retean monopolists.

intrance Gained to T. Agar's Store and the Safe Brillod.

Lucknow, Ont., May 10.—The store of T. Agar, grover or this piace, was visited by burglars last night. They obtained entrance by breaking the lock on the front door with a jimmy. A hole half an inch deep near the dial of the safe shows that they were making good progress with a diamond drill when they were disturbed at their work by hearing a movement in the room above, occupied as a dwelling-house. The tools used, with the exception of the drill, were left in the store. These had been taken from Northcott's blacksmith shop. MUMAN PACKFIC STOCK.

It must be gratifying alike to the management of Canada's greatest railway and to the people of the Dominios to note the enormous rise which has taken place in C. P. R. stock. It shows that the great railway is prospering, and that both it and the country through which it passes have gained the confidence of the moneyed classes. The monthly returns of traffic fully justify the advance. The development of the tributary territory now in progress and its vast capabilites show that the increased business is not merely a temporary spurt, but is due to influences the result of which which will be permanent. During the last year siness all over Canada has been improving until at present times are about as prosperous as they have been for a long period. This favorable condition is not confined to the Dominion, but is shared by this country in common with most parts of the world It is sufficient to give buoyancy to all transportation securities. Whether the expanding trade "lif the Orient and the certainty that a very large share of it will be handled by the great Cana fian railway have anything direct'y to do with the growing favor of the company's stock with investors can only be surroused, but if they have it is not without good reason, for this item of business is destined to play a great part in the surre of the Canadian Pacific. One would suppose that all patriotic people grould hail with satisfaction the improved value of an enterprise so closely identified with the history and the future of Canada as the Canadian Pacific is. But not so. As a contemporary forcibly puts it, there are some partitans so fearful that some credit may attach to the party in power by reason of the rise in this stock, that they hasten into print to attribute it to the recognition by European capitalists of what they call the tramend ous magnitude and prominent character of the alleged monopoly of the company. To such people nothing appeals except it be calculated to discredit their political opponents. So eager are they to accomplish this that they forgut how intimately their own party has been identified with the Consider transcontinued line. The construction of this railway used to be segarded, and properly so, as one of the triumphs of the Conservative regime.

Events are proving the foresight of Sir

John Macdonald and his colleagues in pledging the country to the building of this line and are showing how mistaken, doubtless honestly mistaken, their oppon ents were. It has come about that the full fruition of the anticipations of the Conservative leaders of those days is being realized when the Liberals are in power, and at once their goes up a cry from the partizan press, or a portion of it, this presperity is due to the sacrific of the country's interest by the Liberal government, which in point of fact has about as much to do with the growing prosperity of the country and the rise in Canadian Pacific stock as it has to do with the rise and fall of the tides. We deprecate as strongly as we know how this manner of treating the greatest interests of the people. It is almost enough to sicken one altogether of party politics. The advance in Canadian Pacific stock is one of the most encouraging and satisfactory things that has recently occurred. It is based upon the prosperity of the whole country, and shows how inseparably interwoven is the future of Canada and this wisely managed institution.

MR. MARTY'S ANSWER SS RIGHT.

It is encouraging to note that Hon. Mr. Harry declines to be bluffed or coerced into retiring from the Cabinet by a deputation of half a dozen young men wh do not seem to have been delegated by any one but themselves. A member of the Government is a colleague of the Premier and advisor of the Crown, not the creature of a clique of aspiring young politicians, and it is to be regretted that Mr. Harty did not rebuke the deputation as severely as his leader might have done. It would never do to allow the example set by the deputation to be encouraged

Last week in a western Ontario towa an exploding firecracker caused a runaway in which a woman was seriously injured, and in Toronto yesterday a similar incident occurred, though fortunately the injuries and damages were confine to a horse and a street car. But in each case the incident was sufficiently serious to point to the possibility of loss of life, and also to suggest the advisability of the total prohibition of the manufacture and sale of firecrackers, which, however entertaining, are a public nuisance and a constant menace to property. The law which forbids their discharge in the streets might well be extended to prohibit

"She will esimit me, I don't doubt," may Sir Fenthony, calmly. "I am Sir Fenthony Staffend." On, indeed Sir Fenthony, I beg your pardon. Of course, Sir Penthony, if you wish to wait.—"
Here Sir Fenthony, whe has slowly been mounting the staics at all this time, with Chawles, much exercised in his mand, at his heels—for Coul's communic are not to be disputed, and the situation is a good one, and ene has displaced, and the rice wed-sir Panthopy paumes on be received—six timethony pauses on the landing and lays his hand on the buodoir door.

"That will do," atera.y. "Go! I dare any," thinks braiford, angerly, as the drawing-room, door is closed on him, "if I make a point of it, she will dismiss that fellow. Insocent and noisy as a perrot. A well-bred footman never gets beyond "Yes" or "No," under heavy pressure. But what appointment, can she have? And who is secreted in her round? Pahpw! Her draw-maker, no doubt."

But for all that, he can't reconcile himself to the areas-maker theory, drass-maker, no doubt."

But for all that, he can't reconcils himself to the drass-maker theory, and, but that hunor forbids, would have marched atraight, without any warning, into "my lang's chamber."

Getting inside the heavy hanging curtains, he employs his time watching inrough the window the peoplaynasing to and fro, all intend upon the great business of life, the making and apanting of maley after a little while the carriage steps beneath him, and he sees Occil adight from it an dgo with eagar hasts up the steps. He hears has onter, rum up the starra pause upon the linding, and then, going into the bounder, close the door carefully behind her.

He stilles an angry exclamation, and resolves with all the airs of a Spartan, to be calm. Nevertheless, he is not caim, and quite doubties the amount of minutes that really elapse before the drawing-room door is thrown open and Cecil, tottowed by Luttrell, comes in.

"Luttrall, of all man!" thinks Sir

There heads are very mear together, as near as they can be without kinsing. She has placed her hand upon his arm, and is speaking in a low, earnest tone, so low that Stafferd can not hear distinctly, the room being lengthy and the noise from the street confusing. How handsome Luttrell is looking! With what undinguised eagerness he is drinking in every word! Suddenly with a little movement, as though of sudden remembrance, Cecil puts her hand in her pocket and draws from it a ting note, which she squeezes with much empressement into Tedcastle a hand. It now supears that matters are developing late shape, and the early summer will see one or two automobiles schaning over the six miles between this town and its beautiful subjurb, Chemong. A company is being formed, to purchase and operate carriages for th route. Amongst those who are interested in the venture are Blessens. Alex Elifet. E Brown, Geo. H Brown, (proprietor of Chemong Park Hotelik. Frir, T. H. Hamilton, J. W. Hatton, R. E. Wood, and R. H. Leary.

The company expect to have one carriage on in Juns, and a second a few weeks fatar. It is intended to put on athers as fast as circumstances wartant doing so.

The account of a prayer offered by Wang Cheng Sul on the occasion of the visit of two Americans who were on a tour around the world on bioyoles. After the Mayritsh had ridden to the mission etation Wang prayed:

"We thank thee, our Heavenly Father, that our even have this day seen the real pattern of the 'self-going cart' of the ancients. What myserious windom is Thine! How willing Thom art to impart throwledge to men! But our sine hinder Thy revelations! How stupid have we become through serving fatan so long! Many years have we lived, and yet to-day for the first time have we seen thin marvel of Thy skill, which has enabled Thy nervanting the West to understand. Fregive our sine. Restor us for Thy favor. Communicate to us, also, Thy mysteries, and let us share in the wooderful investions by which Thou does make thy name glorious amongst those who serve Thee. Let us he intrasted with Thy secrets, and possess the power of the ancients; so will all our countrymen count to know that we have found the right path, and are servants of the true God."

The missionary thinks it very likely that such a prever will provide a smile but he bidd as believe that Wang was in red-hot carnestness, and that he sirr ply fait that he had witnessed a mirnels and was giving God the giory.

AIM ON PERSIA.

BUSSIA DESIROUS OF UTILIZING IT BUT LACKS CAPITAL.

London, May 11.- In Persia abandoned o Russian aggressions is she lost to England are two questions which Mr. Ellis Ashley asks in the Daily Mail. continues: "The cold grip of Rus sia, the Colossus of the North, is upon thel and, and sweltering beneath the Indian sun, our empire-makers may turn with eager interest to where this new danger threatens. For Persia is most vulnerable point, now that the Suez Canal is held against any advancement of Russia further west. To strike at the Persian Gulf is to threaten our line of communicatio.m.

"The concession expires in the pre) ent year, and hitherto Russia has been hampered by want of capital, even had abe been desirous of building railways, the must now move, however, or this explains the recent developments. She is already arranging for a railway to Djulfa, the important frontier, tation on the northwest of Persia, situated only eighty miles distant from Mabris, the center of the rick Parian province of Azer-Baijan. Her plane quently are for a railway which will extend from Djulfa to Tabriz, and ance arrows the plains of Persia. ffers no engineering difficulties, to Kasvin, the agricut capital and Tehran. Theses the railway may extend to Ispahan and Shiraz, and with it the hole of Central Perma is at the mercy

"Depend upon it, if Russia is allowed to approach the Gulf or to extend her railway to Kerman in the routheast, who have a standing menace to our Empire more ecrous even than the uponding amant upon Herat. The key to India is to be found in the Parsian Gulf, and there was far more significance in the innocent demand Persian Gulf, and there was far more significance in the innoceat demand of France for a coaling station at Muscat than met the eye. Notody reegmizes that to strike now is to strike while our enemies are helplem, and that if we can allow Russia a mityalve in the Far East we can ill-afford to allow her to cut our lines of communication at the Gulf."

The dreaded angine whist the will no longer be used as hitherto. One large signal hok controlling access of trains to the station will be connected by telephone, with an auxiliary box for platform working. When a train is ready to depart the work will be done by telephone, so that the necessity for drivers to "whistle down the signal" will not a rise. By passengers and residents alike this latest use of the telephone will come as a welcome innovation; while as the level of the rails will be below the level of the Buckingham Palace road, the inhabitants of the neighborhood will suffer little if any inconvenience from the passage of the trains.

I' THE KING WON'T PAY. Paris, May II.—The latest scandal, and one that has set everyone to talking, is the refusal on the part of the King of Belgium to pay a certain dressmaker's till incurred by his daughter, the Princess Louise, wife of Prince Philip of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha Notwrither anding the elopement of the Prince Philip of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha Notwithstanding the elongement of the Princess with Lieut. Von Mattachich, she has many champions, who assert that she has been a most badly treated woman, and the declination of the King or her husband to pay her bill in this instance is considered outrages out. The bill in question is for $3,500.

A BURIAL TROUBLE.

London, May 11.—An extraordinary burfal scandal has aroused great indignation among the Nonconformists of Tockho'es Village, near Blackburn. The relatives of Mrs. Hannah Wilson, who resided outside the parish, desired that her remains abould be interred by those of her husband. The vicar assented, but finding the old lady had wished the service to be conducted by a Nonconformist minister, withdrew his consent, refusing to permit the interment uncleas he read the service. On the day of the funeral the mourners found the church gates locked, one churchwarden being outside prepared to resist, and the vicar and the other warden and the serton within. The vicar restanted his condition, and gave the mourners faree minutes to decide, and the relatives were compelled to yield. A BURIAL TROUBLE.

COMMISSIONERS APPOINTED TO DEAL WITH THE CASE.

Ottowa, May 11. - An Order-in Council has been passed appointing Major James Walker of Calgary and Mr. J. A. Cote, private secretary to the Deputy Minister of the Interior oners to deal with the Half breeds of the district of Athabasca and adjoining country.

The Government has decided that the Indian and Halfbreed rights abould, in the public interest, be extinguished at the same time, so as to preclude the possibility of such complications as have occured in the past in dealing with the Halfbreeds of the Territories. have occurred in the past in ceases; with the Haifbreeds of the Territories. It will be remembered that when the Haifbreeds's Commission issued in 1885, it only empowered the commissioners to insue scrip to those born prior to July 15, 1870, the date of the transfer to the Bud on Bay C. The Haifbreeds demurred to this, and have again and again pressed the claim that Haflbreeds born between July 15, 1870, and 1885 should receive the same treatment as those born prior to 1878, and the Territorial Legislature has on more than one occasion adopted and forwarded to the Government at Ottawa gesolutions in support of this claim. The basis of the claim is that while Indian and Haifbreed rights differ in degree, they are co-existent, and should be extinguished concurrently, and if the Government failed to so extinguish Haifbreed rights when any territory was ceded by the Indiana, they should be held to exist until such time as the Government took action for their extinguishment.

The money centers of Europe are said to be shaken up over the new internation al copper trust, and the London and Berlin financial papers are warning European investors to fight shy of the new enterprise, presumably because its chief promoters and chief properties are Ameri-

Some conception of the hold which the American trust bugaboo has taken in European financial circles may be gathered from the wild prophecies and solemn warnings that are being sent broadcast. It is claimed that the Rothschilds, who have a large holding in the Anaconda mines in this country, have a settled purpose of concerning the copper supply of the world. It is now seriously announced that Senator CLARK of Montana has interested the Rothschilds in the international copper trust and that soon the mining and financial world will be startled with the tidings that the copper supply of management. From this the Europe reason that the Rockefellers and the Rothschilds are about to be brought into corporation relationship which will over-shadow the biggest combinations ever conceived in the economic world.

The note of alarm by the Europe financiers has its parallel in the pretion of se .. e American economists that the time is peedily coming when the in dustrial and will be ruled by a single universal trust. These prophets point out that the endency of the great indestrial commentions to enter into still larger combinations, even though the individual industries are widely dissimilar, is unmis-talkable and the logical fruit of present conditions. They reason that the suc-cesses of the smaller combinations not maily in legitimate profits, but in oters' profits, have been so enormou

If we admit that the trust fever has pearly reached its climax, and that the power of combined industrial capital to destroyed individuality is industry is wellcomplete, there is still a stubborn econo mic fact that the alarmists seem to have overlooked. The entire trust fabric, so long as present overcapitalizing methods rule, is an inverted pyrmid that merely awaits an inevitable fall from its own awaits an inevitable fall from its own weight. Even were the pyramid to reach the prepertions prophesied the past his-tory of the industrial world furnishes con-clusive festimony that the trusts them-selves are the greatest breeders of op-pression, resulting in renewed individual competition. There may be defiance of economic laws for a season, and swar deeconomic laws for a season, and even de fiance of civil laws under the stupendou power of aggregated capital, but the reac-

The Change of Passe

The Change of Faces.

Every age has its own style of face and features, due possibly to the fashions of the day, which impress themselves even in the expressions of the human countenance. No one who studies modern portraiture can fall to note the recemblance that runs through the works of the fashionable painters. It is not merely their characteristic style, but the type which they have transferred to canvas and which they have transferred to canvas and which almost borders on mameness. These well born, carefully trained beauties of today areas much alike as peas in one pod. They only vary in degrees. Of course the artist 'idealises.'' He would not be an artist did he not find more in the face before his easel than the sitter sees when she gases in the mirror or her family and friends may detect in daily familiarity.

All the sumptones detail of costume also adds to the variety of a picture, but in poss, in expression, there is tracasile only this one woman of the end of the century, a creature of superb physique, slothed, or unclothed, like a royal princess. Compare her with the pictured woman of 100 or 200 years ago and see how altogether changed in this "oternal feminine." In 50 years' time there will he produced another "hearty," but one ventures to predict is will have as great sameness as the beauty which commands our admiration in the portrait exhibitions of the present day and which shows that fashionable painters are alayed to their subjects' will.—Boston Transcript.

"Wall, then, ma, I wish you would pray a little more and whip a little less."—Sa. Louis Post-Dispatch.

THE 1899 E & D. hasn't a score of useless experimental changes, but what changes it has are improvements. A careful examination of its construction will convince you of its superiority. The test of previous seasons has proven that only the best material is used, and in its matchless construction, finish and general make-up it thoroughly deserves the title of "ARTISTIC." Fork heads, swivels, cranks, hangers, hubs, seat posts and seat masts in the 1899 models are drop forged steel. Positively no castings or stampings used.

Vanity in Semaliland.

If you wish to make a Somali woman absolutely happy, you give her a looking glass. She will never before haveness one, but ferminine instinct will teach her how to use it. Mrs. Alan Gardner, on one of her big game shooting expeditions in Somaliland, gave a native woman a looking glass for a Christmas present. She was so delighted with the first clear sight of her dusky countemance that she sat through twe entire days and nights outside Mrs. Gardner's tent gasing with rapture at her own reflection.

On the moraing of the third day the fame of the looking glass had spread through the country, and a row of 40 Somali women, collected from far and near, was engaged in taking an admiring turn at the magic mirror. When Mrs. Gardner came on the scene, she was greeted by 40 feminine Somali volces joined in chorus and each begging for a looking glass "all to herself." But, alsa, for the limitations of a sporting outfit, the dusky belles were obliged to content themselves with the one communal mirror. And the woman with the looking glass remained for many weeks the most important person in Somaliland.—London Illustrated News.

Why He Liked Him.
The barber was perhaps a trifle more talkative than usual, and the customer was soarcely in a good humor. The portly gantleman had come straight from the dentist's. In blissful ignorance of data little fact the knight of the resor opened fire. He discussed the weather, foreign politics, the rival barber opposite, and was just explaining his views on the education question his views on the education question when the customer suddenly growled:

"Where's that assistant of yours, the one with the red hair?"

"Pity!" growled the portly gentleman. "I liked that young fellow. There was comething about his conversation I thoroughly enjoyed. He was one of the most sensible tailhers I over met, and "—

"You'll excuse me, sir, but there must be some mistake," gasped the astonished barber. "If you remember, soor Jim was denf and dumh."

"Just so. Just so," was the curt rejoinder. "That's why I liked him."

And the barber went on shaving —

Brutalities at Sea. In The Pall Mall Magazine W. Clark Russell-quotes the instructions given by the Earl of Lindsay in 1685 to his captains:

"The keynote is struck with the devotional spirit of the age. The chief is command is to take care that all the officers and companies of the ships worship God twice a day. Bwesring, drunkenness, robbery, sleeping on watch and the like were to be punished according to the order and custom of the sea. Funishments were brutally severe in those times. They marconed—that is, they set a man ashore alone on a describe occast or island and left him to starve, to be destroyed by savages or wild beasts.

"They keel hauled—that is, they dragged a man naked by yard arm whips under the bottom of a ship, and drew him up raw and bloody with the harsh wounding of barnacles and spikelike adherences, only to be submerged afresh ere the unhappy miscresht could fotch a full breath. They nailed a man to the mainmast by driving a knife through his hand. For murder (that was often manisaughter) they tied the living to the dead, back to back, and threw them overboard."

THE BASE-BALL CRANK.

It ought to interest a great many peo-ple besides base-ball cranks to know that when a ball "curves" through the air first one way and then another after leav-ing the pitcher's hand, it does what sci-entific men once declared was imposible.

"Some five or six years ago I had a bad cough and got so low with it that I could not sit up long at a time," writes Mrs. Mittee Gray, of New London, Union Co., Ark.
"We called our family physician, and he said my husband that I had consumption. All of our neighbors thought so too. I had pains through my chest and spit up blood. I commenced with your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and had only taken it two or three days when I felt like a different person. I took four bottles of the medicine and it curred my cough. I have not been bothered elsoe, until a short time ago I took cold and commenced to congin again; I got a bottle of the 'Discovery' and it relieved me at once. I think it is the best medicine in the world. It saved my life. I don't think any one would die of consumption if they would take Dr. Pierce's Ociden Medical Discovery. I recommend it to all my firends, and bell them what it did for me."

Ascension Bay.

Ascension Day was duly observed in St. Peter's Cathedral yesterday. Services exceedingly interesting and appropriate were conducted by the Yen. Archdescen Casey, assisted by the Rev. Father Scanlan. First communion was held at 0 a.m., for children when 164 were confurmed, of which 22 were girle and 72 boys, and of which 100 received the first communion. The little girle in their pure white contumes presented fairy like appearances. Survices were also held at Sciclock in the aftermose that were largely attended.

THE EARLY CLOSING.

Clorks Mave Beetded to Ask for Shorte Bours Buring the Bot Spott.

The clerks are agitating for shorter hours during the summer mouths. On Wednesday evening there was: a large gathering of the fraternity at the National Hetel, when the matter was preliminary discussed.

In sateblishing such a movement, the clerks do not intend to in any way dictate to their embloyers, or make any unreasonable demands. In the majority of towns and cities, early closing is in vague during the appreciately hot march and the purchasing public have become educated to the system. With such a system, business men have nothing to lose, and their clerks, are afforded an op-ortunity for rest and recreation. Peterburough should be no exception to the rule.

A Hugget from the Elondike

Lieut. J. D. Thornton, the well-known Omemee insurance agent, was in town to-day says the Lindsay Post, and exhibited a gold nugget sent him from Eldersdo Crosk, in the Yukon, by his neiphew, Gea. Kincaid who went to the Klondike from Rossiand about 18 moinths ago, and is prospering. He had hard luck last fall, having contracted malaria fever. He was ill just seven weeks, and had to pay our $1,000 in cash for nu-ing and medical attendence. Lieut, fiburation will have the nugget fasioned into a breast pla, and a very handsome one it will make.

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH

ANNUAL CONCERT

HELD LAST NIGHT A LONG-TO-BE-REMEMBERED SUCCESS.

leritorious Programme that was Moartilly Enjoyed by a Large Audience.

The annual concert in connection with St. Paul's church has long since magnied this enviable distinction of mented the enviable distinction of being the leading event of the year. Recognized as such it is always anticipated with probably extravagant expectations, but happily in this respect they have always been fully and most enclosely realised.

Another year has come and gone in the concert history of the church to be recalled by one of the most successful concerts yet held, which took place last night. This event was in every particular a long-to-be-remembered success. The best available talent participated in the programme, which was arranged with consummate skill and taste. The attendance in spite of the threatening condition of the weather was large and decidedly demonstrative in the appreciation of the programme. The occasion was a musical treat, every number being enraptured with the sefforts of Miss McMurty. In fact every number to the programme was meritorious and elleited hearty applause.

Those who had the management of the affair in hand are to be congraduated on the success that attended their efforts for it is a question if a better nertained, more satisfied audiance was ever seen in Peterborough. The following is the programme:

I. Corus—"Send out thy Light."

S. So'o—"Show me fifty Ways O.

84 Splo-"Ch Divine Redeemer." — Miss McMurtry. "Land of the Leal."—Mr. Gorrie (by

P.J. Anthem—"Trimgion and San

The baseballists of the Ontario Bank

The baseballists of the Ontario Bank demonstrated their superiority over a picked aggregation from the other banks of the town, in an easy fashion yesterday afternoon. Although the contest was decidedly onesided, the game was by no means featureless and the spectators were as enthusiastically interested as if it had been a national league struggle. The game was the formal opening of the baseball season, and the attendance despite the fact that the atmosphere was chilly, was large, and interest at all stages of the game was high.

Nistery was grasped by the Ontario in the first innings when they were credited with 14 runs, giving them a handicap that must have shattered the hopes of their opponents. Good ball however followed, the sides for successive Innings being retired in the one, two, three order. The twirling on both sides was efficient, as was also the hatting and hitting at spells. When the ainth innings had been played, the score was 25 to 12 in favor of the Ontario men, who were naturally jubliant over their victory. The following constituted the teams:

1b, M. Parker; 2b, A. Collins; 3b, V. Perguson; ss. N. Beil; rf, H. Rush of, C. Bell; if, D. Gladman. Battery—C. Bell and Hollingsbead.

ENGLISH CHURCHICEIGE.

Whatever may be the result of the action in the house of commons on the church discipline bill it is quite evident shat the Church of England is hopelessly divided against itself, and the result of such a situation is all but inevitable. We on his old friend in the name of the Lord. shall see either disestablishment or more probably, a great schism, which will place the ritualists, or high churchmen, in the attitude of nonconformists. The discipline bill which has been defeated only emphasizes the differences. As a matter of expediency it isprobably fortun-ate for the Church of England that the bill is defeated, for the ritualists will merely continue to do as they have been doing for some years-defy the bishops and disregard the edicts of the eccles ast-.. ical courts, but still accord nominal allegsance to the establishment. If the bill had become a law, on the other hand, the high churchmen must leave the church altogether, is it is certain that they will high churchmen must leave the church altogether, is it is certain that they will mot surrender their convictions in obedience to an act of parliament. If they are not permitted to use ritualistic forms within the Church of England they will do so contaids of it. There will be a new and powerful sect of dissenters created in Great Britain.

Meth sides are in earnest, though surprisingly little acrimony has developed in parliament. He had a surprisingly little acrimony has developed in parliament. The advocates of the discriptine bell declare that their only desire is to mouth the reformation to support the Church of England an extablished and discriptine bell declare that their only desire is to mouth the reformation to support the Church of England an extablished and discriptine bell declares that their only desire is to mouth in the reformation of the situation no ching in the so-called high church practices inconsistent with the doctrines of the established church, for that if there are some differences it is imm that they should be adjusted. It is certain, however, that whether the practice of ritualism is doctrinal or not it is in the nature of an ismovation. Lord HALIFAX himself, the prime mover in the ritualistic movement, admits that there is no specific authority for the practice of ritualism is doctrinal or not it is in the nature of an ismovation. Lord HALIFAX himself, the prime mover in the ritualistic movement, admits that there is no specific authority for the practice of ritualism tot activity upon the part of the low churchman but of a memorial addressed to the queen and parliament by the England Church union—the representative body of high churchmen.

And it cannot be desired the demands of the high churchman but of a memorial addressed to the queen and parliament by the England Church union—the representative body of high churchmen.

And it cannot be desired the demands of the high churchman but of a memorial control of the sick; the right to use incumen, and the right to identify the incument

ARTHUR BALFOUR has declared that these demands mean a wholesale revolu-Roman practices, and it is undoubtedly looked upon in that light by a majority of the low Murchmen in and out of parliament. That is to say, the advocates of the church discipline bill profess to fear the "Romanizing" of the church. The ritualists maintain that they do not agree with the defined doctrines of the Roman Catholic church, that they do not accept in all points its discipline or ritual, and that they certainly do not accept the prisciple of papal supremacy. The low churchmen reply that the practice of the ritualists is at variance with their professions, and thus the issue is joined.

The split in the unionist party on the bill foreshadows a rupture in the church stself. Whether the eccles astical establishment can be maintained in the face of so formidable a schism will be the question next to be confronted. For with the wealthy and aristoctic ritualists in the ranks of the dissenters it will be difficult ndeed to persuade the people of England that the established church now represents anything more than the holders of fat livings, bishopries and other ecclesiastical billets with a small percentage of the laity, who are churchmen from custom rather than from conviction.

A NOTABLE PARTE CTRE.

Rev. John Salmon, formerly a Conregational minister, and at present concted with the A. B. Simpson mission, New York, was in Galt this week. Leaving here he went to Guelph, where he called upon his former confreres, Rev. W. F. Clarke and Rev. J. Hindley. Finding that Mr. Clarks had long been afflicted with sciatica, he introduced the subject of faith cure, on which they had a long and animated conversation. Mr. Salmon kindly volunteered to give his old friend a Bible reading on the subject, "The Lord, Our Healer," to which Mr. Clarke cheerfully assented. Beginning with the times of Abraham, when the Lord healed Abimelech in answer to Abraham's prayer, and extending down to the well-known passage in the Epistle of James: "Is any man among you sick? Let him call for the elders of the church, and let them pray over him, annointing him with oil, in the name of the Lord, and the prayer of faith shall save the sick and the Lord shall raise him up." Mr. Morning Times Clarke drew attention to the fact that affliction was sent for our profit, to make us partakers of the Divine holiness, and raised the query whether to ask the Lord. to remove the affliction would not be to frustrate his own design in sending the affliction, to which Mr. Salmon gave no very definite reply. After some discussion along the lines above mentioned the interview wound up by Mr. Salmon offering a sincere prayer and laying hands Enquiry next morning elicited the fact that Mr. Clarke had a bad night and is still suffering to-day from his affliction of nine years' standing.

THE 1899 E & D. hasn't a score of useless experimental changes, but what changes it has are improvements. A careful examination of its construction will convince you of its superiority. The test of previous seasons has proven that only the best material is used, and in its matchless construction, finish and general make-up it thoroughly deserves the title of "ARTISTIC." Fork heads, swivels, cranks, hangers, hubs, seat posts and seat masts in the 1899 models are drop forged steel. Positively no castings or stampings used.

She must now move, however, or let the concession go to others; and this explains the recent developments. She is already arranging for a railway to Djulfa, the important frontier station on the northwest of Persia, sit-uated only eighty miles distant from Tabriz, the center of the rich Persian province of Azer-Baijan. Her plans subsequently are for a railway which will extend from Djulfa to Tabriz, and thence across the plains of Persia offers no engineering difficultles, to Kazvin, the ancient capital and Tehran. Thence the railway may extend to Ispahan and Shiraz, and with it the whole of Central Persia is at the mercy "Depend upon it, if Rumia is allowed to approach the Gulf or to extend her railway to Kerman in the coutheast, re have a standing menace to our Empire more serious even than the mpending amount upon Herat. Vanity In Somaliland.

If you wish to make a Somali woman absolutely happy, you give her a looking glass. She will never before have seen one, but feminine instinct will feach her how to use it. Mrs. Alan Gardner, on one of her big game shooting expeditions in Somalliand. ing expeditions in Somaliland, gave a native woman a looking glass for a Christmas present. She was so delighted with the first clear night of her dusty countenance that she sat through two entire days and nights outside Mrs. Gardner's tent gasing with rapture at her own reflection.

On the morning of the third day the fame of the looking glass had spread through the country, and a row of 40 Somali women, collected from far and near, was engaged in taking an admir-ing turn at the magic mirror. When Mrs. Gardner came on the scene, she was greeted by 40 feminine Somali voices joined in chorus and each begging for a looking glass "all to her-self." But, alsa, for the limitations of self." But, aisa, for the limitations of a sporting outfit, the dusky belies were chliged to content themselves with the one communal mirror. And the woman with the looking glass remained for many weeks the most important person in Somaliland.—London Illustrated

Every age has its own style of face and features, the possibly to the fashions of the day, which impress themselves even in the expressions of the human countenance. No one who studies modern portraiting the content of the fashionshie painters. It is not merely their channel be painters. These well born, carefully trained beauties of today are as much alike as pass in cose pod. They only vary in degrees. Of course the artist did he not find more in the face before his cased than the sitter seas when she gases in the mirror or her family and friends may detect in daily familiarity.

All the sumptuous detail of contume also adds to the variety of a picture, but in poss, in arpression, there is traceable only this one woman of the end of the end or the printing for each of the intervence her with the pictured woman of 100 or 200 years ago and see how altogether changed is this "eternal feminine." In 80 years time, here will be produced another "beauty," but one ventures to predict it will have as great sameness as the beauty which commands our admiration in the portrait exhibitions of the present day and which shows that fashionable painters are slaves to their subjects' will.—Bostos Transcript.

A Legies Suggestion.

The venerable R. L. Dabney, D. D., is well known that fashionable painters are slaves to their subjects' will.—Bostos Transcript.

A Logical Suggestion.

The venerable R. L. Dabney, D. D., is well known in this country and abroad. Upward of 20 years ago his youngest son Lewis was a sharp witted lad who promised to become a respected "chip of the old block."

block."

The lad was whipped one day for an ace of disobedience and then had to underge the more trying ordeal of sitting quietly on the sofa. He became deeply absorbed in thought and presently saked:

"Ma, why did you whip me?"

"Bo as to make you a better boy," was the response.

"So as to make you a better boy," was the response.

Lawis again became lost in thoughtful reflection. Presently he blurted out:

"Ma, do you balteve in prayer?"

"If you were to ask God to make me a better boy, do you think he would grant your prayer?"

"I think he would, son."

"Well, then, ma, I wish you would pray a little more and whip a little less."—St.

Had to Get Up.

Rad to Get Up.

Some years ago Dr. Oscar Blumenthal, the director of the Lessing theater in Berlin, had an unpleasant experience of the vigilance with which the authorities carry out their duties.

In his comedy, the "Orient Reise," one of the characters was afflicted with a mother-in-law of the most objectionable kind. This lady died and, according to the belief of her relatives, went to heaven. The prospect of a fresh acquaintance with his dreaded mother-inlaw so terrified her son-in-law that he announced that, if this should be his fate, "when the resurrection comes I shan't get up."

This was sufficient for the authorities. Twenty-four hours after the production of the piece an ominous blue envelope arrived at the Lessing theater containing a peremptory order from the president of police that the lines in question should be immediately suppressed, "as being calculated to wound the religious feelings of the linear."—

An Enfair Criticism.

The Times gives apace to a letter from a prominest citizen, dealing with a several matters, of importance. While this journal publishes the article, it does not follow that we enform the views expressed therein. We agree with the writer as to the desirability of securing a railway to the north. This is a matter that should have early attention, or we will find that the opportunity has passed away, never to return As the Mathews forget that this institution is probably the grantest circulator of money is Eastern Ontario. If Potarborough could get helf a desse other concerns at the same price, it weaks he the best involument that they could make. HOW HE GOT WEALTH.

Turkey's Richest Man an Armenian, Who

The richest man in Turkey is an Armenian, who is a naturalized American citizen and lived in this country for several years, ays. The Chicago Record. If the stories told is, the diplomatic circle of Constantinopie are true, he came by his money in a peculiar manner. It will be remembered that the Bullang Asis was assassinated in 1876. For several years prior to his death he accumulated all the money and bonds he could obtain, which he stored away in his palace as a reserve fund in case of a war with Russia, which had been impending for some time. The amount of his accumulations has been variously estimated from $10,000,000 to $40,000,000, and was undoubtedly considerably in "ancess of the latter sum. Most of it was in English, French and German securities that drew interest and were easily convertible at any bank in any city in Europe.

Although the assassination was a mystexy, it is believed to have been inspired if it was not soutally accomplished by Midad Pacha, the Minister of Finance, from avarictions motives. He alone was aware of the magnitude of the Sullan's heard and the place of its concealment, and after his soversign's death, by virtue of his position, he took charge of the fund and pretended to deposit it in the public treasury. But it is believed by those most familiar with Turkish affairs that it is retained for his own benefit a large park—perhaps one-half of th—which, for motives of self-protection, hestiniresded to the Armenian hanker I have named, and directed him to take the books to London and Parie and there deposit them in such a manner that their ownership could not be treased to Midad Pacha. It is also believed to have been the latter's intention to withdraw a portion of this property from concealment as soon as he felt eafe in doing so.

But not long afterward Midad Pacha was himself assassinated in the boldest and most assounding manner. He was attending a meeting of the Ministry, when he was informed that a neasunger was avalting him to heart in the could accept a part of the could a Designing seen, through alluring and cunningly worded advertisements, constantly endeavor to work upon the feelings of sick and ailing women by inviting them "to write and inviting them "to write and not from strangers, perhaps hundreds of miles distant. The object of the sick is to get well, and however precious sympathy may be, it never yet cured a seriously afficited woman. While the sympathy of your milliner or dreasmaker might be spyrecisted and be just as beneficial, if not more so, than sympathy from as tranger, yet it can not effect your cure if you are an ailing woman.

It is loudly proclaimed through the press that "a woman can best understand a woman's aliments," and on this ground sick women are invited to "write to a woman's and get the benefit of a woman's advice. The sort of "understandings of her eliments" wanted by a sick woman is a trained medical understanding. If a woman has this trained medical knowledge she understands woman's aliments not as sowess, but as a stringed medical understanding. If a woman has this trained medical knowledge she understands woman's aliments not as sowess, but as a stringed proprietary medicine especially designed for women—no one, therefore qualified woman physician sonnected with any proprietary medicine especially designed for women—no one, therefore qualified by learning and experience, to advise on questions of disease and its cure.

It is certain that there is no one, man or woman, connected with any "put-up" medicine for women, excepting only Dr. Pierce, is a regularly graduated and qualified physician, and who has, like him, devoted more than thirty years be the special study and treatment of diseases of women.—For more than thirty years Dr. R. THE LATE JOHN CLARKE, M. D.

Health Officer, who passed away at a comparatively early age, and its appreciation of the zealous, intelligent and able service he rendered the Board and the town during the many years he held the office. His sealous labors to raise the sanitary standard of the town had an excellent effect in bringing the town to the very good sanitary condition it is now in, and his suggestions and counsel were very effective in aiding the Board in its work. As a genial gentleman his death in also deeply regretted, and this Board desires to tender his slacers sympathy to his mother, brothers and sisters in their and affliction.

THE CHOWN AS A PERSECUTION.

The decision of the Attorney-General's Department not to proceed with the Pon-ton trial is an acknowledgement of the fact that it relies upon the evidence of two jail birds to convict a young man of excellent character and good record, and that the stupidity or carelessness of the authorities who left two expert cracks men in a rickety jail will be utilised to keep a charge hanging over the head of Ponton, who has been held under suspicion for nearly two years, but whom the law holds innocent until he is proven has acted strangely in this matter ali along, and is meeting with general criti-cism. The treatment Ponton has met with is very like persecution, and the crown in charged with a desire rather to convict him than to see justice done.

Poston's hope seems to lie with the trial judge, and if the case can be got on the index to postpone it would prove most popular, and would be a much needed rebuke to the Crown.

A process for making fine wool from a limestone rock found in such inexhanstible quantities in the neighborhood of Alexandria, Ind., is a recent discovery by C. C. Hall, chemist of the steel works at that place, the claim being that, from a combination of 94 per cent, the lime stone, chemicals and one of the common est of minerals, pure wool is obtainable as white as snow. It seems that, while as white no snow. It seems that, while making experiments with limestone for his factory, was found that a certain kind of the masserial, instead of turning to quick lines when subjected to fire, would, when combined with chemicals, turn into lava, and when subjected to another process this lava could be rendered pliable and handled like molten glass. From this beginning the process was pursued and a downy wool resulted, with promise of considerable industrial possibilities; that is, such rock wool is represented to be as soft and white as that produced by sheep, and can be manufactured cheaper than sheep can be raised and clipped, is not affected by fire or water and the supply seems to be almsot unlimited.

Once upon a time an American tautor an Englishman: How can you endure to be taxed to support your idle nobility?"

exclaimed the American, warmly. Then exclaimed the American, warmly. the American paid $10 a ton for his coal the American paid $10 a ton for his coal in order that the directors of the trust might procure dukes and things for sonin-law. The Immeric Lumber Enginess Some by This Popular Company.

The Rathbun Cumpany have a larger number of logic affect on the streams and lakes of their limits this season than at any time in the history of their operations during the past fifteen or twenty years, and the output of lumber this year will be immense, says the Cumpbelltord Haradd. They have at present employed on the different drives of force of neary one thousand man whose swages aggregate nearly $84000 a week. The largest gang of 275 men are at work an Black River, where there is a monster drive of six teen and one-quarter million fest, and the next largest on the Madawaska. Five of the ten drives on the move will be ficated to Campellford to be manufactured into lumber at the sawmill here. Wages for "river drivers" this year run from $20 to $24 per month which is in 'advence of last year when the highest was $18,00. The following is a list of the drives, the number of men employed on each, and their deathmation,—

Mr. Parish of Parish and Lindsay, appeared before the cummittee and was examined in regard to the elevator system. He was of course apposed to the bill. There were, he said, from 428 to 440 standard elevators in Manitoba and the Northwest. Of these 187 were owned and controlled by private parties. In reply to Mr. Haggart, Mr. Parwh said that cometimes there been an overplus of grain in the elevator and sometimes a shortage. As a rule one would balance the other. This year the overplus would about meet the whoringe.

Tarish, proceeding, said that the elevator system was the best. The farmers agreed to/them, and it would be unfair and unjust now to build flat warshouses.

The C. P. R.'s Attitude.

Judge Charke was next heard, and on rehdlf of the Camadian Pacific Railway said that they had no penniary interest in the elevators.

Douglas—I am satisfied on that Duglas—I am artisfied on that point.

Judge Clarke—There were two man features by the bill and ir researd to one of them, inspection, the railway was not interested one way or another. In respect to the other he was instructed to say that the railway company thought it an unjust burden to may down tracks at a cost of $1,800, so that an experiment might be tried in the way of erecting flat warehouses at a cost of about $200.

If such a proposition was exected continued Judge Chrise, then it would only be fair that the party who built the flat warehouses; should pay interest on the outlay. Last year, he said, the company gave loading by wasgrons a trial, and it worked very satisfactorily. Jif there was one thing more than another that Sir Wzz. Van Horne was prouch of, it was the elevator system in the Northwest. The company would and the to see the system give place to warehouses, and would not encourage it. In fact the company would discourage it.

The company objected to testing the question at its expense; when it believed that the elevator system was not to plame. The experiment should be tried via its given merits.

De Doughas objected to this exclusive method of receiving grain, and said that by maintaing it the farmers were refused competition.

Judge Chris-We don't object to it as long as no liability is put on the company. It Parliament authorizes to may that it is going to organize a competitor with us, then we have no objection. be moved without them, and on these grounds money was given to grain men to build elevators. The construction of warehouses would destroy the recurrities of the heals and do no good to farmers, because they could not do without elevators.

Many Interests Oppose

Patton, of (Whonipegs | allo representing the banking interests, said that there were other interests besides the elevators, and he was there to protest against flatwarehouses in the interests of the farmers, and im-plement makers as well as elevator men. It would crapple the whole country. He read the resolution puss-ed by the Winnipag Bankers Associa-tion against the bill. He said that the banks could not loan money on warehouses.

Oliver. M.P., declared that Mr. Patton had no right to be present if he refused to loan money on warehouses and did so on slevators. Mr. Patton said that whenever it was legitimate to do so the banks somed money on antisfactory seour-live.

Oliver went on to say that all the combines were represented. He was there as representing the farmers. Timble—I am tired of this, there are others here, who represent the farmers.

Oliver—I apologise. I thought you represented the railways.

Timble said he only wanted to give justice to the railways.

CHANGE OF VIEWS.

The Evelution of a Warrier From a Poace Advance.

From the very first he had been violently opposed to the idea of war with Spain.

At the time of the unanimous passage of the bill appropriating $50,000,000 toward our national defenses he had loudly protested against such a sinful waste of public money.

When hostilities actually commenced, he held un his hands in horror at the thought public money.

When hostilities actually commenced, he held up his hands in horror at the thought that in this advanced age two great nations should be unable to estile their differences without the aid of bloodshed.

Even the news of Dewey's glorious achievement in Manilla bay failed to ignite the damp wood of his enthusiasm. He saw nothing but barbarty in the destruction of the cenemy's fleet and the overwhelming triumph of the American ships. It was therefore not to be wondered at that he should be regarded with contempt by all who know him and referred to as a "copperhead" and a traitor to his country. But one fine morning he astonished his acquaintances in the city by appearing among them with a conspicaous reproduction of Old Glory at his buttonhole and an Uncle Sam tie encircling his throat.

"Hurrah for war," he cried vehemently, "red, red, anguishey war! Three cheers for the stars and tripes! Down with the Spaniards! "Yea Cuba libre! Let us have fighting and lots of it!"

"What is the meaning of this?" inquired his amazed associates. (Of course he had no friends.) "Only yesterday you were clamering for peace at any price."

"It is true," replied the copperhead. "But since then my janitor has enlisted!"

"Ment line the my janitor has enlisted!"

MALTA'S NEW STAMPS

A L cter Press Description With Cuts of the Stickers Themselves.

Four new stamps have just been issued

Four new stamps have just been issued by the Malta Postoffice.

The first is of the value of ten shillings, and represents the shipwreek of St. Paul in the Bay of S. Paole, on the northwest coast of the island. The color is a dark blue.

The second, of the value of two-and-strpence, represents Malta as a fomale figure standing between two flags or banners, each with a cross, that of the left being the eight pointed Malta cross. The color is an elive gray.

The third, of the value of fivepence, for letters requiring deable postage, represents a two-masted salling galley of the time of the Knights, with two laseen sails set, propelled by ears on a calm sea. The color is brick red.

The last, of the value of fourpence halfpenny, brownish sepia in color, also represents a boat with two lateen sails set wing and wing. The sea is slightly agi-

Deltas and Karly Civilinaties.

A solution of the problem why the earliest known civilizations—those of Babylonia, Egypt and China—should all have made their appearance in the deltas of great rivers has at last been suggested. It has been shown that clay, which for practical purposes is in-oluble in water, will nevertheless combine with it to a certain extent, remaining in a state of suspension known as colloidal or gelatinous. In this condition it has the curious property of absorbing like a sponge any crystallizable salts; as, for instance, those of nitrogen. But if into the water containing this colloidal clay a solution of common salt be poured, the clay, with the nitrogenous salts that it holds like a trap, will instantly be thrown down is a woolly precipitate. Now, this is exactly what happens with a great river like the Nile. During its periodic floods it holds in solution a large quantity of colloidal clay. This clay in its turn attracts from the air quantities of the nitrogen, which is, as Hir William Crookes has lately informed us, the life of plants. On meeting the salt water of the sea this clay, with its imprisoned nitrogen, is thrown down, and remains behind as a delta composed of the ideal soil for the raising of cereals. And that the introduction of cereals has always been the first condition of civilined life needs no demonstration. The traditions of every nation have always made their civilizer or "culture god" the person who first taught them agriculture.—Pall Mall Gazette. eitae and Early Civilization.

Often in the morning there comes a feeling of weariness, indescribable; not exactly ill, nor fit to work, but too near well to remain idle.

A Ripans Tabule taken at night, before retiring, or just after dinner, has been known to drive away that weariness for months.

Every age has its own style of face and features, due possibly to the fashlons of the day, which impress themselves even in the expressions of the human countenance. No one who studies modern portresiure can fail to note the resemblance that runs through the works of the fashlons ble painters. It is not merely their characteristic style, but the type which they have transferred to canvas and which almost borders on sameness. These well born, carrefully trained beauties of today are as much alike as peas in one pod. They only vary in degrees. Of course the artist didalises." He would not be an artist didalises." He would not be an artist didalises. He would not be an artist didalises. He would not be so hard to the will have greated in the mirror or her family and friends may detect in daily familiarity.

All the sumptuous detail of costume also adds to the variety of a picture, but in pose, in expression, there is traceable only this one woman of the end of the emtury, a creature of superb physique, clothed, or unclothed, like a royal princess. Compare her with the pictured woman of 100 or 200 years ago and see how altogether changed is this "eternal feminits." In 80 years' time, here will be produced another "beauty," but one ventures to predict its will have as great sameness as the beauty which commands our admiration in the potrasts exhibitions of the present day and which shows that fashionable painters are alaves to their subjects' will.—Hoston Transcript.

Brutalities at Sea.

In The Pall Mail Magnatine W. Clark Etusell quotes the instructions given by the Earl of Lindany in 1685 to his captains:

"The beynote is struck with the devotional spirit of the age. The chief in command is to take oure that all the officers and companies of the ships was down in bed and could not will until after she had taken your medicine, and companies of the ships was down in bed and could not will until after she had taken your medicine, and so were she pleases and helps to de lear work."

For murder (that was often manulambies) they tied the was often manulaughter) they tied the living to the dead, back to back, and threw them overboard."

A Legical Suggestion.

The venerable R. L. Dabney, D. D., is well known in this country and abroad. Upward of St.gears ago his youngest on Lewis was a sharp witted lad who promised to become a respected "chip of the old block."

The lad was whipped one day for an ast of disobedience and then had to underge the more trying ordeal of sitting quietly on the soft. He become desply absorbed in thought and presently asked:

"Ma, why did you whip me?"

"So as to make you a better boy," was the response.

"So as to make you a better soy, which responses.

Lawis again became lost in thoughtful reflection. Presently he blurted out:

"Ma, do you believe in prayer?"

"Yes, my son."

"If you were to sak God to make me a better boy, do you think he would grant your prayer?"

"I think he would, son."

"Well, then, ma, I wish you would pray a little more and whip a little less."—Sh.

The Child's Queetiens.
Born with everychild is a disposition to ask questions, which, if allowed to be fully gratified, makes the youngeter a perfect nuisance. The scolding or impatient parents never successful in putting down the questioning. A wise and patient one may do so by answering in a judicious manner. It is not wise to answer the same question over and over again, for that tends to stunt the growth of a child's memory. Questions from a child should never be allowed to intrude upon a convensation of its siders. The Child's Questions

M netary Times, Toronto, May 5th: At the last division court at Glencoe the case of the Free Press Co. v. Edwards was tried. It was an action on account to recover three years' subscription to the Dally Free Press. Plantiff proved that descedant had taken the paper regularly from the post-effice, and was therefore entitled to say fer it. Postedant alleged that he saves subscribed for the paper; that one Carson Atlair, who lived in the premises now occupied by defendant, and in whose name it had been sent, had ordered the paper; that when he want away he had shade a present of the paper to defendant, and had instructed the postmaster to deliver it to the defendant, who had imagined that Adair had paid for it, otherwise he would not have taken it. The judge held that defendant, having taken the paper, got the benefit of it, and should have stopped it if he did not want it. Judgment for plantiff.

THE POPULATION AND TAXES OF GREAT

What is the present population of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland? asks a correspondent. The exact number can only be estimated. If we take the populaiton of 1891, which was 38,105,000, as a basis, and to this add the inual increase of previous ten years, we get 40,540,000 as the present population Miss Mary Evances Armstrong, which and event took splace at her lated resistence, Omesmee, hast week has cast a gloom over the entire community. Became the speech delivered recently in the British House of Commons, the total taxation imposed in Great Britain by Customs duties was $108,600,000; by Extate doties, $55,700,000; by tampe, $40,000,000; by Land and Honse tax, $12,250,000, and by Property and Inceme tax, $91,400,000. Other revenues, that taxes, amounted to $97,9,00,000. Take them the population as above, the annual taxation in Great Britain imposed by Parliament amounts to an average of $18.27 per heid. It may be of interest to state the Army and Navy Services of Great Britain cost the people yearly an average of $5.80 per head.

There is a common impression in Canter the contract of the property of the Rev. Mr. of the United Kingdom. This number is average of $5.80 per head.

on impression in Cande that under Free Trade there are no Customs duties paid in Great Britain on orted goods. How entirely erroneous is this motion is seen by the fact that the Customs du tes imposed in Greet Britain amount to :2.68 per head of the popuation, the Excise duties amount to $3.70 per neal on the old land. In Canada the section per head of Customs duties is a nat $4, and of Excise, $1.46 per hear, as alog the total taxation from Customs and Excise in Canada $5.46 per head, and in Great Britain, $6.38 per head. This gives each Canadian an advantage of 96 cents yearly over each in-habitant of Great Britain. So that were, "Free Trade as they have it in England" established in Canada, the effect would be to increase taxation from Customs and Excise, It is no answer to this to say that the people of the old country have to pay an enorious sum for the Army and Navy, because there are taxes imposed in Great Britain which realize enough to pay for the cost of those services and which are not to any extent imposed in Casada.

home use and home money-mying, Diamond byes are cartainly first in the estimation of all women.

The beautiful and charming colors produced by Diamond Dyds maisfy the most critical of women. Let the esason be spring, summer, autumn or winter, the womens of tanks can select suitable and fashoinable colors when she decides to renky her old and faded dram, akirt, blouse, jacket, shawl, home or ribbons, or her boys' or husband's faded and dingy looking suits.

The Diamond Dyes work wonderful and truly delightful transformations in every line of old material, from the silk dress to rage for the making of home-made carpsts and rugs. The

The doctors excuse their incompetence by declaring that these nuisances disappear as a child grows older. I profess to believe them. And there is Cicero. Not that he himself had warts to speak of, though I have seen that statement in a schoolbook recently. It was an ancestor of his who won distinction that way, astonishing the Roman public with an excressones on the tip of his nose of trefoil shaps. Wherefore they called him Cicero (vetch), and the nickname chung to the family.

It is rather comforting than others see ifficted with warts. Even the "godlike Greeks" had them, as Lucian tells us in passing, and their mothers applied to old women for charms. The doctors were as helpless then as now, of course with more excuse.—Pall Mall Gasette. ALF. KINGSCOTE a call. Satisfaction gua-

TORTURING IN SIAM.

THE HORRIBLE CODE OF JUSTICE IN THAT QUEER LAND.

by the Headsman Are Pautastic and Brutal in the Extreme,

The traveler in that strange country, Siam, will still find many relies of barbarism. Among the most curious practices still in vogue are those for the punishment of criminals.

barism. Among the most curious practices still in vegue are those for the punishment of criminals.

Men are often subjected to severe punishments for very trivial offenses. It is not an uncommon thing for the king to sentence two men to be chained together, who are then compalled to go about yoked in this manner perhaps for years, as no one dare release them without the king's permission, and the king often forgots to give it. An instance of this kind was brought out recently when one of the prisoners died and the other unfortunate wretch was seen dragging the body of his late companion about beside him, unable to excape from his bertble yoke. The European consult endeavored to obtain his release, but during the delay conscioued by the absence of the king the poor victim became imame and soon afterward died.

Enseutiests are of frequent occurrence, and the include of excaption is interesting, although syroiting in detail. The locality mostly used for this purpose is altituated in a valley a short distance from Bangkot. Morning is the time generally subscried, when everyde of mattrey "may be seen moving toward the spot, arrayed in their gayest colors, and one would imagine that seme pleasant and enjoyable feto was about to be held. The assembled thousands, arrived at the stene of action, chant merrily and bet arrange themselves as to whether the executioner will cut his man's head off as one blow.

The executioner is dressed, in red rage and armed with a large "dah," or sword. The condemned man is then led up by an econt drawn by los frem his own stakion, who have charge of the entire affair and who are directly responsible to the king for the successful carrying out of his orders. After a procession through the stresse of the city, in which the unfortunate victim is compelled in carry the weapon which is be take his life, the cavalcade moves to the execution ground.

The headsman then proceeds to shackle the prisoner's ankles together, bind his hands behind his back, stuff his care with clay and bandage his eye meanwhile take advantage of this occasion to indulge in the most animated speculation on a variety of subjects, oftentimes wagering their entire possessions as to the exact moment when the victim will be killed or whether he will read his composure. The prisoner is led forward and placed on an elevated dais of earth in a kneeling position, and a mark is drawn upon his neck with colored earth te indicate the exact spot to strike.

The headsman retires to a distance of about 30 paces and commences to leap and caper about, uttering eries and brandishing his "dak," all the time advancing toward his victim until within striking distance, when he raises his sword as if to give the fatal blow, but does not do a. Again he returns to the sume place as before and goes through a similar performance, which he repeats for the third time, when, rushing suddenly forward, with one sweep of his weapon, he severs the head from the hody, smid the applause of the assembled multitude or the gloomy silence of those unfortunate bettors who have wagered against his successful performance of the feat.

Sometimes it happens that the executioner, through lack of skill in dealing the final blow, misses his man and gashes his man in a frightful manner. Ehould this happen he is immediately edzed by an assistant executioner and condemned to death, another taking his place, who proceeds to go all through the performance anew, while the unfortunate wretch is writhing in agony and alowly bleading to death. As soon as the condemned is successfully beheaded the official who has had charge of the affair ohops off the heels of the victim and alips the irons over the feet. These are conveyed to the king as testimony of his having faithfully performed the duty intrusted to him.

This is, however, but one of many one-torm in which undesirable subjects may be disposed of. Such minor transgreations as theft, wife stealing and combating of official suthority visit upon the head of the offender punishment ranging in scale according to the enormity of the VALUE OF SELF EDUCATION.

Hore Leating Than Academic Training Because It Takes More Effort.

More Leasting Than Academic Training Because it Takes Here Effort.

Edward Bok answers a girl correspondent who inquires "How can one learn other than at college and still realise the highest living?" in The Ladies' Home Journal. "The inputimable value of mental training is not akene to be had at the college or university. It can be had more girl or boy, man or woman, but mental training is not akene to be had at the college or university. It can be had more effectively than anywhere else if the desire to learn and study is present in the heart. There is a mistaken idea present with many that we go to college to get a certain amount of information or a number of facts in our heads. The legitimate use of all colleges is mental discipline—in other words, the training of our faculties so that they will be of use to us as tools. The gives us not learning, but trains us how to learn in after years: for the life of a woman, like that of a man, begins after college has been left behind.

"Now, mental discipline may be just as eastly acquired at home are at college, provided a girl so wills. What developed the hundreds of thousands of women who never went to college and yet who are today women of the very finest minds? Not one in 5,000 girls in this country can or will ever go to college. That is possible only for the smallest minority, yet the majority will not fail of the 'highest living' because the opportunity of an academic training was withheld from them. Saif development is far more lasting than mental training, because it calls for greater effort, and efforts well directed are of themselves the greatest means of development we have. What we find out ourselves we remember better and longer than what is taught or told us."

Legally Dead.

In Maxico, when a man is condemned to death, he is executed by being shot by a file of soldiers, and the body is left where it falls, to be taken away by the man's friends, if he has any.

Not long ago a worthless fellow was thus executed and left in the open country outside a small village.

But after the officer in charge had inspected him, pronounced him dead, and the soldiers had left the man got up, walked to the City of Mexico, 80 miles distant, and entered a hospital.

He had a wound in his shoulder and two more on his skull, but soon recovered. The authorities now wanted to shoot him again, but the governor of the province decided that the man was legally dead, the lieutenant having mid so, and the Maxicon was released.

Sound In the Air.

A writer in The Strand Magazine describes the astoniahment he experienced when, riding over London in a balloon at a height of more than half a mile, he heard the deafening roar of the great city beneath him as it could not be heard when on the ground. The noise, wen at that height, was so harsh and intense as to be painful to the ear. How perfect a sound conductor the air is was shown when the balloon drifted far over the city to a wooded part of the country, where the nurmur of the leaves moved by the wind, half a mile below, was distinctly heard.

Entrance was obtained through a second storey window, the intruders making their agrees by prying a lock off-the store door from the inade. Two money drawers were emptied of their contents, consisting of a few diolars in change and desperate attenut was made to secure the contents of the safe. The handle was broken off and a number of holes drilled into the door. These were found filled with powder, which had not been explaided. The holes were drilled at a distance of about ten inches apart, an effort evidently being made to locate the boits. A punch, sume chissis, a drill and a heavy hammer were evidently used in the attack on the safe.

'Mr. MoNell found that it was impossible to open the safe door, this morning on account of the usage to which it had been subjected. It is therefore impossible to assertain, at present, whether the burglars were, or were not successful in securing the contents which consisted of only a small amount of cash and Mr. McNeil's husiness papers.

The fact that a number of raw agas had been sucked and a quantity of cakes eaten is an evidence that the men concerned in the robbery took their time, but it is not understood how they were deterred from exploiting the purpose. The place was secure at eleven oblight and the purpose. The place was secure at eleven oblight in the person who examilited the set.

BURGLARS AT BOWMANVILLE. Mx Men Break into the Standard Bank, blow open the Safe and Carry off Over

Bowmanville, Ont., May 13.—Early this morning burglars broke into the the Standard Beach here. There were six men is the gang, who thoroughly understood the business of safe cracking. The building is at brick structure both, in 1994 pand in account of the business of safe cracking. built in 1894, and is equipped with latest and most improved proof appliances.

The burglars first went to the Police Office and selaed the night watchman Henry Metcalf. After blindfolding and gagarine bein, they handcuffed him with his own handcuffed him with his own handcuffed him to keep quiet or they would shoot him.

They then assorted him to the bank, near which they held him while they commenced operations. Metcalf was guarded by two men with revolvers while the others entered the bank by removing a pane from one of the windows on the west aide of the bank.

Three Explosions.

emoving w pame from one of the windows on the weat aide of the bank. Three Explusions.

The fron door was them pried open; three explositions took place in succession. In about half an hour the three doors leading to the pince where the valuables were seposited were shattered. About $1,000 belonging to the bank and $110 for the Canada Life Insurance Company and a ot of valuables belonging to private citizens were carried off. The night watchman was carried into the bank and left there. Metcalf was found there about five o'clock this morning by Frank Garratt, who was paming and was attracted by a curious sound inside the luilding. The bank was envirely without funds this morning, but Mr. George McGill, the Edwager of the Ontario Bank, promptly offered all the amintance in his power to tide over the day.

The Nightwatchmen's Story.

Henry Metcalle, the night watchman, tells the following story.

"About 1.30 I heard a moise outside the police station, where I was and stepped out. I was immediately asined by two men who beld guast to to my head and told me that if I said a word I was a dead man. They blindfolded me, sugged me, tied my feer and handcuffed my hands behind my back with my own handouffs. Then they carried me across the street and an me down in a doorway. A voice told me to loven quiet or I would be killed, and I felt something cold against my head like, the mustle of a revolver. I sat there while the bank was breing blown open. There were at issuit two explositions and glass flew in all directions. I did'nt imow how long I was there, but after a time I was picked up and carried into the bank where I lay until Mr. Garratt ceme and released me. I must have been there over two hours. Roger cent to Bownanville.

The Attorney-General's Department were notified early this morning by Mr. George P. Reid, gueral manger of the Standard Bank, of the robbery rommitted last ningt in the Bownanville branch of the bank, and Petcetive Joseph Rogers was sent down to investigate.

CECIL'S FALSE FAITH.

"It is monstrous?"

Ceci was marching up and down the log dawing-room at the lord Place, his face angrily flushed, and his brow theaty we can his whole frame quivering with seen. I had just told his will, for he had been in New Orleans will, for the had been in New Orleans will, for the days after the funeral. "It was a steer from Mr. Hay," I same, "hat intook hilled Uncle Harry. We thought be had made a new will, but it could not found."

Cec.'s face brightened.

'A letter from Mr. Hay! A new will." sead, musingly, but keeping his eyes evenly bent upon my face. "Why did cout bink that?"

"Mr. Potter told Willard so; but we conf! not find it and—and—Willard comed to be pleased."

"No doubt! The car! No doubt the new will gave use the rights of which he has rolleed me."

"The Cecil, don't—please don't! I bleaded. "Willard is not a cur or a hief."

And yet I said it falteringly, for was cot Cecil my cousin and betrothed and blended. "Willard is not a curr or a laif."

And yet I said it falteringly, for was too Ceell my cousin and betrothed and Willard only my guardian under Unele Hairy's will, and scarcely oven a friend as yet?

But Occil clenched his hands hard a moment, and said:

"feel me again the terms of this united will?"

"thele Harry has left me the house and $10,000, and to you $30,000; all the rest—the factory, the real estate in New York, the bank stock—you know, Ceel—all the rest goes to Willard?"

I shaddered at the oath that oroth from Ceeds lips. "But Mr. Hay's letter?" he asked.

"Uncle was very ill when that came.

"Uncle was very ill when that came, and he sent for Mr. Potter at once, it cannot teel you say more excepting that a rearch was made for the will and Willard seemed relieved when it was not found."

Gecil made no reply to this. His amour scened to have been tising till hunde him spechlem. He strode set at the French window and down the garden path, while I threw myself on the sofa and cried as I had never cried in all may petted life. For Ceell was my betrothed, had been sway more than a sent, and I fanied I loved him. Heletters had been brief and cold for along time, and now, after one cold carcess, he had spoken only of Unletter's will—not one loving tender word to me—doubly orphaned by our anele's death.

Willard was not our own cousin, but Uncle Harry's stepson, and much older then cither Ceell or myself. We were still children when Willard was sent to Paris to take charge of the importations for our untel's husiness, and he helicid there until Ceell went to New Orients to control a branch establishment liciore Ceell left we were formally betrothed.

I've I knew that Ceell was not pleasing Uncle Harry: that he was extravament, nextigent of important business affairs, and agly stories of dissipation came often to grieve us. Mr. Hay, as immensely wealthy Louisians planter, who was one of Uncle Harry's friends and business correspondents, had made been at once destroyed, and no hint of its contents given to me.

But long before this williard had come home from business and Uncle Harry, as a great contrast to Ceell.

Ceell, at 25, was the handsomest man laver saw, with carling brown hair, and large blue eres, a smilling mouth and perfect features. He was seven years older than myself, but ten years younger than Willard, when he came from Paris, was a dara-haired, dark-eyed nian, with a grave face, settled habits of punctuality, a reserved manner; a nou who includes a firm of lady was very kind, very gentle, but she sold little seemed to advise me to think no interesting the said there was a look in his eres tha

"That will must be found?"
"The was a thorough search made for it? Mrs. Roue said, coldly.
"Yea, by interested partica?" was the special reply. "The house is yordo, which, nor Willard's. I ask your permission to look for the will. I gave it and then escaped to my owner. In the would look for the will, press find it, and Willard would look in the benefit and it. And I was not glad. A brille weight expressed me as I thought of Ceell master in Wellerd I as master of the factory—my his band?

the comments of the factory—my has bard!

At the last thought the scales fell at lest from my girlich eyes, and I knew that my laws (or Ceell was but the actual affection of a child for a life cam or nion, exalted to an ideal perfection by a contitui imagination. And when the ideal had fallen there rome in its place is grave face with large, soft, black eyes, and I covered my own face to hide and blushes; for never had Willard specimone word to Ceil's betrothed—never given me other than the gentle courtey due to his stepfather's niece and his short-timad ward.

The Drawing Classon.

The examiners of the machine drawing class submitted the following report—

Public Library Committee—Sir/-We hareby sabmit the results of the examination papers and term's work in 1898 and 1899, in the machine drawing class of the Paterborough Public Library.

As you will see the percentages are higher than last year, and we find the classes of a much higher standard, some of their drawing being very good, while the whole see very creditable to themselves, as well as their instructor, by the senior class Peter Gillespie ground sighest and in the junior class, W.- D. McClassen.

GENTLEMAN JACK.

A Short Story of a Mining Camp in Nevnda.

They called him "Gentleman Jack."
He came to the mining camp at Virginia City one summer's day and saked the superintendent for work. The miner looked at his questioner's white hands, frail figure and neat fitting clothes and smiled. But the man insisted, and finally the superintendent consented to allow him to remain.

That night, when the miners returned to the superintendent consented to allow him to remain.

That night, when the miners returned to camp, the newcomer was introduced to them as Jack, the only name he gave. His companions amiled as the superintendent had smiled, and one, turning to his fellows, said, "Gentleman Jack."

Jack took his place in the mines and performed his share of the labor. His comrades gradually came to respect the man who, evidently unaccustomed to the life they led, yet adapted himself to the conditions as they knew them. Time and time again they sought to assist him, but he would not permit it. Neither did he talk of himself. Once they happened to hear him refer to Chicago, and it was understood it was his former home.

Six months passed. The miners were one day using dynamite to remove the rock. After the explosion Jack was found lying on the ground, crushed by the weight of a huge bowlder. Tenderly they bore him to the hillside. They thought him dead. The blood cosed down his pallid face. His eyes were closed. As they stood about him the cyclids raised, and a smile spread over his features, followed quickly by a terrible look of pain. His lips quivered, and, bending low, his comrades heard a murmur of words.

"Mother, I have not forgotten," was what he said, and then, in long drawn, suffering sounds followed the words, "Our Father—which art in heaven—hallowed be thy name—thy will—be—done—on—earth—as"— And then, though the lips continued to move, no sound was audible. Those who watched knew, however, that the prayer was finished.

The eyes again closed, the stained, bruised lips smiled—Gentleman Jack was dead. Who he was his comrades did not know. But somewhere a waiting mother may understand as she reads.—Chicago Journal.

African Currency.

In Africa there are several varieties of unusual money. The following incident gives an example of one mode of using unusual money. The following incident gives an example of one mode of using currency:

In west Africa there was an illustrious king, Kamrasi by name, of the Wanyoro triba. He sent off an expedition provided with 600 majembe, a kind of iron spade money. The expenditure of 9 majembe per diem would provide for the expedition. With them was carried a magic horn, which protected them from danger.

East central Africa furnishes another form of spade or hose money made of ham mered iron. This is made and used by the Bari tribs, who trade with people from the interior. This hoe is of no practical use, except as a portable form of exchange, after barter being converted into weapons and ornaments. At Urua, central Africa, is another form of our-rency in the shape of a flat cruciform ingos of copper, 9% inches in length.

Spaars formed a currency in use near Stanley Falls as recently as 1898. The fron spear is very well made. In the shaft is an ornament. The whole thing is 5 feet 5 inches in length and could well be used as a weapon. It is a recognized currency at Lower Lomanu. A smaller object is from the same district, of a graceful shaps, but of no use except as money.—Good Words.

A gentleman had left his dog at his states while abroad for a few months, and on his return the animal was so excited that he was not surprised to hear him barking in the night. The barking was so persistent that the owner put on his department of the country o so persistent that the owner put on his dressing gown to go down stairs and pat Rowe on the head to snothe him. He was no scotter in bed again than the noise recommenced. So he made another journey to point out, with seme asperity, that the repetition of the offense would call down serious consequences upon the delinquent. He was just dowing when the barking started more furiously than ever and continued until he made a third journey with the walking stok.

Soon after, the disturbance began once more. Fortunately the gentletaan was too skeepy to get up again, and at leat he went off to skeep, owing to sell the dog next day. When the morning came, however, his sister hoped that he had not been roused by the barking of—her new parrot It was always imitating the dog et night, the said.

BANK-BERAKING.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—The operation of breaking into a bank and abstracting the contents of the safe has now become a fine art, so audaciously, skilfully and ingeniculy is it now carried out. The extralordinary thing is the immunity from punishment the perpetrators enjoy. At Bowmanville there were three explosions, and yat the this vas had time to get eway with their booty, $11,000—no small load if any large proportion of this was in coin. It would pay the beachs well to have an armed guard, of so fewer than three, watching their property every night. The local banks have escaped so far; when will the marauders pay them a visit? CAUTION.

Peterborough, May 16.

Mr. James English, the afficient engineer of the attem fire engine, went to Keene, to open the safe that had been tampered with by burglars, one night last week, and which local experts could not open. Mr. English did the job in a few moments. It will be remembered that the buralars had not been successful in their attempts to open the safe door and the contents were, therefore, unstouched.

REPAIRING WATCHES

How Jewelers Tell When They W Last in Their Hands.

Heat in Their Hands.
There was a crowd agund the counter of a down town jewelry store where watches are received for repairs. A woman who was evidently in a hurry made her way to the place where the man with the magnifying glass stood and handed a little watch to him.
"Will you please tell me what alls this watch?" she asked.
The watch doctor opened the case deliberately, peared into the works and said, "It needs cleaning."
"My, that seems strange!" said the woman. "You cleaned it only a few months ago."
"It that no?" seked the man and opened woman. "You cleaned it only a few months ago."

"Is that so?" seked the man and opened the case once more and made another examination with the aid of a ministure microscope. Then he handed the watch back and said, "We cleaned this watch two years ago, and it has not been in our hands since that time."
"Is that so? I must be mistaken; but how do you know when it was elemed last?"

how do you know when it was eleaned last?"

The mean explained that it was no trick of memory, but simply the result of a system. "Whenever a watch is brought to as," he said, "to be cleaned, regulated, repaired or "fixed up" we put a tag on it, which is numbered to correspond with a number in our workbook. In the book we record the style and make of the watch, the owner, what repairs are to be made and the amount charged for the work, and when the workman finishes the job he puts the same number in microscopic figures on the edge of the inner case. A letter or sign also shows what has been done to the watch, So, you see, when a watch to the watch. So, you see, when a watch kind, and when we find it we refer to the book, and there you are."

The woman left the watch with the man of eventur, and when she had rome he said.

book, and there you are."

The woman left the watch with the man of system, and when she had gone he said: "That happens many times every day. We have the most fun with the people who say, 'You guaranteed this watch for a year when you repaired it, and here it is out of order again.' The glass usually reveals the fact that the watch was 'due to break' months and sometimes years ago."

All watchmakers keep records and mark the watches. which, are placed with them for repairs, but so two have the same system. Some makers mark the watch with the name of the workman and a record number after it, some mark the date and the workman's initial on the case, and others have signs in conjunction with these designations to show just what work has been done on the timepiece.

This system of marking and recording watches is of much service to the police also, and lost and stolen watches are identified daily by means of the watchmaker's private marks.

The Hunkeys of Halases.

Do you care for monkeys? Personally I know two kire's cuty in Malaces and detect them both—the brok and the kra. The brok is a big brown, fatuous baboon of the familiar low comedy pattern, forever scratching himself and sputtering and fidgeting with hands and feet and making faces. Should you desire to please him you will squat (just beyond the longth of his chain) in front of him and similarly scratch your person, casks faces and sputter. Then in high good humor he will amble round his post in as big a circle as his chain permits, clutching at your hair with an adroit high klok as he passes. Such are his low delights. The trait is a small gray person of passionate apparamon, with close set, fary eyes. The testes of this little feed are still more primitive—namely, to fly straight at you with his tail sticking out and his scust sticking up and bits you again and again.

THE MAKING OF GOLD BRICKS.

An Betablished industry With Which the Law Does Net Interfere.

The making of the gold bricks with which confidence men rob the granger "come ons" and even smart merchants and bankers has become an established industry. It is not a crime to make a gold brick. The crime only comes in when the spurious article is sold. The value of the standard "brick." would be about $550 if composed of pure gold. The cost to the purshaser when the article is prepared for the market varies from $10 to $75 a brick, according to the value of the material used. The purchaser from the factory makes his terms with his victims.

"You want to know of the very best used. The purchaser from the factory makes his terms with his victima.

"You want to know of the very best brick we turn out?" add a maker. "Well, the brick most likely to deceive is made from a copper and sine mixture. It is not the most expensive, but it will stand knocking around for five years without losing tint or sone, and, I tell you, it's pretty near the real thing. Half adollar's worth of gold is more than enough te do the job. Our setence is known as water gliding because the least touch we give the brick is to chill it in load water. We buy our gold in heaves from the beaser. These leaves we place in a crucible with mercury, seven parts of mercury to one of gold. The mercury is first heated, and under the action of a furnese the mixture is made reduct. Them it is allowed to cold down. We squeeze the amalgam through charnots leather for the purpose of ejecting the superfluous mercury, and the gold, with twice its weight of mercury, remains behind. It is then a yellowish mass of the consistence of butter, and with this the metal is coasted with a brush. This is the first etep in turning the brick into gold.

"After receiving the first coat the brick is subjected to a strong heat for the purpose of evaporating the remaining mercury. It is then in fine form, but far

Is subjected to a strong heast for the purpose of evaporating the remaining mercury. It is then in fine form, but far from perfect. There will be little irregularities, and these are removed with a delicate breas brush. After the brushing a lack of true golden tone is apparent, but we have an easy remedy for this. We coast the brick over with gilding war, which is a preparation of red ochor, verdigris, alum and borax. Then the brick is again exposed to the action of fire till the war is entirely burned away. It's real gold then, but we are bound to make it a few carnet fines, so our customers can have no possible ground for questioning the quality of their treasure. We do this by covering it with a saline composition and again exposing it to a high temperature. It is finally chilled in cold water and is beautiful to look on—a perfect gold brick. It is proof against time, moisture and weather of all kinds and will stand constant handing for years without loaing tone or inster. Goods made as I have described are guaranteed for five years."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

The Miserable Moors.

The lives lived by the Moors are without perhaps any exception the most precarious and miserable that can be imagined. The poor man is thrown into prison for sums he never possessed and can never pay, the rich to be aquested of all he possesses, while these only can hope to escape who are recembers of families sufficiently powerful to arouse the fears of the local governor abould he attempt extertion and not sufficiently powerful to stir up the jealousy and avaries of the suitan.

Even the governors of the provinces suffer themselves as they make others suffer, for just as they anuses the agriculturist and the pussant so are they in turn aqueored by the chilkin and his visiters, and, should they fall by constant presents to maintain a good opinion at the court, they can expect only imprisonment and often death.—Black wood's Magnains.

DOWN A MOUNTAIN SHOOT

The Fas.est Time That Was Ever Rade in the Sadele.

"I once took an involuntary hair raising ride," and a western man "It was in Colorado a number of years ago. I was in the lumber business at the time and had a k-will in a valky at the foot of an encurnous mountain spur, covered with pine. The place where the best timber was cut was perhaps a mile away, and to save roundahout hauling we built what we called log shoots. They were simply V shaped troughs, as near straight as possible, running down the mountain side to the millyard.

"When a true was felled, it was trimmed up, dumped into the mearust shoot and went down tike a 10 inch shell. In the sourse of time the friction wore all the troughs as smooth as glace and also drove them into the ground, so they were mostly flush with the surface. One winter day I was out inspecting, riding a tough mustang pony, and concluded to visit a tract that had been worked over and abandoned. The ground was thickly covered with snow, and the pony was cautiously picking his way whose suddenly he inrobed forward and foll. I stock in the addle, and the next thing I knew we were whisting through space like a rocket.

"You see, he had accidentally stepped into an abandoned log shoot, and as his legs were doubled under his body it was impossible for him to get out, but I discovered all that afterward. It happened so quickly f had no time to think, and all I remember of the ride is that swifts swoop of perhaps five seconds and them a sall through the air. Some obstraction had jolted me off, and I lit in a snow bank 80 feet away. The horse, poor bruto, was carried on shout, a quarter of a mile to a break in the tupingh and dashed against a pile of bowliders dead as a doornail. I was comparatively unhurt, but so stunned and shaken up that it took me several hours to eraw! back to the mill. The distance I actually traversed in the shoot was about 800 yards, and I am prepared to bet it was the fastest time ever made in the saddle."

HE GOT A CHANGE OF VENUE.

But the Lawyer Lost His Client in the Meve.

But the Lawyer Lost His Chemt in the Move.

A good story is told of a Kaness City lawyer. He is more of a corporation lawyer than anything else, but once in awhile he has been called upon to show his knewledge of criminal law. It was not so very long ago that he was in Oklabona, and he undertook the defense of a negro who had killed a white man. The feeling against the negro was intense, and it had been only through the most stremuous efforts of the officers that he had been permitted to live for his trial. It was very evident that an unprejudiced jury could not be obtained in the little place where the crime was committed, and it was the intention of the Kaness City man to ask for a change of venue. After he had worked on the case for some time he ascertained that the judge was going to deep anything like a change and that his man was to be tried and hanged as soon as possible. The lawyer thought long and hard over the master and finally hit upon a scheme which he thought would be successful in influencing the court.

By the liberal use of money he succeeded in agardine advance who, when the thought would be successful in influencing the court.

By the liberal use of money he succeeded in securing a dosen men who, when the segro was brought into the contrictom, were to cry: "Hang him! Hang him!" The lawyer thought that this would be evidence of the projudice against his client that could not be overlooked by the court. The day for the trial arrived, and the defendant was brought into court. As soon as he made his appearance a dosen shouts went up:

soon as he made his appearance a desen shouse went up:

"Hang him! Hang him! Hang the black accumdral!"

The cry was taken up all over the court-room, while the attorney smiled to himself as he saw his little scheme succeed; but to his horror, the cries redoubled in force, the crowd surged in an irresistible wave toward the prisoner, and before it could be prevented the negro was taken out and hanged to a convenient trea.

The young Kanass City attorney now confines himself entirely to corporation law and politics.

A Fulseme Compliment.
During Mr. Cleveland's tour of the south shortly after his marriage Mra. Cleveland and he were driving one day through the streets of one of the larger towns secorted by two of its citizens. Some one threw a bunch of violets to Mrs. Cleveland, and Mr. Cleveland bent forward to catch it, remarking as he presented it, "I wonder why no one gives me flowers!"

One of the gentlemen present gallantly replied, "We think you have won the fairest flower is all the hand!"

Drunkarda, and especially people suffering from delirium tremens, "see anakes" (says an eminent coulist) because of the presence in certain veins of the eye of dark, pulsating blood, as a result of alcoholism, which produces anakes in appearance and motion. Hitherto it has been supposed that the "smakes" which men reported having seen in their alcoholise delirium were simply creatures of the imagination. Now we are told that these hallusinations have an actual basis. Statistics on this subject collected by the coulise show that 96 per cent of the visual hallusinations "experienced in delirium tremens consist of serpense in one form of another.

"I will not used it a encrifice on my part," mys the girl, bravely, although tears are heavy in her voice and eyes. "I am only doing some little thing for him who did all for me. There is a joy that is almost sacred in the thought. It has taken from the terrible sting of his death. To know I can still please him, can work for him brings him heak to me from the other world. At times I loom the assess of farmess and man feel him almost near."

"You are too good for me," eays the young man, humbly taking her hands and kiming me twice.
"I am not. You must not say so," says Molly, hastily, the touch of his lips weakening her.
Two large teams that have been alowly gathering roll down her cheeks.

"Oh, Teddy!" ories she; suddenly, covering her face with her hands, "at times, when I me certain flowers, or hear some music connected with the olden days, my heart dise within me, I less all hope; and thest I miss you surely, sorely.

Her head is on his breat by this time; his strong young arms ere round her, holding herr as though he would forever shield her from the pains and griefs of this world!

"I have felt junt litin you," he said, simply. "But after all whatever comes, we have each other. There should be comfort is that. Had death robbed us—you of me of you—then we might indeed mourn. But as it is there is always hope. Can you not try to find comsolation in the thought that, no matter where I might be, however far away, I am your lover forever?"

"I know it," mays Molly, inexpressibly comforted.

Their trust is of the awastest and fullest. No cruel coldresh has crept in to defile their perfect love. Living as they are our a mars shadow, a faint atreak of hope, that may never break into a fuller gleem, they still are amost happy. He loves her. Her heart is all his own. These are their crumbs of comfort, sweet fragments that never fail them.

Now he leads her away from the luckiems subject of their engagement altogether, and presently she is laughing over asme nonsensical tale he is telling her connected with the old life. She is asking him questions, and he in telling her all he knows.

He is ancommonly well, and has been all the winter, pottering—by the bye, that is an appropriate word, isn't it! reminds one of his own jokes—after a girl who rather fancise him, in spite of his orimsor locks; or perhaps because of them. That particular abade is, happily rare. She has a little money, too, at least one up has a little money, too, at least one open has a little money, too, at least one open day perhaps I shall go there, and judge of its eccentricities myself."

"Hor Irsland!" says Molly. "some day perhaps I shall go there, and judge of its eccentricities myself."

"Never, I am behamed to my."

"I share your sentiments. Never here. I planted my foot upon so much as the lowest step of its interminable stairs. I feel keenly the disgrace of such an acknowledgement. Shall we let another hour pass without retrieving our false position? A thousand times 'no.' Go and pet your bonnet on, Molly, and we will make a day of it."

And they do make a day of it, and are as foolishly thousehelses!"

And they do make a day of it, and are as foolishly, thoughtlessly, un-utterably happy as youth and love combined can be in the very face of life's disappointments.

The first flush of joy on meeting Luttrell being over, Molly grows once more depressed and melancholy.

RACED FOR HIS LIFE.

AN EXCITING ADVENTURE WITH A WILD OSTRICH.

A Thrilling Chase on an African Voidt That Was Interrupted by a Kaskr, Who Was Then Kicked to Death by the Inturiated Bird.

The open veids lay before us bathed in the dew and the lingering abades of early morning as we mounted our horses for a ride across country. Before we had gone far, however, my companion was summoned back, and I continued my ride alone. As I advanced mile by mile the scenery grew whider, and the great rocks, just tinged with the purple of the sunries, rose majestically on either side. When the road divided, my Basuto pony turned off into a bridle path which led through a wild gorge and eventually loss itself among the rocks at the foot of a hill. The surefooted little creature started up the side of the mountain and westually laided ris at the top. Here I dismounted and left him to grass. We had been out some hours. Remounting, we followed a half beaten track on the opposite side from which we had come, and in a short time we were at the foot of the hill and on the level veids once more. Going forward into the main road, which wound round the base of the mountain, I started off at a quick canter toward home.

For some time we went along at a good pace, when suddenly I-was startleb by the sight, not far aband, of a cock extrich rushing wildly-backward and forward, with its black and white wings flapping and quivering with rage. I pulled up with a jerk, for at first I thought the bird was loose on the veids, but on close tempeticion I found that a wire fence was between us. Just at this moment I saw on the other side of the camp a han sitting on her rest, and, knowing only too well the danger I was in, I pansed to consider what I should do. A short distance in front the road ran close to the fence, and I knew it would be impossible to pass that way. There was nothing for it but to retrace my steps and follow the road back round the mountain till it joined the one saw, when suddenly a strange sound made me look around. To my horror I saw that in one of his wild change, and if the end I knew the ostrich mean a rose for dear life. My pony, I knew, was one of the quickest in the country, and, as we had a good seart, way with the progress of the great bird, for I sould tall it had stopped short, and as the chase was not resumed I ventured to look back. My heart sessed suddenly to stand still. My heard swan, and I had the greatest difficulty to keep my seat in the said was charging at a Kaffir who was coming up from the camp in pursuit. The man may his danger and excitedly threw herrie after kerrie, which passed wide of the mark. Vague ideas flashed through my mind of going to his help—an absurd idea, of course, and now impossible, for the pony had become thoroughly rightened and was bolting as hard as he could go. There was more shouting now, and I hoped that others had come to the rescue; but, glanding back again, I saw it was too late. Outrich and man had mee! The Kaffir made a tremendous spring at the long neck of the bird, but he was no slow, and an awful kick sent the poor wretch upon the earth. Before he had time to recover—if indeed he ever could—the bird was literally dancing upon him, and I shut my eyes to hide the ghastly sight. By this time several Kaffirs and a Dutchman had come up, and with a long, lasso they caught the sensitive part of the bird's neck and strangled it, draging it off the prostrate Kaffir at the mane time. I never knew how I reached bome that day. For days and nights that ghastly gight haunted me, and I was troubled by the thought that the man had practically given his life for mine, while I had done nothing even to attempt to save him. His master, a hard, mercentary Bost, was more silled with annoyance at the loss of the valuable cearch than with pity for the man. The unfortunate Kaffir had only lived till he reached the farm, and then he succumbed to his terrible injuries.—Wide World Magnaine.

Reventually he will break down with nervens exhaustions or prostration. There is a remedy that will promptly put a man right under these conditions. It is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures indigestion, fills the blood with the vital elements of life, tones the serves, and makes the brain bright, clear and active. It cures all nerve and brain troubles due to insufficient or improper nourishment. The "Golden Medical Discovery" is for sale by all good medicine dealers, and only an unacrupulous dealer will try to induce a customer to take some worthless remedy, alleged to be "just as good."

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS

The other day, the matter of giving servent girls more time on Sunday was discussed on a street corner by two citizens, and the opinion of both was that arrangements absold be made by which they could acteed all the services on Sunday. One of the speakers and that once a clergyenan came to bown for the purpose of stirring up the peoplet on flabbath observance. He preached govern I times on Sunday. At the times where he stopped a servar tirl had to remain at home all the Sunday in order to get the meals ready for the boarder who preached on Subath observance. Forme people, however, do not want their servants to enjoy the Subbath. When Lady Aberdeen urged that the surgestion, suring that this plan would certainly spull the girls.

OTHE CLERKS MEET.

Balf Boliday and Early Closing No.

Discussed.

A large and representative meeting of Peterborough's elerke met at the National Elevel last night, to discum the quantito' of taking steps to secure as half holiday each week during the summer miniths. During the proceedings the interests of our merchants was not for one moment lost night of, and owing to a difficulty in selectings of the sultable to all those of humans, no definate results could be surrised at in the half holiday matter. The early closing movement was also thoroughly discoussed but, as in the previous question, it was fought impossible to come to save antishectory conclusions without the co-uperation of the employers who will be waited upon by a committee of clerks with a 'view towards securing some improvement in the matter of business hours whereby amployees may take devantage of the summer meating, without industry to the interest of business men. The meeting then stillourched till next Bionday night week, at the same time and place.

to Receive $100 from South Monaghan-Paters Haintsinance Assured.

A special meeting of the County Council was held yesterday morning with Warden Elawthorne in the chair and the following members preschair and the following memors produced and — Massra. Pearce, Buck, Peck, Anderson, Eastland, Shaw, Fitsgerald, Forster, and Crowe. The Warden explained the object of the meeting by briefly stating that the case of Smith vs. the Counties of Northumberland and Durham, the Townships of South Moraghan and the County of Peterborough had come up for trial before a special sitting of the County Court on May 2nd, when the counsel for one of the defendents had raised the point that the sitting court had no jurisdiction in the case. The Judge had raised that the point was well taken and the case would now be taken, before the High Court on June 12th. After this disposition of the case had been made the defendents had held a consultation amongst themselves with the enject of ascertaining if the case could not be amicably settled.

After considerable discussion be-Northumberland and Diurham, the cably settled.

After considerable discussion between the lawyers present, the members of the Council, and the deputation from South (Biomaghan, Le matter was referred to the Road and Bridge Committee, the result of which the following resolution was passed, and was subsequently confirmed to the Council—

THE CONVEBSION OF JOHN L. SULLIVAN

THE GREAT SLUGGER BECOMES: A SINCERE CHRISTIAN.

He Mears Mr. Moody, and Experiences & Change of Beart-Ris Life Hencell to be Given I'p to the Conversion of

The announcement that John L. Sullivan, the svorid-renowned stugger, has been converted, will be received by the readers of the Times with comsiderable surprise. Mr. Sullivan in not unknown to the people of Peterboro', having visited the town some low years ago, when he put up at the Cavanagh Hotel, now the National. Details of this incident will probably be furnished both by Mr. Moody and Mr. Suilivan; but in the meantime a. summary of the life of the famous ex-pugnist will interest our readers. It will quickly appear that if a obaracter of this kind can be changed from darkness to light the Gospel is to-day exercising the same power over sinful hearts as in days past. L. Sullivan was born October 15th. 1856, in Buston, Agnerica, of Irish parents, both of whom were small and feeble people. He was well educated being sent from the primary school to the Commercial College, and themse to Boston College. His parents were Roman Catholics, and wished him to atudy fon the priesthood, but he had not the slightest wish to enter the church. His first work was in the plumbing trade. H4 afterwards became a tinemith, and then a mason. At the age of mineteen he drifted intethe occupation of a boxer, without ever taking a boxing lesson in his life. He gained 'the name of "Strong Hoy" by his extraordinary feats of lifting. A horse-car got off the track, and when six or eight med failed to lift it, he automished the crowd by litting it on himself. Whatever he undertook to do be always determined to succeed. He always looked at the bright side, end always had it in mind that he would be conqueror. He seem enalicaged the whose world to meet bim in the prise ring, and Hr. Sam Ray Alters the Landscape and get-Some Exercise.

Mr. Sant Ray left a Gladatone bag containing a hange shad, a package of grass seed, a dozen awning screws, a mew blade for the lawn mower and a hieyele pump in the outer room, and as he settled down is a big chair in the Editorial room of the Times; very mutically he said that if the cigars hadn't been changed since his last excursion to the Showdess House, he might try one well dampened with poda, if the editor of this g. f. j. would walk down.

might try one wall dampened with you, if the editor of this g. f. j. would walk down.

"There are some men," he went on, "who play golf that they may enjoy a good clear, but I am inclined to think that it might be well to reverse the order. Play your good cigar straight and hard first and then you may enjoy your golf."

"The last time you were shedding wisdom," and the Times' man, "you were demonstrating how easy it was so play golf."

"That was theory, nothing but the-eary," easd the verran curler, "and the difference between theory and practice in golf is the making of the game. It is very wide. I demonstrated that fact yesterday. A large gang of workman is now busy rearranging the land-soaps and returfing the trial that I blared over (he links. "Isn't it, though! said I, and then, relying on my caddie to select the proper clubs for me to use, I began to follow that ball around the links. I got my eyes full of soud again in the ditch and when the caddie was'nt the bunker. Fred Hall saw, it land on the other side and he advanced the opinion that if my stroke had been a little bit cleaner it would have been a dandy. I was on the turf aow and I gave a sod-raising exhibition such as the Auburn links had never seen, even if it was a sporty course. I broke two more clubs and just as I was waiting an opportunity to kick the ball unnoticed I happened to tap it fairly and away it went fully a hundred yards, landing right on the green near the first hole.

"That was a dandy," said Huston.

"Pretty fair," said I. I am just getting on to my clubs and the turf has bothered me some.

"Bothered you more than the man who follows you, said Burnham, as if he were making a joke. I jollied the tall into the hole with one stroke of the putter. The caddie ceased amiling and I felt that I had the game so well in hand that I might criticise Huston's play.

"You should waggle a bit more, my boy, said I, 'if you want to make an accurate swing with your club."

"Just drive off ahead of me," said Huston, 'and then I won't be in your way.

"This time I thit the hall an inshoot

"This time I bit the ball an inshoot and it skated away over to the side. The caddie's amile reappeared, and when I said sternly, 'Boy, what are you laughing atl' he replied, 'Nothing sir, nothing, air—er—that is, I was thinking, I was a-thinking how funny that fence looked over there.

"When I began to assault that ball with various kinds of clubs and just one kind of luck I didn't blame the hoy. There was the sound of a strong man blaspheming on the green, but no click of the well struck ball. It is so easy in the theory, you know, and so difficult in practice. I saw three people on with fieldglasses directed toward me and every time I raised an unfusually, large sod, if the wind was right, I heard sounds of mirth. The more determined I grew the less progress I made. I bunted and kicked that ball around, making a good stroke about every fortieth shot. Whenever I got near Huston be would say...

shot. Whenever I got near Huston he would say...
"Sporty course, old man, isn't it?
"Fine, I would say."
"The longer I followed that ball the smaller it seeme. It do get, and I could swear that at times it dodged my club just as I was about to strike it. It rolled into every ditch and it clung to the tuf, like a thing of life. There is no use of going into the barrowing details of the, trip of that ball stround the lights, and any one who chooses the links, and any one who chooses to follow my course may easily do so. At the ends of three boars I brought up at the starting point with only one club left and no temper to speak

A news paragraph says that the town of Orillis has a committee at work, whose duty it is to induce as many outsiders as possible to visit the town during the summer months. Farrie, its neighbor has just concluded to appoint a similiar committee for the same purpose. There, is good sense in the idea. In Peterborough a different system seems to prevail, many societies organizing excursions to outside points. The main object of this is to secure for the societies of "rake-off," out the tickets sold. The same "rake-off," out to be been sold. The same to be prevailed by the secured ow accouration tickets to Peterborough. This seems to be prevailed.

LOERS WERE PREPARED.

London, May 16. — The advices frum Johanne-burg are also probably connected, with a gaysterium deguntch received at Johanne-burg from Prejuria, um May 12, saying a special train fully equipped with their artillerymen, guns and a sharchlight appartus was being held in reediness at the capital of the Transwal. The sustement was then declared to be without significance, but to-day's news throws a more serious light on the movement, and it is cortain there will be agreat amention in London when the news of the arrests becomes generally known.

The afternoon newspapers late to-day print apocial despatches from Cape Town saying seven men have been talama to Pretoria. The Government of Cape Colony, it further appears is considering the matter secretly. The news has caused great excitement throughout South Africa.

The Reen Story.

The Burns Story.

The Symmard and Digger News the Burns's organ to London, has a despatch from Fratoria, which says that warrents were issued yesterday avaning by the Sinte Attorney and were axecuted at midnight. The despatch adds that a pict or rebellion is alleged to have been meturing for four months and that the accused, who are said to have been engaged by the fouth, African League had already emlisted twel thousand men.

The solicitude for the War Depart-

The solicitude for the War Department, the resentment of criticism of the generalis, and he exhitation and hyster cal anthusiasm over men a uniform generally which have prevailed in the United States since the outbreak of hossilities with Spain, are fostering a sentiment is similar to the spirit that has placed the inultity power supreme in France, dominating at civil rights and personal liberry and safety.

Immorality, corruption and Sckleness have been the bane of France and threats its ruis. The same conditions prevail in the American republic, with the addition of rule by the bases and the trust. The people of the United States have been taught for a lundred and trenty-five years to hate mulitary authority, yet now that country is parsung a policy secessitating the creation and mainten and prospects of comparatively little return accommerce. The power of the machine is as great as were, the strength of the capitalists is being concentrated, corruption is taken as a matter of course and has lost its power to appat, and the domestic lisken pace with the growth of popularity.

ORIGIN OF BONBONS.

Sugar Flums. Fastilies and Surned Almends Have a Sistery.

The most popular and most ancient of ionbons are sugar plums pastilies and burned allevance plums pastilies and form Roman times, for the Romans were the first to think of covering almonds with layers of sugar. The inventor was a comin Julius Dragatos, a noted confectioner, who belonged to the illustrious patrician family of Fablus. He made this great discovery, which has wrought to much damage to our tests for 80 centuries, in the year 177 B. C.

These bonbons, called dragast, after their inventor (dragees in French), remained the acquisite partillege of the family of Fablus. But at the birth or the marriage of one of that family a great distribution of dragast took place, as a sign of rejoicing. This custom is still observed by many of the nobility of Europe.

It is a sort of household joke that Mra. Jefferson considers nothing quite right unless it is furnished by one particular down town store. Of course the monthly bill is presty comprehensive. It runs from glove cleaning and repairing to point lace and brio-a-brac. The other day Mr. Jefferson was looking over the latest bill, when he suddenly called out: "Generava.

when he suddenly called out: "Genevieve, do you send the baby down to Shields' to be bathed too!"
"What nonsense! Of course not! Whatever makes you ask such an absurd question!" responded his wife.
"Oh, nothing, only in every bill I notice the constantly recurring item. 'One kid cleaned!"

Prayers Fer Rain.

"Shall we have prayer for rain, Thomes?" asked the vicar of the eleck during a protracted drought.

"Oh, sir, you do exactly as you please?"

"But don't you think it would be a good thing? Rain is heally wanted."

"You do as you please, sir. You'd better 'ave it if so be as you do want it."

"But, Thomas, you don't seem to realize the necessity for having the prayer!"

"Bless you, sir! You 'ave that ther prayer if you be so sot on it, but it won't rain till the moon do change."—Academy.

ORIGINATOR OF WIRE-LESS TELEGRAPHY.

MARCONI NOT THE INVENTOR AS IS SUPPOSED.

Electrician in an English Post-office Claim the Precedent, having communicated with the haland of Mail in 1898.

London, May 16.—It appears that Signor Marcoul is not, after all the inventor of wireless, telegraphy. The honor of prior discovery is claimed by no less at versonage than Mr. W. H. Preece, consulting enginess to the British Post office, who applies it to the maniloquent title of "Aetheric telegraphy." so that one must not be surprised hereafter to hear moople aximit. "Send me at ether," instead of "send us at a recent meeting of the Society of Aria, Mr. Peerce read a paper on his discovery. He stated that, ifter using the terms "wireless telegraphy" and "slensified the use of the ether, "Ar Preece without wires," in had adouted "aetheric telegraphy" and "slensified the use of the ether, "Mr. Preece without wires," in March 1895 when the calle connection the Island of Muff with the mainland backe drawn, communication was kent up by means of his system, and the seme system was in coeration, now from Lavernock, near Cardiff, to the Island of Ffstholm in the Bristo' Channel, Cartain Jackeyn, R.N., in December, 1895, commenced at Piymouth, working in the same direction, as Mr. Marconi, and he succeeded in getting Morse signals through some before he knew anything of Marconi, or his system, His records to the Admirality however, were confidential. Had they hear roublished he would have anticinated Mr. Marconi.

Uneless for Commerce.

There could be no question of the commercial value of the Marconi statem for light-ships, isolated: light-houses, shipping generally, and for naval and military curposes, butfor commercial mess, such as telegrand commercial mess, such as telegrand experiments from the Trance, it was at version towhere. A single cable in France could transmit 2500 words a minute without any difficulty. A single Marconi circuit could not respenit more than twenty words a minute.

bound hand and foot, utterly helpless in the presence of this curious, fatal brow of an Indian conjurer

"We know nothing and can learn nothing," he wont on to say, "of the herbethat enter into this mixtura. This poison mystery has long been kept a secret among the conjurers of those two tribes. They are always few in number and exercise the greatest caution in transmitting it to those who come after them. They require a long and severe training on the part of any book who feels inspired to enter the conjurers mystic circle. So severe is the preliminary training that few are able to pass through it successfully. As the brewing of these deadly mixtures is the conjurers chief cocupation they form a sort of college of poison.

"But," Dr. Melden continued, "there's still another branch of this Indian mystery quite as baffling as the one I've told. These tribus have wonderful powers of endurance and make great boasts of their running qualities. In this there is the fleroest professional rivalry—worse than anything among the theater folks—and when a certain back is outclassed he generally hunts ap the conjurer for a modified form of revesses. He doesn's care to kill his rival—is will setting him to have him crippled and placed out of the race. The conjurer is ready for botteness on that basis, too, and gives his caller a brew that makes short work of the objectionably rapid buck. Sometimes these drugs will no stiffen his limbs that he penotically bobbles about on a pair of wooden less. Altogether is the most curious poison mystery in the world, more than ever curious among tribs that know nothing at all of intoxicating beverages and never brew any sort of intoxicating stimulant."

Very closely fitted jackets in pale soft spring shades or in desper dyes for more general uses are lined with metalanes silk, some of them cut almost like a habit hodica, others with half fisting fronts, with coast backs out in deep position shape and fronts very much curved and cut away.

Very few of the beautiful clinging tolicis in princess or skirt and bodics styles in black lace are formed of the lace alona. Nearly all the Paris models combine black net, chiffen, grenadine, etamine barege or nuns' veiling with the lace draparies plaitings or flouncings.

SAD DROWNING ACCIDENT.

Listle Joseph Walt, of Ashburnham, Browned in the Stonaber

A said Strowning inceident occured at 2 o'clook yesterday afternoon, by which little Joe Walt, an eight-year old son of Mr. Cornelius Walt of Ashburnham, was the viotim. It appears that the unfortunate lad, inseisted by his brother, two years his senior, were enigaged in carrying firewood in their arms from the Dickman Company's yards on this side of the river, to their home in Ashburnham. In crossing the dam, the little fellow stumbled and fell into the water beneath, saids was carried over the elide. The elder lad, seeing his brother struggling in the wide current, at core sprang in after him, and succeeded in natching hold of the drowning lad, but the force of the water, which is very turbulent and high at this season of the year, toro him from his greap and be disappeared from view.

Edulje, the elder brother, was carried down about 100 yards, and finally reached shore said gave thealarm. Search was immediately instituted, but no trace of the unfortunate victim could be found.

Mr. Wall, the father, was sent for and every possible effort made to recover the help's without success. The heroic act of Eddie, is universally commended. Such sympathy is expressed for the parents in the great lass, which they have sustained.

BURLEIGH SCHEME BALKED

Lindsay Light and Power Company Pur chase Water Power.

chase Water Power.

The plan of transmitting light and power from Burleigh, Falls to Lindmy, by way of Peterborough, has been expected for stme time, and considerable uneasiness has accordingly prevailed amongst capitalists who own stock in the local Light and Power Company, as well as those owning the Lindeay Light and Power Company's plant. The weiginal idea was to generate power all Fealon Falls, and convey it to Lindiay, a distance of about 15 miles. By mone means this acheme fell through, and the Burleigh plan was taken up. Mr. Dulverwell, promoter of the scheme, came to town and succeeded in tacking a considerable number of contracts with our merchants for light aim' power, by promising reduced rease.

The Times has just been advised that the Lindiay Light and Power Company, has purchased from the Smith estate, their entire water power at Fennelos Falls, estimated at 2000 borne-power, and propose to convey the power, to Lindsay. This will probably settle the Barleigh Falls project, as it was Lindsay's lack of water power, that made such a scheme as the Burleigh one possible.

See him raise his driver high
For a careful, mighty try,
That will split the agure sky—
So he thinks.

See the club plow up the ground, Frozen ground; Hear the profune golfer roar, For he knows his blooming score Is increasing by just one more in that round.

See him make another atroke, Unreful stroke; See the signdar driver fall, See it hasten toward the ball, But—he a missed it, that is all; Holy smoke!

Did you hear the golfer's speech, Masty speech?

See him hit it this time—wough!

He's advanced it ten yards now,

But ten beats nothing, anyhow -;

(More rash speech.)

Now he takes another stick, Pretty stick; Strikes a violous, heavy blow, Club stops short—more earth, b know;

be him take his bag and go;
Cowardly trick!

See the atmosphere turn blue, Very blue; Hear him rend the ambient air: Smash his clubs and rant and swear That be'll quit the game for e'er; Wouldn't you?

See his caddle feer and grin, Cursed grin!
See the amurk upon his face
When they start to leave the place To murder him in such a case is no sin.

THE BODEGA LICENSE.

A Lettee From Mr. Totten Settles the Matter make the matter clear, however, we communicated with Mr. Totten, and received the following reply,— communicated with Mr. Tottes, and received the following reply,—

Sir,— In reply to your favor of yesterday, having reference to "permitta". I beg, to say that you do not use this word, as it is used in the Statute. A "permit," under the Statutes applies to the case of an applicant for a city tavern or shop license. After the applicant has been granted, if the applicant of the second fastalment. This "permit," to self thereunders units the jayment of the second fastalment. This "permit," has all the force of a license, and I should say the Board would be bound to deliver the form of license on the jayment, of the second instalment.

The case to which you'sefer is one of "extinsion," of the old freene for a period of three months. This is granted under section 21 of the Act. which provides that is cases where the Commissioners do not think fit or are unable to grant a new license to any party who has been license to any party who has been license during the proceeding three months, in the discrention of the Hoard. The granting of this extension is entirely in the discrention of the Commissioners, and does not san beyond a period of three remounts. If, however, the Brands see fit to grant the applicant a full license at the expiration of the extension," they may do no, but they cannot be compelled as to do.

THE C. P. R. MAKE A MOVE

In Response to an Appeal From the People of the North

A Party of Engineers Now at Work Making an Estimate of the Cost of the Prop Read - Prierborough Will Lose all the North Country Trade in the Event of This Read Bring Suilt.

For many years the people of the northern townships in Peterborough County, have pleaded for a railway connection. They have told us time and again; how they were abut off from the markets of the world, on account of not having any means of chipping their products, which comsists of farms produce, timber, live stock, adm minerals. It was only natural that they should look to Peterborough in their extremity, as Peterborough had everything to gain, by the construction of a railway, and thus quening up the immensa reservoirs of mature, with its untold wealth of timper and minerals. This journal has time and sgain pointed out the advantages that would accrue to the town, from the construction but, to no purpose. The Board of Trade and Town Council appear to regard the contter with indifference, feeling no doubt unfe in the belief that a road to the North could stand for the present, at least, until such times as the town got good and ready to take the matter up. .

Some two or three months are, the people of the Townships of Burleigh and Anstruther, through their Council made a move in another direction, They felt that there was so us; waite ing ont Peterborough to make a start in the matter, so the idea was ounceive ad of construction a road from Norwood, through Dummer, around the head of Stoney Lake, and touching the south western extremity of Japk's Lake, to Appley, and thence on to Coe Hill, where the road will connect! with the Barncroft anti Irondale line. Frome few, daystage the Times announced that if the Bodega, hed get a "permit," as was stated, it throughted to subther year's license. In this we here right, as will be seen by the following letter from Mr. Henry Tottem, head of the License Branch, Toronto. Mr. Armstrong, it turns out, does not bold at permit, but was given an "extention," which is a horse of another color. In order to make the matter clear, however, we line, who will, fti is mid, make a favorable report. It, is understood, how-

NO PARTY IN PARTY CURERA New York is taking active measure to abate the evil done by so-called places, it is illegal to practice medicine without a diploma, and this brings the faith-curers within reach of the law. It has been urged, says people that they have a right to re-ject aliquathic homeopathic, and other recognised schools of medicine if they recognized schools of medicine it they shoose, and to tries to fisth, prayer and so forth to cure appendicitie, a broken leg or other truffes to which fish is heir. There is some reason in this, and not much objection would be made to the plea if each faith-curer would confine his or her practice to or her own self. But like the Christian Scientists and other faddiata they are not content with this, but insisting on other people submitting to their noncenes that the Prima facis reply that, if other people are fools enough to listen to them the result is the penalty of their own free action is not sufficient because wives may be constrained to acts of folly by imperious husbands, and children are at the mercy of parents who ought to be either in a juil or a functic asylum. WOMEN IN POKER.

A Came That Changed Two Deal Friends into Deadly Buemics.

Friends into Deadly Beemies.
Said a man of my acquaintance recently:
"Do you know, I believe women would be the most desposate gamblers on earth if they dared!"
"Nonsease!" was my remark.
"H's not nonsease." he argued warmly.
"I've watched them, old and young, pretty and homely, light and dark, and even in the small games that their pocketbooks and their consciences allow them to play their excitement in winning or losing is symething servific."
And he caused me to do a little thinking on his side, though not for the world would I have admitted it to him.

I remembered a game of cards that caused the separation of two of the dearest and sweetest women in the world three years ago.

Of course it was colors.

est and sweetest women in the world three years ago.

Of course it was poker.

Peker seems to be played everywhere, or was at that time, and this disbotical cluster of "fulls," "straights." "two pairs," "threes of a kind," "finshes" and "fours" has caused more misery and made more miserly and made in the straight of the seem of this city than will ever be exploited!

There were five of them in a fashionable boarding home up town, and I, see a caller, made six.

Rain had ruined a matines proposition, these was nothing to read, and duliness descended.

"Lot's play poker," said him.

Two of the ladies had never played, but they were soon instructed. Then it was discovered that there were no "chips." But a descent upon the cook produced 800 or 400 white besite, which Mrs. O. teek charge of.

"I'll be banker," she said as she coupled the beans in lote of 100 each, "play 8 cans limit and you shall be broath."

ment.

"How awfully funny?" they entd.

"Why, we first like real gamblers."

I declined to join the game, believing that 65 in the joi was worth $30 in the "jack pot."

The game proceeded amid much many "Obe!" and "Ale!" and "Dear mes!" and remarks of that ages.

"Ahe!" and "Dear mee!" and remarks of that out.

"Why, isn't that a flush!"

"Why, your hand wasn't as good as mins. I think you're real mean."

The sounebody asked:

"What good are four queens!"

Whereupon all laid down their hands and the inquisitive one gathered in all there was in sight, with the remark:

"I didn't have four queens, but just wendered."

At length there was a battle royal on between Mrs. C. and one of the beginners. I happened to sit right behind the latter and my her hand.
It consisted of three aces and a pair of kings. Nothing but "four of a kind" kings. Nothing but "four of a kind" could best it.

Back and forth, back and forth, bet and "raise," more beta, more "raises," until the holder of the "full hand" had exhausted all her beans and clamored for more.

The banker gave her 100 more and made a memorandum of it.

The betting went on as fisrosly as before, I felt like giving the "full hand" lady a hint that she was betting her hand too high, but of course could not do so.

At less the banker "called" and threw her hand on the table.

"Four sines!"

At less the banks: "Alled" and threw her hand on the table.

"Four sixes!"
"Dear me!" sighed the loser. "I thought I'd surely win. What a lot I but! Looky it wasn't real money!"
Mrs. C. started at ther.
"What do you mean?"
"Why, it's looky they were only beams."
"You must be crasy, Mrs. B. The beams represent money. You owe me $6."
"Why, you're talking moneum."
Mrs. C. 'a lips grew very white.
"Do you mean to say," she asked, "that you didn't understand that we were playing for money!"
"Of course I didn't."
Mrs. C. swept the beams into a receptacie, dabbed the cards into the table drawer, cast a look of withering sooms upon her late opponent and stalked out of the room. The two women have not spoken to each other since.

Paris May 17 .- The Figure, continuing its summary and analysis of the svidence offered before the Court of Camation in the Dreyfus revision inquity, says it is in a position to give the exact composition of the secret dossier. This parkage, it searts, contained seven documents, each of which it proceeds to analyse. Regarding the forged letters attributed to Emperor William the paper declares that these exist in the domier, but were subsequently destroyed.

M. Hanotaux, former Minister of Foreign Affairs, on learning what was going on, protested against the use of these on the ground that they were forgeries, but General Efection, former Munister of War, refused to suppress them. M. Hanetaur's protest, according to The Figure, still exists at the War Office. (

EARL OF STRAFFORD'S DEATH

EARL OF STRAFFORD'S DEATH.

London, May 17.—Particulars regarding the death of the Earl of Strafford, who was married last December to Mrs. Famuel J. Colgate, of New York, and who was run over and killed by the Cambridge express yesterials evening at Pottarsbar, Hertfordshire while returning from Wortham Park, near Barnet, his country seat, seem to show that he either fainted and fell in front of the express or was swept off the platform by the protection portion of the express or was swept off the platform by the protection portion of the express or was swept off the platform by the protection portion of the express or was swept off the platform by the protection portion of the engine.

The Earl and Dometics had been residing at No. 3 St. James' square for weeks past, the Earl being engageth in the duties in commetton with the royal boundhold. He ented as appetial eighest ryment yesterday afternoon for the purpose of inspecting the arrangements made for the approaching visit of the Countess and Misself to Wortham Purk. The Earl returned to Pottersbar station at 6 s'elsest to catch the train bound for London. By was last seen leasurely puoping up and down the platform. The Cambridge express dashed through the station at 6.30 p.m. and a few minutes later the minogled remains of the Earl were found on the tracks about fifty yards outside the degot. No one may the accident. The body, was identified by a corrier and that letter "6" marked on his apparel. The family of the deceased was immediately advised, and the Countess, who attended the Queen's drawing-roum at Buckingham Palace yesterday, hurried to Pottersbur and stayed with the ramains at the railroad station hotel all night long, in company with the Earl'shalf santer Lady Susan Syng, his daughter Lady Susan Syng, his brother. The Countess is prostrated with grief.

The other section was secured by hotels. The other section was secured by a married couple with a very young child I never could understand why bables arem so bent on bringing their parenta to hotels, and this particular infant kept up an almost incessent wailing, day and night, which was painfully audible through the folding doors that separated the spartments. On the evening of the second day I ran in to change my clothes for dinner, and, as usual, the youngstee opposite began to howl. It was unpleasant, of course, but at the same time I was rather shocked to hear a man's voice growl out suddenly: "Confound it, Mary, is there no way you can shut it up?"

cternal, I'll fix it!' he shouted furiously 'Gimme that strap!' I glood heavens!' I said to myself. 'That's too much! I'll have to interfere!' Snatching up my coat, I stepped into the hall. The outer door of the next room was open and I had a clear view of the interior. A woman, holding a baby in her arms, was standing by the dresser. In the middle of the finor was a stout man in this shirt steeves, red and puffing. He was trying to close a trunk."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Mastering a Savage Dog.

Presching stories naturally predominate in the Rev. Dr. Newman Hall's "Autobiography," but here is one of secular out which is well worth quotation.

One day during Mr. Hall's pastorate of a church in Yorkshire he was chatting with a farmer about the best method of sulf defense when attacked by a savage dog. "Take off your flat and hold it in front of gpu," advised the farmer. "The dog will at one bite the rim. Then kick violently under your hat, and, the distance being exactly that of your leg, the toe of your boot will strike the lower jaw of the dog, who will st once go off in great pain."

The very next day Mr. Hall was crossing a field, when a flerce dog ran at him. There was no refuge near. He had no stick. He remembered his lesson. In an instant the dog rushed howling round the field, and the grand old dissenter, with a verst slight wound in his hat, ware his Seld, and the grand old dissenter, with a very slight wound in his hat, went his way.

JOHN L. SULLIVAN

THE GREAT SLUGGER BECOMES A SINCERE CHRISTIAN.

He Mears Mr. Moody, and Experiences a Change of Meart-Mis life Menceforth to be fiven to the Conversion of

The announcement that John L. Sullivan, the sworld-renowned slugger, has been converted, will be received by the readers of the Times with considerable surprise. Mr. Sullivan is not unknown to the people of Peterboro', having visited the town some few years ago, when he put up at the Hotel, now the National. Details of this incident will probably be furnished both by Mr. Mossly and Mr. Sullivan; but in the meantime a summary of the life of the famous ex-pugilist will interest our readers. It will quickly appear that if a character of this kind can be changed from darkness to light the Gospel is to-day exercising the same power over sinful hearts as in days past. John L. Sullivan was born October 15th, 1858, in Boston, Aguerica, of Irish parents, both of whom were small and feeble people. He was well educated, being sent from the primary school to the Commercial College, and thence to Boston College. His parents were Roman Catholics, and wished him to atudy for the priesthood, but he had not the alightest wish to enter the church. His first work was in the plumbing trade. H4 afterwards came a tinsmith, and then a mason. At the age of nineteen he drifted into the occupation of a boxer, without ever taking a boxing lesson in his life. He gained the name of "Strong Boy" by hist extraordinary feats of lifting horse-car got off the track, and when six or eight most failed to lift it, he astonished the crowd by lifting it on himself. Whatever he undertook to do he always determined to succeed. He always looked at the bright side, and always had it in mind that he would be conqueror. He soon challenged the whole world to meet challenged the whole world to meet bim in the prime ring, and he repidly became the sensational character in the sporting world. He came to England in Uctober, 1887. His object, as he says, was "Maney, glory and revenge." Thousands of excited people were waiting to cheer him at the leading stage. The crush was so great that a body-guard had to be formed to clear the road to the Grand Hotel. "I had the distinction," says he, "of having interrupted the ordinary traffic both in Lundon and Liverpool. The crowd that followed me through the streets was described as a "multitude!"

At Crewe station the crowd was so sunious to see the great "Knock-Out" that many climbed the roof of the railway carriage. This was repeated at Rugby and Willesden, and fully five thousand people assembled at Euston. Amongst these was Jem Mace, father of Alfred Mace, the evangelist, who preaches with some esteem amongst the "Strict Brethren" in England.

The pressure was so great that Sul-

England.

The pressure was so great that Sultivan jumped into the first carriage outside Euston Station which was accessable. So many of the crowd entered it that the bottom fell out, and Sultivan, to his astonishment, discovered that it was a funeral coach? It idid not take him long to seek the brougham which was waiting for him Such is the mania of the British public for what is called "aport," that this here of many degrading prise fights became for months the rage of London, and, indeed, of the whole I nited Kingdom. Returning to America, Sultivan was attacked with fearful sickness. He says.—"I had typhoid fever, gastric fever, inflammation of the bowels, heart trouble, and liver camplaint all combined." He was now just 31 years of age. He was given just 31 years of age. the security of the bowels, heart trouble, and liver complaint all combined." He was now just 31 years of age. He was given up by two doctors. After recovering he was a research and thrown into jail for breaking the laws of the state of Mississippi by having engaged in puglism. He was fined and had to pay heavy costs. Two years ago Sultivan was a cardidate for the affice of mayori of Boston. His election address was a curiusity, and not without touches of tendersteen. He said that anybody who tried to bribe him would be "An ambulance case." He would find places for children to play in. "I am no electalist; I have handled millions of dollars in my time, but it makes me tired to see the city equality millions on paths for horseback and bicycle riding and hollering "Awarchy!" If a man asks for land that children can have fun on. If I am ever mayor of Buston, my mottos will be—Treat the poor right; give the dog a chance; tax the man that can afford to pay; help the poor women and girin that will be the mothers of the next crop of citizens; more the thisves; do everything in the open." Doring the leet few years John L. Eullivan has varied his occupations, taking to acting and tavera-keeping. But, ad might be expected, drinking and dissipation led to failure ofsbeeth has repunied of his carner. The great change of heart, which alone can bring peace, health and happinens, has come to him also. The hard-hearted callourness of practiced gamblers is proved by the fact that betting mas are at this moment thying other on the candurance of Bullivan's convertion, seems was in the mouths.

MOLLY BAWN.

BY THE DUCHESS.

The funeral is to be on Thursday, and this is Tuesday, so Mr. Huscarlet writes, and adds that, by axpress desure of Mr. Amberst, the will is to be opened and read immediately after the ituneral, before all those who speat last autumn in his house. "Your presence," writes the attorney, "is particularly desired."

In the afternoon Lady Stafford drops in, laden as usual with goiden grain, like the Argony, in the shape of cakes and sweetments for the children, who look upon her with much reversnoes in the light of a modern and much improved Santa Claus.

"I see you have heard of your grandfather's death, by your face," ahe may gravely. "Elere, children," through the light of a modern and much improved Santa Claus.

REDISTRIBUTION BILL

SIR WILFRID LAURIER INTRO-DUCED THE MEASURE.

Prevene in humagration.

Ottawa, filey 19.—Sir Wilfrid Lauriar in the House to-day, in the alseence of Mr. Mulock, introduced the redistribution bill. He said that, the biject in view was not/ot make total redistributation. All that was wanted was to remove glaring obstacles which had been thrown in the way of popular government in 1882. He said the principle of the bill was that the municipal county, organizations which had been thrown in the way of popular government in 1882. He said the principle of the bill was that the municipal county, organizations was to be the base of representations.

Be bited the speech of Sir John Milectonald in 1872, laying down the principle. He agreed with that. Sir John mover expressed different views. The country would favor to go back to these principles That was what the Government intended doing though the most glaring violations were only to be removed. It would be well to set down this principle now before it becomes obligatory to redistribution, as it would be after the orbital to set down this principle now before it becomes obligatory to redistribution, as it would be after the orbital to leet one freember it should be included in an adjoining county, and not cut in pleess and put in with two or three vidings.

The bill therefore mitoptest county boulodary lined, and whenever it was necessary to distribute a county into ridings, them that would be divided into four electorate distriction and authority.

Throw judges of Ontario would make the wide fibration of Theorems.

electorate districts and return four members.

Three judges of Ontario would make the redistribution is? Toronto and other confices of Ontario.

A clause was added that the bill would not come into force until after the expiration of the present Parilament, but the work of redistribution would go in at once. In Quefice it was only intended to place back those parishes to counties to which they belonged.

Relief Sent to Sufferers Obtaine, 883y 19.—The attention of the Department of Interior has been called to the statement (made by the Huthon Bap) Company's imprecent Casaiar, British; Columbia, and the Prevenient Grammonth ament at the Huthon Rey Company's inspector at Cassiar, British Columbia, and the Provisional Government's agent at Glessors, to the effect that about 400 persons, many of whom are Americans, were in a state of destitution and mickness ou the Laird and Desse river and Dasse Lake, caused in a great measure by exposure and starvetion; and he general ware suffering very greatly. These people were overtaken by the winter in undeprocing to reach the Yukon and their supplies became axhausted. It is believed they were best in by the obstacles to travel in the uninhabitated country through which they had to pass, having gone by Edmonton. Northwest Territory and were usebled to proceed.

As the rejutit instant trip anthematic, having first been promudgated, by Premier Gemin, of British Columbia, the Department of the Interfor has immediately taken steps to make entarrangement with the Hudson's By Co., by which supplies about he mant by attents in up the Stickine river to Telegraph Creek, and therice by packtuan. These supplies are going forward as fast as possible (so relieve the distress.

Immigration Doubled.

In the Agricultural Committee this morning, life, Smart, Deputy Minister of the Interior, said the prospects of British immigration were bright. He described the standing of the Loukhobows and Galisham, and said the bonns paid to steamhip agents for Galisham was, $6 is head study will be discontinued after June, until the Governm at is estimated that their further immigration is desirable. The Government has done good work among the Finlanders, but it was feared their action would induce the Russian Government to prohibit further alan Government to prohibit further immigration to Cauada. Immigration to Canada this year shows 9,810, as tigning 5,200 last year.

ARE THEY BURGLARS?

The Trie of Trampe in Castedy Here are Suspected.

Bowgannville, Ont., May 19.—Opinion here respecting the tramps under arrest at Peterborough is that they had nothing to do swith the Standard Hank burgarly here on caturday morating last, bull that they are possibly the burglars who diperated in at number of blusin as places in the village of Orono, 8 miles distart some time during the (Wethnesday night previous. The places entered were J. Giffinan's drug store, the front of which was forced open and some small change from the till and thetelegraph company's funds taken, amounting is all to about six dollars.

SIGNALLERS STRIKE ON AN INDIAN RAILWAY.

nine Plot to Incite Biscord between Employers and Employers—The Government fides with the Railway Company. Humbay, May 19.—The labor movement in India, in devaloping in antartling malmer. The signaliers of the Great Indian Peninaula Railway, numbering several hubdreds, have struck at forty-eight hours' notice, and have made the following demands—An eight-hour day, a month's holiday annually, residences at nominal rent, the about ion of qualifying examinations, abnual rises of wages regardless of abbitty, and second-class passes on the railway.

toom, abbitist, and second-class passes on the rativaly.

The majority of the men being Brahmina, they object to natives of other castes bring promoted over them.

The company is providing temporary signallers at important centres, and the smaller stations will probably be closest.

The signatters remained at work till the European mail express passed-through, saying that they were desirous of preserving the good opinion of Englishmens.

The strike is mow believed to have been the result of a plot against the Government on the part of brahmina at Pouna.

The Government is tacking the railway company, to which it has lent the services of many signatiers. These are all armed.

At Kurrachoo, the principle acaport town of Sinde, the dispatch adds, there were 64 deaths peatured y from cholers.

CHINA BUES TO JAPAN.

CRINA SUES TO JAPAN.

Tokio, Japan, May 19.—Nearly all the Tokio journals give publicity to a jumpor to the effect that China has approached the Japanese Government with a request for aid to get Germany out of Shuh-Jung.

The following despatch has leen received ty local Bhanathrian from Chinandu, the provincial capital of Shan hung.—A large force of Germans went ploud ten days ago to the village, of Kunchischpang, in the Lamahan hills near Kiao Chou, and forcibly, exceed the manufathants. When this had been done, the Germans et firs to a part of the village and then left; the place. Another force of Germans move in Jish Chen demanding the person of Ole Bauh Lin Ts., who is charged with having insulted a Roman priset.

WERE NOT BRITISH OFFICERS. WERE NOT BRITISH OFFICERS.

Zamdon, May 19.—In the House of Commons to-day the Scretary of Sinte, for the Colonies, Mr. Joseph; Chamberlain, gave the name and the dentity of the men arrested at Johannessburg. All of the mexcepting Tremlett and Frien, were former non-commissioned officer sin the British army. He added that President Kruger had informed the British agent at Pretorn that there was officers, and that in any case the incident would not be allowed to disturb the friendly relations existing. (Cheors.)

DIED AT VERNONVILLE.

lev. M. J. Caluan, of the Diorese of Pre borough, Passes Away Shortly After Ar-

Rev. Michael J. Calners of the airear of Peterborough, died last event ng at his mother's residence Vernoce rille. County of Northarmberland.

Fasher Calnam, was born at Vernomville, August 1st, 1867. He studied af St. Jerome's College, Berlin, and made his theological course at the Grand, Seminary, Montreal. He was ordained Sept., 24th, 1895, ht Grafton, .. tive parish, by his Lordship Bishop ing for about a year and he was placed on the Cathedral staff for a isne. In the fall of 1896, he was advised by his physicans to scak more favorable climmate and in beginning of January following, he went to Colorado, these to New Mexo and Southern, California. He seem ed for a time to improve, but the improvement was not permanent and he returned to Vernonville, only two weeks ago, that he might die at home.

Father Cainan was a young man of rare ability and promise, and had gained a host of friends among his fellow students shil brother priests,

Mr. W. J. Francia, instructor of the PuBlic Library strawing class, was agreeably surprised at his residence on Dennistoun-ave., by the members of the class on Thursday evening. Mr. P. Gillespis read an address expressive of their highe appreciation of his character and ability, and at an approache moment Mr. C. D. Mathias handed Mr. Francis a valuode inkstand, and to his son, Edward, a silver mug. Mr. Francis, though taken by surprise, mails a complimentary by surprise, made a complimentary speech in reply. He thanked the class for their attention; and industry, during the season's work, some members might have done better, but, every-thing ordeidered, he was quite satis-fied with the results of, the term."

As Accident.

Mir. Harry Nash, an employe of the Gorge Matthews Co., met with a slight accident year-day morning about 8 o'clock. Nash was engaged in aboving along the dead hogs on the carriers, when one of the pulleys jumped the track, causing the hog and pulley to fall downsom him. He was somewhat cut up around the head but after Dr. Spott had dressed the wound he was able to continue his work. wound work.

The r mains of the late Dr. John Charke, town physician, who died Ap-ril 12th last, and those of his father, the inter John Clarke, of Asthurmam, the inter John Clarke, of Asiduruman, were taken to Toronto on: Thurmday, Mr. Clarke Sr., died on Sept. 11th 1877, at the age of 56 years, and his the interest have lain in the cemetery her 23 years. The bodien were taken tia C. P. R., Mr. A. R. Clarke accompanying, and placed in the amily glot in the allowat Pleasant c metery.

The burgiar scare seems to have reached all the outside foams, even to Petertorough. Before the recent work of protessional cracksmen the bank clerk had some peace of mind. When the bank closed in the afternoon he was free to do the society round. Now, however, he is troubled. He has to keep his eye on the safe. He shows his anxiety in his face. The time locks and steel sors need to be watched. As an instance, of the scare, it might be mentioned that a Guelph paper states that in the Bank of Commerce in that city a hole has been merce in that city a hoje has been cut in the ceiting floking alown on the vault door. The cierks, who alees upstairs, have both been armed.

THE MAEF-HOLIDAY QUESTION. To the Editor of the Times

To the Edator of the Times,

Dear Sâr,— Having h and , the "prus and "cons" of this much debated question, allow m—a disinterested party to wir my views. On: writer objects to the hif-holiday, because he shews that Tu siday is the only day on which it could be granted, as it Tuestay was oil etionable. I thinkt from suggest a parac st for both merchants and clerks, and at the same time, one that will enchance the grouperley of the town and pe a convenience for all in both rown and econtry. Let our impriest days is on Tuesday. Thursday and Saturday, instead of Wesin aday and Saturday, instead of Wesin aday and Saturday. By that means a less stock of perishable supplies used to be laid in at one time, and thereby, be fresher, and the business would be igenerally more diffused over the week and not congested so much as it is move our Saturdays. The trainings of the market gurdsners and others ludiced, all would benefit materially from the change. Undersuch out in cleasing the stores for a half holiday on Wednesdays, and coming as it these half way between the Saturdays, it would be no difficulty in closing the stores for a half holiday on Wednesdays, and coming as it these half way between the Saturdays, it would be manifestly the best day for that purpose. Then again by thus lightening the worle for Estarday, it would be manifestly the best day for that purpose. Then again by thus lightening the worle for Estarday, it would be made, that I know of, have adopted those days for market days and there by eachiling themselves and patername of solving a difficult problem.

In all times and among all people beauty and love are associated. We all believe that Eve was beautiful.

Esther found favor because of her cominess. Love and jealoney caused by Helen of Troy made historic trouble for two nationa. Nobody ever conceived an ugly Juliet. Heroines of romance are always beautiful.

always beauiful.

Ideas of beauty differ but the one sort of loviiness that all agree upon is the beauty of health. No matter what her features, no sickly woman one be stractive. Sallow skin, sunken cheeks, pimply face, hollow eyes, lifeless lip—there are repellant. And they can nearly always be traced to the one cause—womanly weakness or disease. Almost all the ill of womankind are cured if you put the feminine organism into healthy, vigorous sondition. All sickness of women seems to involve these delicate organs and so ne matter what the symptoms may be it is best to look there for the real trouble.
All such disorders are completely and permanently cured by Dr. Pierce's Pavorite Prescription. It is designed for just this one thing and is the only preparation of the sort produced by a regularly graduated physician — a skilled

HUMOR IN THE SMALL "ADS."

Fanny Things Found In the Rr-change Columns In Chicago.

Framy Things Found in the Rechange Columns in Chicago.

There is more than one way of getting rid of some article you don't want and getting hold of councthing you really need, or think you need, which is the same thing. If a man owns a dog and hankers for a watch, he doesn'b have to sell the enimal and then use the money in purchasing the timeptees. That was the way it was done years age, but the "For sale or exchange" column in the Sunday newspaper has changed the method of operation. Planos are exchanged for sealskine and jewelry. Books are taken in trade for eliverware for the table and harneses. Sign painting goes for clothes and sesson raphy for bicycles. One young woman advertises, "First class teacher, with best of references, will give stage or society dancing lessons for dry goods, shoes of anything useful." Another person says, "Opale or amethysis for silverware, typewriter or hardware." A laundress who wants to learn to play the piano says, "Wantsd—Plano lessons in exchange for laundry work, or what have you?"

Apparently many of these traders are willing to take nearly snything of value and, of course, each one expects to get the better of the bargain. There must often be heart burnings and many ead thoughts when the man who has traded an Angore out for dental work finds that his toeth have been filled with plumber's solder, of the woman who has exchanged a Persian rug for an alarm clock discovers that the timepiece runs only on Thursday afternoons and then strikes nothing but 33.

One enterprising individual advertises, "Best Franch conversation in exchange for each or colid goods." It may be eath that there are many persons who would also like to frade large bunches of "best English conversation" for cheese sandwickes or an old pair of pants.

A family with lote of board, but a houseful of leaky pipes, wants to "exchange good board for plumbing; walking distance," and a man with a large wardrobe, but nothing to hunt with, wants "up to date gun for winter suit, No. 48," A hotel man will if the fur

PALM VARIETIES OF CUBA.

Not only is the climate of Cuba favorable to the planting of crops whonever the farmer chooses to plant them and the lands so rich that no fertilitation is ever required, but nature seems to have, with a beneficent hand, reared many strange trees and plants to supply the wants of man without the necessity of his planting them himself. First among these are the palms, some 36 varieties of which adorable fields of Cuba, giving shade, food and life. At the head of these stands the royal palm.

the fields of Cubs, giving shade, food and life. At the head of these stands the royal palm.

The royal palm consists of a tall, straight trunk of a very fibrous nature and supports a cluster of pinnsted leaves like a bunch of plumes on a long stick. The leaves are large and leathery. These leaves continue to grow from the center to a great length. When the leaves cannot grow any more, they drop at the ground from the bottom of the cluster, thus making room for the new ones which are always coming out of the center. It also yields in the proper season yellow flowers. The fruit cannot be eaten.

The stem of the long leaves is peculiar. It is semicircular and embraces the trunk of the tree and holds the leaf in place until it withers and drops to the ground. It resembles a thin board and is often of great size, and it has a number of uses. The trunk of the tree is without any bark, and its center is very porous, increasing in density toward the outer surface. From the hard outer shell of the trunk canes are made. The bud or roof of the center spre, from which the leaves grow, consists of a tender substance burled deep down within the cluster of the green leaves and forms a very palatable food either in the raw state or cooked as a vegentled. It is also made into a preserve with sugar.

The royal palm is one of the most common of all the trees in Cuba. It is most with everywhere, and in the center of the mon of all the trees in Cuba. It is meet with everywhere, and in the center of the broad pasture lands it often stands alone. Bordering the cultivated fields of rich planters, it forms shade avenues which lead to the dwellings.—Scientific Chronicle.

Laundry In "Sonk."

Laundry In "Senk."

One of the most curious ways of raising ready money practiced by the impecunious is the hypothecation of solide linen. The bankers are the Chinese laundrymen, whose places are so numerously scattered over the city. When a needy individual has so other collateral to put up for a short loan, he finds in John a friend in need, who is always ready to make an advance on a bundle of shirts, collars or cuffs. Very often the loan almost equals the value of the security, but John shrewdly reasons that his customer will let other claims go by default before he will forfeit the shirts and collars so necessary in making a presentable appearance.

The custom of making use of the laundryman as an "uncle" is said to have originated in San Francisco and was brought eastward by returning travelers from the Pacific slops. — Philadelphia Record:

Fleas in Frankfert.

It is fies time in Frankfert. The hot sun has brought out the little peats by the million. The man who can take a walk out in Frankfort and go home without insect company is the marvel of the household. The sand of the promenade surrounding the town is alive with fleas, and, while the persons who drink the hear of Frankfort do not seem to mind the little peats, abstainers, and especially women, are driven frantic. In hotels of the best order I have seem fleas so thick that from one's chair one could watch them skipping about the flour.—German Letter, Chicago Record.

porthern townships in Peterborough County, have pleaded for a railway from the markets of the world, on count of not having any means of hipping their products, which consists of farms produce, timber. live stock, adm minerals. It was only natural that they should look to Peterborough in their extremity, as Peterborough had everything to gain, by thus openfor up the immense reservoirs of pature, with its untold wealth of timber and minerals. This journal has time and again pointed out the advantages that would accrue to the to no purpose. The Board of Trade and Town Council, appear to regard the natter with indifference feeling no doubt unfe in the belief that a road o the North could stand for the present, at least, until such times se the town got good and ready to take the metter up.

Some two or three months ago, the people of the Townships of Burleigh and Amstruther, through their Council made a move in another direction. They felt that there was no use waiting on Peterborough to make a start In the matter, so the idea was compelyed of constructing a road from Norwood, through Dummer, around the bead of Stoney Lake, and touching the south western extremity of Jeck's Talke: to Ausley, and thence on to Coe Hill, where the road will connect with the Barneroft and Irondale line Such a line would open up an immence auti practically new district. The Conneil sent a strongly-worded appeal to the authorities of the Canadfan Pacific Railway, and received a very encouraging reply from the nent to staff of engineers over the line, who will, ft is mid, make a favorable report. It me understood, however, that as the line will be prac-Made of Flameliette, any size, intest styles, full front roll collar. Toke, collar and outh trimmed with braid, Watters ack, full belt of same material, lined and arranted to fit. Fully Guaranteed. For are asked to take the matter up and to secure the required subsidy.

The people of the back country, are apparently determined to have a road, and if Peterborough won't belo them to ket ft, they will look lelve be seen, whether or not, our people will make a move, to have the like commence here fastend of Norwood. If they let Norwood get the plum, then we say good-bye to aff hope of future greatness, so far as this town is concerned.

Increase of pay.

The postoffice was besieged by business men this morning, who demanded their letters. M. Mougeot has arranged for a delivery this afterspon. The mortage is being fitter by clerks who have been placed at the disposal of the post-beffice authoritie by the big commarcial houses and banks. They are under the direction of auxiliary sorters. The mail will then be delivered by soldiers conducted by policemen. The absence of the regular mail delivery has caused great! disturbance in business circles.

Her Idea of Worth.

A Canadian minister had just married a couple. The registers were signed, and nothing remained but the giving and taking of the fee. The bridegroom, a strapping young fellow, asked, "How much is it?"

The parson glanced at the smiling bride and slyly answered. Whatever you think and slyly answered. "Whatever you trink it's worth."

Now, it should have been worth a good deal, for the girl was young and pretty. "I reckon it's worth about 50 cents," said the swain, holding out two quarters. The clergynan looked blankly as the coins, then turned to the fair one. "I'll leave it to you, madam," he said. "What do you think it's worth?"
What did this young and blushing bride do? She reached out, took the coins, handed one quarter to the minister and put the other into her pocket.
"A trifty wife," said the Canadian with a sigh, "is her husband's crown."—San Francisco Wave.

Danger of Piane Fractice.

Dr. Wastsold, says Le Journal d'Hygiene, thinks that the chloroses and neuroses from which so many young girls suffer may be largely attributed to the abuse of the piane. It is necessary, says the author, to abandon the deadly habit of compelling young girls to hammer an the keyboard before they are 15 or 16 years of age. Even at this age the exercise should be permitted only to those who are really talented and are possessed of a robust temperament.

temperament.

Dr. Waetzold shows that out of 1,000 young girls studying the piano before the age of 12 years 600 were afflicted with nervous troubles later on, while the number having affections of this kind was only 200 for those who commenced the study of the piano at a later age, and only 100 were affected among those who had never touched this instrument. The study of the violin produces even more disastrous results than those attributed to the plano.

The bereavelt wonion, with a vivid resolvention of her husband's defects, found it hard to share in the minister's hopes, although she wished to show her sense of his kindness. She unburdened herself thus "Weel. Dr. Boyd, you're may'be no vera instructive, but you re aye musing."

Joy Felt at Washington-Xatives Tired of the Straggle - Gen. Oth Cables a Favorable Report.

Washington, May 18.- Gen. Otis cables - Manile, May! 18 -- Adjutant-General, Washington - Representatives of the immurgent Cabinet and Aguinaldo, in the mountains 12 miles north of San Isldro, which was abandoned on the 15th inst., will send in commission to-morrow, to seek terms of peace. A sunjority of the force confronting MacArthur at San Fernando half retired to Tariac, tearing up two miles of the railway; this force has decreased to about 2,500. Scouting parties and detachments are moving to-day in various directions. Kobbe with his column is at Cascava, on Rio Grande. At great majority of the inhabitants of the provinces over which troops have moved are abxious for peace, and are supported by members of the insurgent Cabinet. The aspect of affairs at present is faviorable. (Signed). OTIS.

Great satisfaction was expressed by the War Department officials with the news. The belieft was expressed that the end of the insurrection was at hand. BIG STRIKE ON THE GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY

Four Thousand Trackmen to Quit Work at 7 O'clock AT THE HANDS OF THE BRITISH Another Telephone Company This Morning.

ABOUT EIGHTY BELONGING TO PETERBORO' DISTRICT.

The Men Say That the Road will be Completely Tied Up at the Expiration of a Couple of Days.

! The long-three ened strike of the Grand Trunk treemen is to begin this morning at seven o'clock, when between four and five thousand men will quit work. The men belonging to the Peterborough aection, visited, the Times office in a body yesterday in order to have their side of the case laid properly before the public. They said that they were fighting for their bread and butter; that the wages paid heretofere was not sufficient to provide the necessaries of life for thumselves and their families, and that they would commit no act of violence. They would assist in protecting the proparty of the Company, if such assistance was necessary. The men said that every trackman was a member of the United Brotherhood of Railway Brackman, and that the sympathy, and if necessary co-operation of the Engineers and Trainmen's Association was assured; that trains would probably move to-day as usual, but they could not continue. The entire Grand Trunk System, from Sarnia to Portland would be tied up unless the demands of the men were granted. It will be impossible they stated, to perate the read, as the risk would be too great.

I The trouble between the men and the Company has been brewing for months. The Binter copy Mr. F.Sa ndy the local agent, but he know nothing of the matter, and declined to speak. Mr. Bunton, the uptown representative of the Company, was not aware of a strike having been orby the Times. The following circulars are publishdered until told ed at the request of the trainmen. The first is from the uffice of the Executive of the society of United Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen.

tion Foreman, Strathroy, chairman; and Joseph Hagria, Foreman, Lindsay, Scoretary, of Etcondive Committees of G. E. B. Trackman, beg leave to let you brothers of the Orders of Engineers, Fireman, Conductors, Trainmen and Telegraphers know of the efforts we have been making to better our ofroundances on the G.T.B.

London; May 20.—Somally the week has been the busiest of the year. Queen Victoria's visit to London, gave it a chocessary enlivening. The ceressary of laying the foundation of the Scotch Kensington museum, proved a highly successful pageant, and gave the people here an opportunity to indulge in a great loyal demonstration, while the state bell on Thursday evening gathered all the highest in the land at Buckingham Pulace. It was a most hrillient futction. The Prince of Wales, the Duke and Duchessa of Coursught; Prince and Buckengt Pulace. Christian, the Duke and Duchessa of Fife, the Duke of Chamfidge, and the Crown Prince of Cham (Prince Chowfa Maha Vajiravudh), were among the guestle. Short Months-Some Cold Parts for Who Are Asked to Envest in the Now

This journal feels it altituty it owns to the community to insue a word of warning to those who are being sollies ited for subscriptions to the new Victoris Telephone Company, which has recently been organized in this district. While the capital etock is cally $20,000 on the start, it is pro used to Increase it from time to time as circumstances warrant. The promoters of the new company are lavish in their promises, and picture in glowing cold ors the large profits which will accree to their stockbolders from their investment. In Peterborough this same line of argument was used, and about $25,000 in cold cash was put up by our meschants and capitalists and forever lost. They were not only promised large dividends, but were led to believe that a much obsaper and more efficient service could be maintained. Expense ience proved how afterly fallacio were these promises. The Ontarie Total ephone Company, after about a year's existence went to the wall. It was a total loss to those unfortunates whin were foolish enough to put their money in it. The Company operated tomy enough to prove conclusively the

A "Well-Wisher" to the Town. Peterborough, May 20:

In an interesting paper recently published on the value of sugar as a food, as compared with fat, M. Auguste Chauvean maintains that its mutritive value is considerably higher than that deduced from its heat of combusten, and that the calculation that 0.716 pound of the former is equal to one pound of the latter is in many cases exceeded. The increase in relative nutritive value is due largely to the fact that sugar promotes assimilation of the proteids and reduces dismiliation, and the value of a food must necessarily depend not only upon the energy it is capable of supplying, but also on the indirect influence that it is capable of supplying, but also on the indirect influence that it is espable of exerting in the renewal and formation of animal tiesus. From whatever point of view the matter is regarded the superiority of sugar over fat as a food, whether for men at rest or at work, is very distinct.

Life on an East India There was never a finer ship affont than the East Indiaman from, say, 1800 down to the last of them, such as the East of Balcarra. Those old East Indiaman were exceedingly comfortable ship—liberally found and handsomely furnished. It is a question whether passengers grow more weary of the cosan after four months' salt water to Bombay and Caloutta than do travelers in these times after six days of the Atlantic or a little more than a month the Atlantic or a little more than a month to New Zealand. People of old, when they went to see in an Indiaman, knew what they had to expect. They danced, firted, sang, talked scandal, quarreled and made it up, and often the young people got engaged to be married. All the after part of the ship was a village full of people more or less good humored. —Clark Russell.

REDISTRIBUT.ON BILL AT OTTAWA.

SIR WILFRID LAURIER INTRO-DUCED THE MEASURE.

Travellers in the Klondike Region-Inerence in immigration.

Travellers in the Miondike Region—lineress in Jimmigration.

Ottawn, May 19.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier in the House to-day, in the absence of Mr. Mulock, introduced the redistribution to Ml. His said that the belief in viewi was motive make, total redistribution. All that was wanted was to remove glaring obstacles which had been thrown in the way of popular govarament in 1882.

He said the principle of the bill was that the monicipal country organizations was to be the lass of vepresentations.

He reted the speech of Sir John Miodomald in 1872, laying down the principle. He agreed with that. Sir John Smodomald in 1872, laying down the principle. He agreed with that. Sir John Smodomald in 1872, laying down the principle. He agreed with that. Sir John Sweet expressed different views. The country would favor to no lock to these principles. That was what the Government intended doing though the most glaring violations were only to be removed. It would be well to set down this principle now before it becomes obligatory to redistribution, as it would be after the e-mount for elect one thember it abould be included in an adjoining recountry and not cut in viewes and put in with two or three ridings.

The bill therefore adopted county househory lines, and who never it was necessary to distribute a country into ridings, then that would be done by judical discretion and anthority.

Three judges of Ontario would make the redistribution in Toronto would make the redistribution in Toronto electorate districts and return four members.

Three judges of Ontario would make the redistribution in Toronto and other couties of Ontario.

A clause was add d that the bill would not come into fore until after the exofration of the present Parliament, but the work of redistribution would go an at once.

To Onelle it was colventeded to nince back those parishes to counties to which they befored.

A HARD ROAD.

most difficult road to "The most difficult road to construct and, I believe, the most expensive w. n. road in the United States is that connuctive the mining towns of Silverton and Ouray, in the San Juan mining district of my state," said Mr. J. L. McNeil, a prominent Denver railway and mining men, at the Cochran lass night. "One please of this road is out into the side of a mountain of solid rock for a distance of seven miles, and to construct it four years of hard work were consumed. To begin with, there was absolutely no foothold from which a start outlid be made, but the only practical way of getting a road was by outting through mountains. The point selected for the start was 500 or 600 feet below the top of the stone cliff, and men were let down in baskets suspended by ropes, and from such shaky stations they drilled holes in the rock and filled them with charges of powder. After more than a month of blasting a ledge was cut into the rock and selected for the start was followed the work on, and a splendid road, 16 feet in width, was constructed along this precipitous ledge.

"The bed is solid rock and is used mostly by wagon trains and pack animals, carrying ores and supplies to and from the mining camps in the mountains. For a distance of more than 500 feet straight up is a wall of solid rock, and over the edge is a precipitous fall; of sevenal thousand feet, so that it is necessary for the owner to have a steady foothing while traveling this road. HONEY FOR CHILDREN.

Better Than Butter and Entere's Cure For the Candy Embjt.

For the Cansy mant.
It would be greatly for the health of the present generation if honey could at least be partially restored to its former place as a common article of dist, says What to a common article of diet, says What to East.

In many cases it may be a matter of real economy to lessen the butter bill by leating honey in part take its place. A pound of honey will go about as far as a pound of butter, but if both articles be of the best quality honey will cost the less of the two. Often a prime article of extraoted honey (equal to comb honey in every respect except appearance) can be obtained for half the price of butter or less.

We all know how children long for candy. This longing voices a need and is another evidence of the necessity of sugar in our diet.

Children should have all the honey seech mealtime that they will est. It is safer and will largely do away with the inordinate longing for candy and other evects.

inormass sought to the combined on the market in two forms—in the comb and attracted. "Etrained" honey, obtained by mashing or melting combe containing bees, pollen and honey, has rightly gone out of use. Extracted honey is simply honey thrown out of the comb in a machine called a honey extractor.

The silly stories sen from time to time in the papers about artificial combe being filled with glucose and deftly sailed over with a hot iron 'have not the elightest foundation in fact. For years there has been a standing offer by one whose financial standing is unquestioned of $1,000 for a single pound of comb honey made without the intervention of the bees. The offer a single pound of comb honey made with-out the intervention of the bess. The offer remains untaken and will probably always remain so, for the highest art of man can never compass such delicate workmanship as the skill of the bre accomplishes.

Hare Hunting:

Hare hunting is undoubtedly a more antique sport than the chase of the fox. Xenophon pursued it with delight in ancient Greece, and in Britain the hare was for consuries looked upon as a far more worthy quarry than the fox, which, until the time of Queen Elizabeth and even laive, was regarded as more vernin, Nicholas Cox, author of "The Gentleman's Recreation," a work on sport, published in 1677, writes thus enthusiastically: "As of all chases the hare makes the greatest pastime, so it is a great delight and estimation to see the craft of this little poor beast in her own self preservation." And it is to be admitted that in those shifts and expedients which afford to lovers of hounds the true delights of hunting the timid here is at least as fortile as any known beast of chase in any part of the world.

An Answer and a Comment.

The inquisitorial magisterial inquiries have elicited some humorous answers. An old sailor of 75, who reminded the magistrate that he had helped to work the ship that took Sir George Grey and Bishop Selwyn to England, was asked had he ever been in prison.

"Not to my knowledge," was the reply of the ancient mariner.

"Not to my knowledge," was the reply of the anotest mariner.

The court smiled again when in answer to the query whether he had ever described his wife the ancient mariner indignantly retorted, "I never had no occasion to,"

"Some do it without any occasion," dryly observed the magistrata.—London Chronicla.

The Seilly Islands.

A letter written by a New York artist who is painting there gives an enthusiastic description of the Scilly islands, which have so far been comparatively unknown to American tourists. Even the English have been slow in realising the charm of the islands so near their own shores, but it seems that this spring many artists have gone to "daffodil sind," and the winter exhibitions will probably be flooded with pictures of the islands. Deffodils have always grown in great profusion in the Scilly islands. February and March are the height of their blossoming time, and to quote the artist's letter:

"The whole land is a blasing see of brillant yellow daffodils surging up upon gray rooks and falling back in foam bursts of white narcissus. Even the tulip fields in Holland don's give such gargeous effects of color. You should stand on one of the little hills here and look across the sunlit fields if you want to see the loveliest things in the world. Tet sometimes I think the flower drifted land is more besutiful under moonlight than in the daylight, and daytime or nighttime the air is scented as though it blew stunight from Araby the blest."

Halifax, May 20.—P. A. Hamilton, former fy electrician of the official steamer Minia, made a proposal to the Board of Tratie last night for the soughtment of a wireless telegraph station of chile laland. He would equip the lighthouse on the island with Marcolini's appartus, so that it would be possible at all times to communicate with results animilarly equipped and warn them of their approach to the dangerous sandbars. At Whitch and, eighty-five miles from sould farland, singhty-five miles from sould farland, singhty-five miles from would be established, thus establishing communication with the mainland. This would obviate the necessity of laying a telegraph cable, which has frequently bean urged upon the Oanadkas Government, but which owing to the graph cost has never been seriously considered.

"Honesty is the Best Policy."

Never was a more pointed saying put into print, and yet to be honest only because it is policy is a poor kind of honesty. Better change "policy" to "prin-ciple" and the world will like you better. In the medical world there is one medicine honest for principle's sake-and that is Hood's Sarsaparilla.

It is the specific of the age for all blood troubles. The liver, kidneys and bowels are all toned up by its action as a cleaner and thus good health en-

Pay-Men sure of Metery. The strike on the Grapel Trunks ing by the Times is now on. This journal was the first n wapsper in Canada, to announce the strike, even cooping the Toronto papars. Yesterday the pay car arrived in Peterborough, and the estrikers were formally unsmissed. Thy were, however, given at channe to go, to work this morning, otherwise their cake is dough.

In the Middle Division slone between 1,000 and 1,800 men are out. All, the forem in have remained at work and are at their usual duties this morning.

In Toronto very f. we men are at work. At the hadquarters at flathourst etre t, the shantles are all deserted, and only one solitary, section man and fear forem in out of a force & about thirty-six remain. East of the station and/ in the western districts the story is the same, only the form at work.

Eight men shall a forman at the limin shtion were at work as usual. They are employed by thet mism station by the strike.

Not imponent not.

No inconvenience.

Mr. White, representing Supt. Jones, when a sea said that the strike would not inconvenience the road. tien Made Them Complex.

Even in the unhappy ages when prophe knew nothing of the best and its rejections on the country of the properties noted beauties found out the secret of preserving their loveliness by ablutionary side. Isabeau of Bararin heard that chickwood was good for the skin and had enormous decoctions brewell thereof and bashed in them daily. Hisman of Poitiers was another of the cleanly sequettes and plunged into a tub of raiswater every morning.

The eightsenth century beauties likewise believed in bathing, says Woman's Life, but they put all sorts of odd infusions into the water to improve the skin, such as the boullion in which wall had been bolled, waters distilled from the honey of tracted from roses, a preparation of almonds, melon jules, the milky juices of green barley and linesed distilled with Mexican haim dissolved by the yol's of sheets. These remarkable decortions were freely used by the ladies who surress the revolution.

Oncer Marie Antoinette made literally the revolution.

Queen Marie Antoinette made literall use of a "tub," putting into the water wild thyme leaves, marjoram and a little see sait.

Marie Cnetwertynoska, a Rusrian beauty who exercised great influence over Camp Alexander I, used to lathe in Malaga wina.

The Marcchale Davout, Princess Echanul, was at 85 renowned for her queenly carriage, superb eyes and beautiful colon, her skin being so white as to rival the anow of her abundant looks. She had never used anything but pure water on her face, and she always kept to a very simple diet, even when her table was londed with good cheer for her guests.

She remained equally attractive to her last hour, although in her youth she had been one of the pretitest women of her time. Her daughter, Mms. de Blocqueville, lived to be just such another white haired beauty and was noted in her uits and eleganoe.

Cremwell and England's Navy.
Under Cromwell England for the firsh time felt the power of a strong navy to build up a great nation, says Sammel Harden Church in The Atlantic. It is true that Quoen Elizabeth had repelled and destroyed the Spanish fleet, but she assembled her ships only to resist invasion, and her important maneuvers were on the defensive. Cromwell built the firsh fleet that England had yet seen created for the purpose of crushing her enemies and striking down the oppressors of free religion.
Spain, still aiming at universal contents. Cromwell and England's Navy.

spain, still aiming at universal sing bag, received her first staggering blow when Cromwell, daring to throw away the traditional policy which England had huyayast for four centuries, allied himself with France and made war on Spain. His emmines said then and for long afterward that he destroyed the balance of power in Emprope. But Cromwell cared nothing for political maxims when they stood in the pathway of that human liberty of which he was the champion. Holland sent out her fleets, more terrible than the old Spain-ha amade, but Cromwell's generals, seling on scaled orders penned by his own hand, beat the Dutch admirals and send that ships to the bottom.

In an interesting paper recently published on the value of sugar as a food, as compared with fas, M. Auguste Chauvenu maintains that its nutritive value is considerably higher than that deduced from its heat of combustion, and that the cal culation that 0.786 pound of the former is equal to one pound of the latter is in many cases exceeded. The increase in relativy nutritive value is due largely to the fi-de nutritive value is due largely to the fi-de-that sugar promotes assimilation of the proteids and reduces dissimilation, and the value of a food must necessarily de-pend not only upon the energy it is capa-ble of supplying, but also on the indirect influence that it is capable of exerting in the renewal and formation of animal tis-ups. From whatever point of view the matter is regarded the superiority of sug-ar over fat as a food, whether for meh at rest or at work, is very distinct

There was never a finer ship affect than the East Indiaman from, say, 1800 down to the last of them, such as the Earl of Balcarrea. Those old East Indiamen were exceedingly comfortable ships—liber. Typound and handsomely furnished. It is a question whether passengers grow measurery of the ocean after four months' said water to Bombay and Calcutta than detravalers in these times after six days of the Atlantic or a little more than a month to New Zealand. People of old, when they went to see in an Indiaman, knew what they had to expect. They finned, diried, sang, talked scandal, quarreled and made it up, and often the young pusple got engaged to be married. All the after part of the ship was a village full of people more or less good humored.—Clark Russell.

EDWIN BOOTH'S APOLOGY.

Dissevered His Errer.

During the early sixties, relates J. H. Rogers in the New York Times, I compiled rooms, or, to be strictly truthful, a room, in the old Studio building, on Tenth street. It swarmed with artists of all descriptions, and a more delightful set of good fellows never got together under the same roof. There was not a single discordant element, and the gatherings held from time to time in the different studios will remain with me among the most valued memories of a somewhat eventful life. On these occasions people from the outside world frequently dropped in; other artists, literary men of the Bohemian sort, with perhaps an actor or two on the off nights, all men whose presence gave an additional flavor to the miniture, until it came to be like the old "Century club punch," a joy to be remembered, and too subtle to be analyzed.

One evening Edwin Booth was present.

like the old "Century club pungs," a joy to be remembered, and too subtle to be analyzed.

One evening Edwin Booth was present and, finding the company congenial, made himself so agreeable that I was very sorry when an engagement took me away at a comparatively early hour. The next evening I dropped into the Century club for a little goasip and found Mr. Booth thera. He was the center of a group of men with whom I was on such terms of intimacy that I did not hesitate to join them. The usual greetings were passed until I came to Booth, when I received a look that went through me like cold steel. Supreme contempt was never so expressed before or since. Just one look, and then, without further notice, he turned his back on me and began to talk to the other members of the group. Of course there was nothing to be said, and I got away as soom as possible. Presently, however, I began to be angry. This is not simply a cent, thought I, but a premeditated insult. I became furious and was ready for an explosion then and there, but just at that time Launt Thompson came up and took me one side. "How in the name of common sense," then and there, but just at that time Launt Thompson came up and took me one side.

"How in the name of common sense," and he, "did you come to play a practical joke on Booth?" Now, of all disagreeable creatures, I detent most heartly the practical joke on Booth?" Now, of all disagreeable creatures, I detent most heartly the practical joke, a creature to be kicked out of any respectable community. I resented even the implication and refused to stoop so far as to deny that I had been guilty of such a thing, expressing in good set terms my opinion of those who believed it. It seemed, as it came out afterward, that during the previous evening's entertainmont, which took place in Thompson's studio, a man about town who had been dining heavily, thinking to get a joke on both of us, took the opportunity offered by my departure to play a shabby trick on Booth and throw the blame on me.

The upshot of the matter was that in a day or two came a note from Booth asking me to accept his box at the Winter Garden for a certain night and meet him in his dressing room on the left of the stage at the Winter Garden theater. On entering I found, to my surprise, all the members of the group that had witnessed the some at the club. Booth, who had just come off the stage and was in full costume, made an apology so handsome that I blushed as I received it and want away full of admiration for the man who knew so well what was due to himself and when the necessity came could make an apology so ample that it left the recipient in his debt.

The Pygrates.

The Pyguatea.

I lived two years near one of the pygusy settlements near the town of Dombi, in the remote Upper Kasai country. Their characteristics are clearly marked. They subsist solely by the chase. They never cultivate the soil at all. Those near me sold their game for farinaceous food to the dominant tribes. They say that they never did dig for food.

Before the big people came they got their food from game and various roots, yams and nuts in the bosh. They lived in the country before the big people (Bantu) came and destroyed most of their forefathers. Some of them were taken captive by the Bantu and kept to hunt for them; others took refuge in the great forcests. They are of very small stature, a man with a family being no larger than a 10-year-old boy.

I know one case where a girl's age, by incontestable record, was nearly $0, and I have her photograph, and she was positively not more than three feet in height. They have a distinct language, which is the same for all the entire country between Tanganytha and the west coast. It is a very gustural tongue, and the other natives rarely epeak it.—Spectator.

24TH OF MAY. low the day Will be Celebrated in Peter-

The people of Peterborough have no

The people of Peterborough have no need to feave town on the Queen's Birthday, as a first-class programme of amusements has been provided by the baseball and lacrouse clubs. In the morning at ten o'clock on the P.A.A.A. grounds the ball towars play the well-known Delawares, of Toronto, which team won the senior championship of the City last year. As the Peterboroughs have not been assen on the dumond for two years, and have some splendid material, the match should be well patronized in order that the boys may be given the encouragement necessary to keep them together and promote the sport in town.

encouragement necessary to keep them together and promote the sport in town.

Furing the progress of the match a foot race svill be run between Mesars. Archie Moore and Lou LeBar fart a valuable medal.

In the afternoon the Peterborough aentor iscrosse team plays the Hastings team on the P.A.A. grounds and the match should be one of the heat of the year. The Hastings twelve did not meet with a defeat last season, and during the summer went to Mador and defeated that team on its own grounds. This feat stamps the team as one of the best in the business, and they should give the Peterboroughs a hard fought game. The Hastings enthusiasts go even farther than this and claim that their team can win from the Peterboroughs. A big crowd is coming up from the willings, as arrangements have been made for a special trafin to take the visitors home at Sciock. The match starts at 3 p.m.

—Advertising will not work miracian. It will not make a badly managed business pay. It is not a substitute for careful buying, cash discounts, wise arrangements or effective organization. You must have the right article, purchased or manufactured to the best advantage, handled in the best way, offered at the right price, or advertising will prove a useless axpense. Organize your business so as to secure for the public the best that is going for the money fluy in the best market; get your cash discounts and all other advantages and—advertise in the Times! Can be most satisfactorily filled here. Our first reason for so stating is that the goods you are looking for, bright and crisp, are here. The prices you have to pay for worthy goods are small prices. We have a few very desirable lines of seasonable goods remaining from the R. H. Kells & Co's stock at most advantageous prices. Hosiery, Underwear, etc., come under this list, and not least important is the FACT that your monay is practical for your if Goods or Stude is not satisfactory.

THE STOCK YARD MATTER.

The Commissioners of the Town Trust in

Peck of Treable:

The Commissioners of the Town Trust, met yesterday afternoon, and considered the stock yards' matter. The resolution of the Town Council, requesting the Commissioners to cancel the lease to Mr. Kenneity, was read and re-read. The Commissioners were anxious to carry out the wishes of the Council, but were afraid of an action at law, by Mr. Kenneity, it they did so, as that 'g nutleman' had begun work inl good faith.

Mr. Davidson, spoke strongly against the cattle yard.

Mr. Moore was anxious to get the matter disposed of, with as little trouble as possible.

It was finally decided to, leave the matter over for a couple of days.

The Town Lots.

-At this time of the year if men would beat the carpet instead of beating a retreat their wives would think more of them.

-A certain editor in an obituary of a man who had died in the community, said: "A long procession followed the remains to their last resting place." Of course the family rushed to the newspaper office to have the error corrected. The editor exclaimed that he could not do tit until seven years back subscription the deceased owed had been paid.

-Any feeling instilled into the mind of the young femains with them through life. It is a good sign to see the schools preparing to fly the Old Union Jack on holidays and anniversaries of great events. We hope every school in the country that has not yet purchased a flag will do 10. Teachers, trustess, as well as enterprising oitisen, abould stir up this matter. There abould not be a single school throughout the country that has not a flag.

-Tweed News: Mr. Geo. H. Brown, G. T. R. Agent at Stirling, formarly Mr. Davidson, suggested that the Board give the Council a 21 years' lease, and then resign, as their usefulness would be gone.

Mr. Moore thought the Board would not be doin gtheir duty to the people, were such at proposition agreed to.

The matter finally dropped.

The statement made in the Times on Friday to the effect that Lindsay capitalists had purchased one-half the water power at Fenlon Falls is confirmed. The power, it is said, will be conveyed to Lindsay, and will probably kill the Burleigh scheme.

There was a very unusual incident or perhaps accident on the C. P. R., asys the Havelock Standard. A train load of cattle from Chicago was being sent to Montreal and when near Merrickville the conductor discovered that one of the cars was on fire. He quickly atopped the train and ail hands set to work to jump the cattle out of the burning car. It was a difficult job but they succeeded in doing it and then they ran the train on to the Burrit Rapids siding, cut off the blasing car and left it to burn up. The cattle, which were big steers from the western ranches, were pretty wild and not very easy tof manage but they were all safely corraled in a farmer's yard close by and superintendent Brady notified of the occurence. Four of the cattle died from their burns and one other was killed out of mercy. All the others were more or less injured and it is thought all of them will have to be killed at Montreal. Such a thing as a car of cattle on fire was never known or this part of the C. P. R. before and there are some peculiar positional about this. The cattle were going through in bond and the C. P. R. are lound to deliver the number of cattle they received. This will necessitate the sending forward of the dead bodies of the burned animals so that at the port of delivery the full number may be accounted for.

CHAT FROM THE SENATE AT OTTAWA

mend County Ealtway Matter.

Ottawn, May 23 .- The Sinate had a little talk-two little talks in factand the nit joined the Commons in an adjournment until Thursday.

The first talk was on a question raised by Mr. Wark, who is said to be the oldest degislator in the British Empire. He desired to discuss the question as to the glivision of the business as b-tween the Upper and Lower Houses, and he said—In/1868 a committee was appointed to con the subject. It is reported that as the principal business was Government business, more of it might be introbusiness, more of it might be intro-dured in the Senate, but it called atten-tion to the fact that dhe Ministers of the great spending departments must be in the Commons. Sir (John Mardon-ald had said that be puperted the see-sions would average 90 days; that had, however, been very much exceeded, thirty years after the committee had considered the matter was a time when the said of the seethrry years after the committee made considered the matter was a time when the subject was precessing. Least year the 2 mate did mothing for 36 days, during which 57 bills were introduced in the Commons. Less year the Senate was on the 63rd day of the mession, and with the exception of some attending to two amall Government (bills, it had nothing, though over 100 bills had been introduced in the Commons. These were knostly private bills and it was evident that promoters of private bills preferred introducing them in the Commons. He suggested the appointment of a committee with the power to decide in which House business should be introduced. He asked the Gpvernm nt is it had decided on any means by which the houses of Parliament could be more equally shirided between the two Houses.

24r. Mills' Repsy.

Mr. Mille' Reply.

Mr. Mills haid a word to say on Mr. Wark's continued activity and proceeded to remark that he had expressed the views of the Senate sal a whole. The matter disrussed by Mr. Wark, had received acuse attention at the bands of bims if and his colleagues this year and the year before This year owing to the absence of the Ministers at Washington, lew measures had to be introduced, and those mostly hall to be introduced, and those mostly hall to be introduced to the Commons. Last year a large portion of the measures had either affected in the Senate. This year Mr. Mills had introduced three bills in the Senate, one affecting health on public works had passed, the other two, affecting law courts, had been killed, and their fate was not juch as to encourage the introduction of bills into the Syste. He was not juch as to encourage the introduction of bills into the Syste. He was not juch as to encourage the introduction of bills into the Syste. He was not juch as to encourage the introduction of bills into the Syste. He was not juch as to encourage the introduction of bills into the Syste. He was not juch as to encourage the introduction of bills into the Syste. He was not juch as to encouraged, and their fate was not juch as to encourage the introduction of bills into the Syste. He was not juch as to encourage the introduction of bills into the Syste. He was not juch as to encourage the introduction of bills into the System and hope ductors the end of the semion that the Senators would see more clearly their scope of the measurest and passesgain upon them.

Private Bills.

As to private bills the Senate committee paid attention long ago to the wording, and not much to the principle. The House of Commons committees want desply into these matters and it would not redound to the credit of the Senate if the Commons receiving bills from them found, then amount of wash. Soundings which have been taken show the Paris to be resting more favorably, owing to the fact that she has been considerably lightered to continue as more favorably, owing to the fact that she has been considerably lightered to discharge its duties especially from that point. Unless, the female were turned into a debating slub it could not deport so much time to legislation as the Commons. Much of the Commons time was, taken as the continues for the fact that she has been considerably lighted the ship as the aveils movement of the Senate should not find fault with itself that holidays were su frequent.

TBAVEL BY AUTO-CAR IN NORTH AFRICA

REVOLUTION WILL OCCUB BY ITS INTRODUCTION.

Interesting Trip Taken by Two Belgium Through the Desert of the Great Could-

Through the Besert of the Great Couldment of Foreign Herms of Importance.

London, May 23.—It seems likely that trade in the deserts of North Africa is going to undergo a startling revolution. The long usravan of camels, with their tinkling bells and white-roosed drivers mus snockly become nothing but a poetic memory and live only in verse.

It is the autocar which is to effect this revolution, and the was has already been prepared by the advanturous tour of two Belgiam moliemen. Baron Pierre; and Baron Joseph de Crawh z. The tour leated three months, acil extended over vast treets of Northern Africa.

Baron Pierre is the winners of the great Bruss-is-fardennes-spa automobile race, and it was with the same vehicle, which he has called the 'Devastation,' that he undertook the journey into Africa. From Bruss-is-fardennes-spa automobile race, and it was with the same the brothers drove to Paria, and from there made their way through spain where they took ship for Afgiers.

They traversed the valleys and gueges of the Oved Djemms, and much their way to Sakkamodi, after a difficult climb of nearly twenty miles. At this point the real novelty of the attempt began. The brothers, as they encamped upon the heights c. the Tablat oans, were about to co what, no one had ever before utten sed—to enter the desert on a motor tar.

At Aumale, a large French military station, seventy-eight miles southeast from Algiers, the sount of the explorers horns produced a scarw among the native topulation. The mativer flocked out of their huts and escorted the auto-carists to the suth-orities, who welcomed them with every courtesy.

The return journey back to the coast was more adventurous At Bosephere.

corted the auto-carsats to the suthorities, who welcomed them with every courtesy.

The return journey back to the coast was more adventurous. At theseira the road was awag away by: at torrent, rising from the rains, and they were nearly projected over—a precipies.

Once they came to a river, but, but drove boldly into the flood. The footom was very rough, and the car, bumped from side to side; but affect a most perflow passage, being nearly weept away more then cace. They reached the other side in safety.

Their proudest achievement, however, was the crossing of a ridge; of the Atlas Mostitains, through wast, mow drifts, at the hight of the feet above the mealevel.

The grant success of this expedition should open the field for a great deal of kindred enterprise, and possibly in the future camels will be found only in the Zoological Gardons.

Selling Eggs by Weight.

Mr. MeMiliam's bill to fix the weight fig. McMiliam's bil to fix the weight of a duren eggs at one pound and a half per doesn, is sound in brinciple. The variation in the size of eggs has led legislators in the other countries. to regulate their sale by weight. Some people may laugh at the suggestion, but why it should atrice any one as lufflerplus that food in packages of varying weights should be sold according to weight is not very easy to understand, except the breach of rustom always does a semi more or less ridiculous at first. Like Daniel O'Connellabil, which provided that every quart udous at first. Like Daniel O'Connell's bill, which provided that every quart nottle should hold two plats, it has its justification in an economical fact and a principle of justice. A MASTER OF MAGIC.

TRICKS BY WHICH HOUDIN ASTOUND ED THE ARABS.

ne Instance When the Great Magician Extricated Simself From an Awkward Predicament by the Quickness of Mis Wit.

Quickness of Mis Wit.

To witness Houdin's first performance in Algiera the neighboring tribes were invited. The theater was speedily filled with them and the French officials, who attended in all their pomp and glory. Interpreters were scattered through the house in order to repeat Houdin's remarks to the natives in their own language. With true oriental dignity and gravity, the Arabs witnessed the first few tricks in stolld silence, but the taking of a huge cannon hall from a borvowed has arcused great excitement.

Then came the great tricks of the evening, especially prepared to assonish the Arabs.

By a wonderful power which I pos-Araba.

"By a wonderful power which I poscess," said Hondin, "I can deprive any man of his strength. I invite any one to prove my words."

On this being interpreted to the Araba, a tall, strong man stepped forward on the stage. Houdin hald in his hand a little iron box, and, balancing is carelessly on his little finger, he asked the Arab:
"Are you strong?"

"Yes," replied the man carelessly.
"Are you sure of always remaining so?"
"Always."

"Are you strong?"

"Yes," replied the man careleasly.

"Are you sure of always remaining so?"

"Always."

"Lift that box."

The Arab did so and asked contemptuously, "Is that all?"

"Wait," eaid Houdin, making a solemn gesture. "Now you are weaker than a woman. Try to lift that box again. "The Arab seized the handle and tugged again. He could not reles the box an inch from the Soor. After many attempts he paused for a moment to brace himself for a final effort. He seized the handle again, but shrieked aloud with pain, dropped on his kness, then, rising, threw his cloak round his fine to conceal his shame and rushed from the theater, leaving his compatriots stricken with fear. The trick was as simple as the result was startling. The box was placed on a powerful electro magnet, and the current being complete, no man on earth could have lifted it. An electric shock, sent at a signal by Houdin from behind the stage, was what caused the Arab to shriek and hurriedly retreat.

Before the excitement caused by this trick had subsided Houdin announced that he had a talisman which rendered him invulnerable, and he defied the best shot in Algiers to kill him. A marabout immediately agrang on the stage, exclaiming, "I want to kill you."

"Very well," said Houdin. "To make sure, put in a double charge of powder. Here's a wad. Take a bullet from this tray and mark it so you will know it again. Ram it into the pistol well."

"It is done."

"Now," said Houdin, "you say the pistol is a good one, and you're loaded it well; so kill ma."

"Yes," replied the marabout, "I will do that."

Houdin took a pear, stuck to a knife and walked a few pases in front of the well; so kill ma."

"Yes," replied the marabout, "I will do that."

Houdin took a pear, stuck it on a knife and walked a few passes in front of the Arab, and told him to aim at his heart. He fired, and the marked bullet was seen on the pear. After the powder and wad were rammed home, and while the Arab was marking the bullet. This tube was aloued at the lower end, and into this the Arab dropped the bullet. As he thrust the wad down with the marrod, the tube fitted anuly on to it, and was withdrawn with it, being polished to reaemble it. Houdin thus got possession of the marked ball, and all was then plais sailing.

On one occasion during his visit to Algers Houdin was placed in a very swkward position, from which he only extrested himself by his quick wittedness. He was the guest of an Arab obied, About Allem, and entertained his host and friends by a few tricks. One of the company was a marabout, who asserted that the speciators in Algiers had been merely duped by a vision. Houdin, however, produced the marabout's wastoh in his hand, and, on feeling his mah, the marabout found there a 5 franc piece. Convinced by this and other feats that Houdin was really a sorcerer, he challenged him to repeat his performance in the theater and produced two pistols. "You need not lear," maid the Arab, "since you know how to ward off bullets." Without loning his solf possession Houdin explained that his invalueability lay in a tallisman which was with his possession Houdin explained that his livelineability lay in a tallisman which was with his possession Houdin explained that his produced two pistols. Many of the newest yokes, guimpes and blouse fronts to wear under basque b dioes are made with minute tucks across the yoke or guimpe, a style very becoming to slender forms.

Very handsome costumes of vicuna, lightweight indies' cloth or soft hid cloth, are made of two distinct shades of the fabric and decorated with straps of the darker shade and small round tailor buttons.

Models of summer tollets show fine tucking employed in diagonal, diamond shaped and horizontal forms. Epaulets are tucked, as are cuffs, the edges of tunics, paplum ends and tiny applied basques.

Polka dots, small diamond shapes, vermicalli and coral designs predominate among the blue foulards for cool traveling, beach and walking costumes. They are trimmed with frills of the silk and have a plain silk veet and stock collar.

Some pretty shirt waits models have plain silk vest and stock collar.

Some protity shirt waist models have been designed for the coming summer, some of them showing a desp sallor collar joined to pointed revers that reach the belt in front; the entire plees of woven guipure jees, with ouffs and girder to match.

Among the labest compromise styles in dress skirts designed particularly for those who cannot or will not adopt the extreme models is one formed of graduated bux plaits that reach from belt to hem, tapering to about two inches in width at the top.

Considerable use is made of machine stitched hands of the costume fabric on tailor suits of pique and lines. These are arranged upon the gown after the manner of the bands on cloth gowns, small white pear! buttons being substituted for these of stimus bosses.

part buttons being substituted for these of gimp or bone.

Blue, white, pink and other daintily colored organdies, muslins, barages and grenadines are effectively trimmed with ruches and ruffies of the dues fabric edged with black lace. On the bodies is a mixture of these decorations with bands of lace insertion, or very often there are yoke and sleeves of net matching the lace in design.

CHINOOK JARGON WON.

Every old timer in Tacoma, or, in fact, in the state of Washington, either refnembers or had a personal adjustintance with Attorney Frank Clark. Clark has been deed some years, but during a conversation between attorneys his name came up, followed by the narrative of this incident in his career.

followed by the narrative of this incident in his career:

"Many years ago," said the lawyer telling the story, "Clark had as a client a man arrested on the charge of cutting timber on government land. The United States was represented by two federal attorneys, brought from a distance, either Portland or San Francisco, if I remember aright. When these lawyers came into court, there followed behind them a porter who unloaded upon the table fronting the judge's bench armful after armful of books. Clark strode in with three volumes of law under his arm. The jury was composed entirely of loggers and ranchers. Opening the case, the imported lawyers delved deep into the tomes of law before them and cited decision after decision bearing on the case on trial. Then, using language one-half of the words of which were too extensive for the jury's understanding, they launohed into their argument.

'As the United States attorneys finished Clark areas, picked up one of his law books, and, without opening the volume, threw it saids. The next book shared the same fate. The third was opened only to be cast saids. Clark then squared himself to the jury.

'' Nestha tillicuris!' he commenced, and then in a four of Chiptok instronment on to the jury.

"Nestha tillicuris! he commenced, and then in a flow of Chinook jargon went on to plead his client's cause. There was not a man on the jury but what understood every sentiment Clark conveyed, whereas the high flown language of the imported attorneys had been utterly lost to them.
"In vivid Chinook Clark painted a word picture of the trials and tribulations of the settler in the wilds of a Washington forest; of the desperate effort necessary to maintain wife and babies. And because his client had hauled a wagon load of cordwood to the village store to trade for food he had been are used and his family deprived of his support.

"There was possibly not one in the jury box but who had at some time been in the position Clark pictured. Every sympathy in them was aroused. Tears trickled down their rangued chesks as Clark's Chinook flowed on.

"The lawyers from afar were awake to the disadvantage they were being placed under. An objection was entered to Clark's use of Chinook or any other language which the opposing counsel could not understand.

"Your honor," answered Clark, the which the opposing counsel could not understand.

"'Your bonor,' answered Clark, 'the jury here is to decide this case. The eminent gentlemen for the prosecution have used language as grandiloquent that not one of the jury has understood its purport. I am speaking to them in the simple talk of the western frontiersman, understood alike by both Indian and white man who traverse and have been instrumental in the development of this morthwest. My language, call it jargon if you wish, explains to the jury, and if I mistake not, also, your bonor, the situation. I have but a few words more to say, and, with the court's permission, will continue in Chinook."

"The permission was granted and Clark's client acquisted without the jury leaving their seats."

The Cigar Smeker.

When you see a man grip a cigar between his teach and hold it fast, carelens of whether it burns or not, you can set him down as an aggreentee, calculating and exacting individual.

If a man smokes a cigar deliberately, just enough to keep it lighted, and delights in taking it from his mouth and watching the blue smoke from it curl upweard, he to likely to be an easy going mans good natured and houses.

There is another fellow who smokes intermittently, takes a puff and then rests and fumbles his cigar about. He is spt to his little decision of character and to be easily affected by direumstances. A man may be mercous and fumble his cigar a good bit, and in this event he is a would be swell, vain and frivotoms.

He invariably tilts his cigar upward, while a seesthe, level headed fellow will hald it straight out from the mouth. When you are a man chewing upon an unighted cigar and twinting it about, he is nerveau, but of grant tenacity.

A man who cannot keep his cigar alight has a whole souled disposition. He has a lively nature, is a hall fellow well not, gill of tongue and usually a good story taller.

Cromwell's Vision.

Cremwell's Visten.

It is said that one day, when Cromwell was but a more lad, as he was lying on his hed in a melanchely mood, a gigantic specter appeared to him and said, "Thou shalt be the greatest man in England!" Health says it was a dream. Lord Clarendon and Bir Philip Warwick speak of it as a vision. But whether dream or vision it made a profound impression on the youth, so much so that his father requested Dr. Beard—Ollver's schoolmaster—to flog him severely for "persisting in the wickedness of such an assertion." The flogging only deepened the impression. He told his uncle Stuart of the prophety and was warned that it "was traitorous to relate it." But when he had sosted himself upon the throne of England he requently spoke of the occurrence and was fally persuaded in his own mind of its prophetic and supernatural character.—Amelia Berr in Harper's Magasine Fer April.

"He comes not!" she faltered, wringing her hands.
The hour of the styst was fong past.
"He will never come!" cried the distracted girl. "But happily I know a neat song and dance which will perhaps enable me to carn my living! Let her go, professor!"
The audience thundered applause, appreciating at once the exquisite art with which the specialty had been interpolated in the melodrams.

There is a Great Difference.

"You said this wasn't postry," maid the trate submriber to the query editor, holding up a rhyme that some one had asked about. "I want you to understand, sir, that is was written by one of the greatest posts that ever lived."

"Evidently you did not greap the import of my answer," was the constitutory reply."
I did not say it was not written by a post. I merely said it was not postry."—Chicago Post.

THE INTERNATIONAL LUMBER INCE.

The statement is made that the Ontario law practically prohibiting exthirty saw-mills in Michigan this year, throwing ten thousand men out of em-ployment. The Michigan lumber milers were in the habit of buying timber limits in Canada, rafting logs scross Lake Huron, and sawing them into Lumber in Michigan mills. Ontario passed a law last year that logs cut in Ontario must be sawed in On-tario. Hence the Michigan trouble. The Ontario law was the result of American aggression. This point about he clearly understood. A big row seems to be brewing; the threat is made that the United States gov-ernment may forbid the entry of Canadian lumber in any shape into the States, which step, if taken, will lead to further retaliations; desirable therefore it is that Canadians should rest assured that they did not comnance the trouble.

A protectionist Congress at Washington, in a legitimate desire to foster, as it thought, home industry, imposed a duty of $3 a thousand feet on foreign lumber. This bit only Can-adian lumber; the United States gets none elsewhere; still, if the United States felt that way, it had a right to do so, nor would that step alone give Canada any good excuse to be nasty. A nation which believes that Protection is a good policy exercises a thoroughly-handerstood interpational right in setting up such duties as it

But that did not content the United States. The United States exercised its own proper right; it did not atop there. It prepared in addition a club realized, could play the game of customs duties too. The same interna-tional right the United States had to est up an import duty against foreign lumber, Canada powessed to set up an expert duty to make foreigners pay re to get our logs. So the Washington men not only put a duty on our lamber, which was legitimate; but, to prevent their saw-mills suffering through this country putting on ex-port duty upon the Canadian logs which American saw-mills used.

port duty upon the Canadian logs which American saw-mills used, the Washington legislators enacted that if Canada did anything of that kind, an equivalent new duty against our lumber was to be added to the original American $2 a thousand duty.

In short Uncle Sam said to Canada: "I use a protective policy on lumber to benefit myself. If you use a protective policy on logs to benefit yourself. I'll hit you."

The policy succeeded as regards Dominion legislation. The Dominion swallowed the threat and the fugbanded situation. Ontarie did not. Ontario peoped up unexpectedly, with a counter-list. Ontario has no power to touch customs duties; but controls her swn resources; she passed a law that Ontario logs shall not go out of Ontario. The Michigan millers who had bought large limits in Ontario, found themselves suchred. They were he men directly responsible for the ittenpt to club Canada; they find hat in slang parlance they have "got tin the neck" themselves. Thirty of their mills must close or must be moved into Ontario. So they clamor for more club; they threaten to block altogether the sale of Canadian lumbar in the United States so chooses. This country can hold its own. And if financially or intumtially Canada were to suffer, though we do not helieve it in in the power of any nation on earth to make us suffer aerically our people would heave themselvas have expressed the temperament of all the English-speak. Ing rices of the earth "millions for defence, not a crist for tribute."

"One Good Turn Deserves Another.

It is so easy to go through life doing good and helping to make others happy. A lady who had been ill with a complication of troubles, having been thoroughly cured and now enjoying perfect health, felt it a duty to tell her friends that the specific that brought her back to health was Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Thus, after Hood's had served her well, she felt it deserved a good turn at her hands. Thousands tell the same story of blood purified and health restored. Hood's Sarsaparilla posses merit peculiar to itself.

Sick Headache—" For a long time I was troubled with sick headaches. Different medicines failed to give me relief. I took Hood's Sarasparilla, my husband having been cured of salt rheum by it, and soon it made me feel like a new woman." Mrs. Boszar McArza, Deerhurs, Ont.

Sew Form of Insurance.

George C. Platt, of San Francisco, has formed a company to insure against unavoidable loss of employment. The wheme provides that the 'policy-holder shall be paid three-quarters of the amount off his salary for a month should that time he required in which to find a new place. If the policy-holder should be offered a place on trial at less than his former salary the difference is to be made good by the insurance company. The objections to this new insurance as outlined by practical insurance men, is the absence of a statistics on which to make, asfe computations of a premium to cover the risk. The condition insured against is lase, in its pointed out, too much within the control of the insured.

Pimples, boils and humors show that the blood is impure. Hood's Sarmaparilla is the best blood by inference in the in the control of the insured.

The Green Cheese claim is situated in the conter of the Republican camp. Figures-is reports above that there the blood is impure. Hood's Sarmaparilla is the best blood purifer, that money can buy.

PETERBOROUGH, MAY 16 1800

RITTALIAN NOT YET PENEMABLE BY LAW IN ENGLAND.

Notwithstanding the violence of the movement against ritualism started in the Church of England, a movement of which Sir William Vernon-Harcourt has made himself the Parliamentary champion, it was settled just week in the House of Commons that, for the present at all events, secular courts will not be created to punish ritualistic practises. The Church Discipline bill was defeated by a vote of 310 to 156; nevertheless, on motion of Sir Webster, the Attorney-General, the House pledged itself to frame hereafter such legislation as may be needed to enforce the existing laws of the Church and realm, if the efforts now making by the Architshops of Canterbury and York to secure the obedience of the clargy are not speedily effect.

Had the Church Discipline bill be come a law, it would have created new State courts, which would have dealt roughly with large numbers o clergymen. It has been computed that to put down uncense alone, it would be requisite to deprive 600 clergy of their benefices, and to put down the use of restments, no fewer than 2,000. ch a course would provoke uncom-been home in Lindsmy they could be not been home to Lindsmy they could have looked for the blazes on the trees. Assuch a course would pr many, congregations, many patrons of livings and even of many Bishops, the practical outcome would have the disruption of the Anglican Church. The High Church section of that body, which undoubtedly comprehends mi lions of English people, would, by the Sorce of controversy, be strongly im-pelled in the direction of Rome. The mong li tourchmen toward those whom it would regard as perse-entor it in to cause all of than to used to heith to the Pope, but we it had not for granted that it WOULD : ber os conversions to Romanism. More and more the impression would gain ground that for Englishmen nas no longer a via media, or midway stepping place between Rome and Ge neva. Ubviously, too, the agitation for discatabilahment would acquire additional a omentum, the former Non ional accentum, the former Automation of the Augusta pale on the agence of ritualistic oftenose. Thus, washened within and smalled from without, it is unprobable that the remnant of the Church could long refer disestablishment and disendowistic practice, about the invested with sit the authority of the Church, Lord flugh escribes pointed out now such courts might be carred into being. Parcourts might be carred into being the trainent might pass a abort act empowering convocation, or the beatmerat assembly of the Anglurah linearisation of the Anglurah linearisation of the Anglurah linearisation of the courts would be that the constitution of the courts would be settled after consultation to week the Ministry, on the one hand, and, on the other, the lishops or others representing the majority of the colercus assembly. This would be a constitutional proceeding, and ample security might be given to the rights of the Canons until one or the other house of Parliament should have had time to send up a hostile address. It is urged on behalf of auch ecclesiastical courts, as opposed to secular tribunals, first, that as regards ritualization practices the former would set wider insuits than many Evangelicals would take, and, secondly, that wherever those limits might be fixed, they would command the conscientious obetience of sit the ritualistic clergy. This, at least, is the belief of those who desire to see disciplinary powers exercised by the Church linelf rather than by secular courts. Sir William Harcourt, however, and the uncompromising Evangelicals, of whom he is the chief Parliamentary spokesman, contend what, if the ecclesiastical courts created by Convocation were to put a limit to ritualism which light Churchmen would accept, that limit would necessarily be extremely obnoxious to Low Churchmen, There are many reasonable Evangelicals, nevertheless, who admit that it would be better to administer a definite check to ritualistic proceedings, and to have the same limit fixed throughout England and Wales, than to put up any longer with the present anarchic atate of things, under which one sort of ritualistic practices is tolerated in one diocese and angler in another.

It is not improvable, therefore, that the experiment proposed by those who desire to avoid disruption on the one hand and diseastablishment on the other may be made, and that Couvceation may be called upon to exercise its large laten

A TERRIBLE STRUGGLE.

Bick people grow tired of taking med-icines which barely keep them alive; they want something to put them on their feet, well and strong and hearty; they want to get the upper hand over grim Death and choke all the "scare" out up a new constitution from the lowest foundation - stone, like Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the only radical, scientific cure for disease. This remarkable "Discovery" produces a rapid increase of the life-giving red corpuscies in the blood, which quickly clear out poisonous elements, stop morbid formations and build up new tissue in the vital parts.

out poisonous elements, stop morbid formations and build up new tissue in the vital parts.

By this deep and searching revitalizing process, obstinate blood diseases, throat and bronchial affections and even consumption, in all its earlier stages, are arrested and permanently cured. The "Discovery" makes solid healthy muscular flesh, without adding a particle of flabby fat like so many "esmalsions." It falls out sunken forms and faces, gives color, nerve force and active energy.

Many doctors say that consumption is incurable and necessarily fatal. They say mistakes. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will cure of per cent. of all cases of consumption, if taken promptly according to directions. It has cured thousands. It is quickly absorbed by the blood and assists nature to throw off germs and all effete matter and restores the body to perfect health and strength.
It tones the nerves and invigorates the body. It spurs up the torpid liver and makes the kidneys active. An honest

THAVEL BY AUTO-CAR IN KORTH AFRICA

London, May 23.—It seems libely that trade in the deserts of North Africa is going to undergo a starting revolution. The long carevan of camels, with their tinkling bells and white-round drivers may sportly become nothing but a poetic mamory and live only in varus.

It is the autocar which is to effect this revolution, and the wan lass already been prepared by the adventurous tour of two Belgiam moblemen. Haron Pierra and Baron Joseph de Crawher. The tour landed three months, and extended over vast trects of Northern Africa.

Baron Pierre is the winser of the great Brussels-fârds mea-Spa automobile race, and it was with the same valuale, which be has called the "Devastation," that he undertook the journey into Africa. From Brussels the brothers drove to Pagia, and from there made their way through Spain where they touk ship for Algians.

Spain where they took ship for Algiars.

They traversed the valleys and gorgas of the Oved Djamma, and made their way to bakkamedi, after a difficult climb of nearly tweaty miles.

At this point the real novelty of the attempt began. The brothers, as they encamped upon the heights of the Tablat casis, were about to do what no one had ever before attempted—to onter the desert on a motor car.

At Aumaie, a large French military station, seventy-eight miles southcast from Algiers, the sound of the explorers home produced a scare among the native population. The matives flocked out of their huts and esoorted the auto-cariats to the authorities, who welcomed them with every courtesy.

The return journey back to the count was more adventurous. At Boo ira the road was swept away by torrent, rising from the rains, and they were nearly projected over a precipies.

they were nearly projected over a precision.
Once they came to a river, but but drown holdly into the flood. The bottom was very rough, and the car bumped from side to side; but after a most perflow precise, being nearly swept away more them once, they reached the other side in safety.
Their proudest schievement, however, was the cromsing of a ridge of the Atlan Mountains, through wast snow drifts, at the height of 6,500 feet above the sea level.
The great success of this expedition should upon the field for a great deal of kindred embargrise, and possibly in the fature camels will be found only in the Koologies! Gardens.

KING CHRISTIAN IS ILL. London, May 23.—It is learned that the health of King Christian of Dan-mark is failing and much anxiety is felt on account of the King's great age. CHAT FROM THE SENATE AT OITAWA

LITTLE BUSINESS BUT INTER-ESTING SUBJECTS.

Between the timer and Lower Houses? Mr McKenzie Bowell Introduces ed County Ballway Matter.

Str McKeanie Bowell Introduces the Brummond County Entiway Matter.

Ottawa, May 23.—The Senate had a little talk—two little talks in factand the nit joined the Commons in an advicurament until Thursday.

The first talk was on a question raised by Mr. Wark, who is said to be the oldest legislator in the British Empire. By desired to (discuss the question as to the division of the business as b-tweens the Upper and Lower Houses, had he said—Lr'1868 a committee was appointed to consider the subject. It is reported that as the principal business was Government business, more of it might be introduced in the Senate, but it called attention to the fact that shy Ministers of the great evending departments must be in the Commons. Sir John Mardonald had said that be virected the sensions would average 90 days: that had, however, been very much exceeded, thirty years after the committee had considered the matter was a time when the subject was pressing. Last year the Senate with enothing for 36 days, during which 57 bills were introduced in the Commons. Last year the Senate was on the Sird thay of the mealon, and with the excention of some attention to two small Government fills, it had nothing, though over 100 bills had been introduced in the Commons. These were boostly private bills and it was evident that presenters of private bills not it was evident that presenters of private bills not it was evident that presenters of private bills not a committee with the nower to their is might House 'susiness should be introduced. He asked the Government is it had decided on any means by which he, business of Parliament could be more equally divided between the two Houses.

20r. Mille' Reply.

Mr. Mille had a word to say on Mr.

Mr. Mille had a word to say on Mr. Wark's continued fetivity and proceeded to remark that her had expressed the views of the Sunate as a whole. The matter discussed by Mr. Wark, had recived amone attention at the hands of himself and his collegues this year owing to the absence of the Ministers at Washington. few measures had to be lintroduced. and those mostly had to be lintroduced. and these mostly had to be lintroduced to the Commons. Last year a large portion of the measures had either affect the House of Commons or had, had reference to the spending of money; and could not have been introduced in the Sunate. This year Mr. Mille had introduced three bills in the Scate. This year Mr. Mille had introduced three bills in the Scate. He was not juck has to encourage the introduction of bills into the Senate. He was not however, discouraged, and hoped before the end of the measures and passe again upon them.

Private Bills.

As to private bills the Senate committee paid attention long ago to the wording, and not much to the principle. The House of Commons committees went deeply into these matters and it would not redound to the oredit of the Senate if the Commons receiving bills from them found them full of mistakes. The Senate should be a court of review. It should undertake to discharge its duties especially from that point. Unless, the Senate were turned into a debating club it could not devote so much time to fegislation as the Commons. Much of the Commons time was taken up discussing taxation, supply, and ways and means. The Senate should not find fault with itself that boildays were so frequent.

rer : so frequent. The debate was adjourned.

The Drummond Deal. The Drummond Deal.

Mr. Mackensis Rowell introduced the second topic. In the matter of the Brummond County railway parchase he smoved for a return of—prictors of the Present contract or agreement entered into between the same persons or comparise.

1. The original contract entered into between the Government and the proprietors of the Drummond County railway and the Grand Trunk Railway Common.

3. A statement of all moneys paid to the proprietors of said railways from the date of the non-ratification of the first contract to March 21st, 1800.

4. An account of the carnings and working appears of the Drummond County railway from the time of its being first worked in connection with the intercelculal railway to the 31st March, 1800.

5. And also as account of the total amount of money paid the Grand Trumk Railway Company for station amount of the property of the connection with the catentian of the Intercelcular allows the connection with the extention of the Intercelcular railway system to Montreal.

RACED FOR HIS LIFE. SITUATION OF THE

AN EXCITING ADVENTURE WITH A WILD OSTRICH.

A Thrilling Chase on an African Voldt That Was Interrupted by a Kaffr, Who Was Then Kicked to Death by the inferiated Bird.

Death by the Infuriated Bird.

The open veldt lay before us bathed in the dew and the lingering shades of early morning as we mounted our horses for a ride across country. Before we had gone far, however, my companion was summoned back, and I continued my ride alone. As I advanced mile by mile the acenery grew wilder, and the great rocks, just tinged with the purple of the sunrise, ross majestically on either side. When the road divided, my Basuto pony turned off into a bridle path which led through a wild gorge and eventually lost itself among the rocks as the foot of a hill. The surfooted little creature started up the side of the mountain and eventually landed me at the top. Here I dismounted and left him to graze. We had been out some hours. Remounting, we followed a half beaten track on the opposite side from which we had come, and in a short time we were at the foot of the hill and on the level veldt once more. Going forward into the main road, which wound round the base of the mountain. I started off at a quick canter once more. Going forward into the main road, which wound round the base of the mountain, I started off at a quick canter toward home.

For some time we went along at a good pace, when suddenly I was startled by the sight, not far ahead, of a cock ostrich rushing wildly backward and forward, with its black and white wings flapping and quivering with rags. I pulled up with a jurk, for at first I thought the bird was loose on the veldt, but on closer inspection I found that a wire fence was between us. Just at this moment I saw on the other side of the camp a hen sitting on her nest, and, knowing only too well the danger I was in, I paused to consider what I should do. A short distance in front the road ran close to the fence, and I knew it would be impossible to pass that way. There was nothing for it but to retrace my steps and follow the road back round the mountain till it joined the one by which I had come. I was not afraid, for it was by no means an uncommon position in which to find oncelf in the center of an estrick farming country, and, besides, I felt sure of getting away. Accordingly I turned the poor's head in the opposite direction and walked quietly back, hoping to escape notice. A few moments passed, and I began to think we were safe, when suddenly a strange sound made me look around. To my horror I saw that in one of his wild charges the enormous bird had caught sight of us and was making frantic dashes along the fence, which was unusually low, and was not of barb wire. In a few seconds he would be over, and then it meant a race for dear I life. My pony, I knew, was one of the quickest in the country, and, as wa had a good start, possibly for a short time we should keep ahead, but in the end I knew the ostrich must easily catch us.

As if by instinct my faithful friend sornted danger, and after one whispered word in his ear he was off like the wind. There was suddenly a crash behind us, followed by a measured beating which almost made the ground vibrate and set my beart thumpling. If you have never heard the "tramp" of an infuriated ostrich, no words will adequately describe it. The nearest approach to it that I can think of is th as the chase was not resulted i ventured to look back. My heart seemed suddeely to stand still. My head swam, and I had the greatest difficulty to keep my east in the suddle. The inturisted ostrich had turned and was charging at a Kaffir who was coming up from the camp in pursuit. The man saw his danger and excitedly threw kerrie after kerrie, which passed wide of the mark. Vague ideas flashed through my mind of going to his helpan absurd idea, of course, and now impossible, for the pony had become thoroughly frightened and was bolting as hard as he could go There was more shouting now, and I hoped that others had come to the rescue; but, glancing back again, I saw it was too late. Ostrich and man had mot!

The Kaffir made a tremendous spring at the long neck of the bird, but he was too slow, and an awful kick sent the poor wretch upon the earth. Before he had time to recover—If indeed he ever could—the bird was literally denoing upon him, and I shut my eyes to hide the ghastly sight. By this time several Kaffirs and a Dutchman had come up, and with a long lason they caught the sensitive part of the bird's neck and stranged it, dragging it off the prostrate Kaffir at the same time. I never knew how I resched home that day. For days and nights that ghastly fight haunted me, and I was troubled by the thought that the man had practically given his life for mine, while I had done nothing even to attempt to save him. His master, a hard, mercenary Soar, was more siled with annoyance at the loss of the valuable ostrich than with pity for the man. The unfortunate Kaffir had only lived till he reached the farm, and then he succumbed to his terrible injuries.—Wide World Magazine.

Soundings which have been taken show the Paris to be resting more favorably, owing to the fact that she has been considerably lightend the ship as the swells roll beneath her, showing there is a clear passage, free from the rocks. Should the steamy above it is proposed to run her on a flat, sandy beach adjoining the place where she stranded. A high official of the American line says the prospects of saving the Paris are more hopeful than ever.

There is little doubt that she will be successfully towed off. Powerful pumps belonging to the Liverpool Salage Association, are expected to arrive at the spene of the wreck: this evening, and the divers believe the additional pumps will clear the first four holds. The fifth is so badly pieroed that no amount of pumping will clear it. The remaining six holds are secure. the stranded ship. A light wind is

HOPE ON-HOPE EVER.

For failure care not.

Birongth lies within thee—
Birongth which shall win thee
How hopes. Despir not!
Hope on—hope ever!

Past ways amending,
With no vain grieving,
New tasks achieving
With pains unending,
Hope on—hope ever!

Who inward gases
Sees not the beauties
Of life's small duties.
Hope crowns and raises Weakest endeavor.

Hope, not despising
This world's seconds
Nor her careeses
Too highly prizing.

ALREADY EVEN WITH HIS HONOR.

After an Adverse Decision.

Judge J. M. Hurt tells a story on a couple of members of the Dallas legal profession which goes in this wise:

They were on a hunting and fishing expedition to Wynne's lake. On the day of their arrival one of the heroes of the story, who was at that time a district judge, found a cance that had been buried in the mud. He exeavated it and found it to be in pretty good shape. He washed off all the mud and calked a few holes in the hottom, and it was a good boat. It was a long, narrow affair and was evidently never intended to be built for two.

However, when the judge started out to fish in his cance, his lawyer friend insisted on going with him. The judge was sitting in the end toward the lake, where the water was about six inches deep and the mud about four feet.

"Now, keep out of this boat," exclaimed the judge. "You will turn it over, sure, if you try to get in it."

With that he stepped into the cance, and it capsized instantly. The lawyer aved himself by a quick spring for the bank, but the judge, who was about 18 feet off shore, was thrown in the shallow water and mud. He crawled out like an old hog coming out of its wallow, and when he reached the bank he delivered his opinion of the lawyer in anything but judicial language and wound up in Italica, punctuated with dashes and exclamation points, saying that he hoped the lawyer was nothing intentional about his that it was purely an scoident, and to show that he was sincere he divided what clothing he had with the judge and helped wash his wet and muddy suit. Peace was thereby patched up, and all went well.

At the next term of court the lawyer had a case in which he was very much interested to come up in the judge's court. He worked on it very hard and thought to himself that he had a sure thing, but the judge decided in fever of the other fallow. It was a great disappointm

Professor L. T. Wesks of Southwest college wrets a poss which he thought was all right and which he offered to The Century Magasine for publication. His wife, Ida Abstorn Wesks, made fun of his literary assirations and kept telling him about the fall which lay in wait for his vanity. In due time, however, as acceptance came from the magasine, accompanied by a check for $10, and then that man began to hard it ofter the womans.

Finally she got mad and declared that she could write better poetry that he with one hand tied behind her, and, to prove it, she indited a piece and sent it to The Century. Almost at once she gut back an acceptance, accompanied by a check for $30, and then she made life such a burden for her $10 husband that he was sorry he ever wrote poetry.—Kaness City Journal.

Who, the Dog?

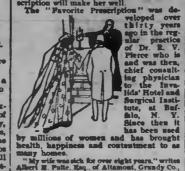

Whe, the Deg?
An Irish daily prints the following indignant protest from "A Oyclist:"
"While cycling on the road near Healy's bridge a foxy terrier dog stole on me unperceived and bit me on the east of the leg, from which I am now suffering. The Geg, I understand, belongs to a magistrate who resides in the neighborhood and is allowed to wander on the road unmussled, and yet sits on the bench in judgment on others."

The loss incurred by the wearing of the in elevalation has been made the block of a number of precise experi-tants, from which it was assertained than 00 worth of $5 goldpicous lost over $15 their value in 100 years.

FIARRIED HAPPINESS is dependent upon the health of the wife more than on any other one thing. If a woman is troubled in a distinctly feminine way the most delicate nerves of her body are in a state of chronic irritation. She has headache and backsche. She is lister and apiritless. She is eross and blue. She is eross and blue. She feels that life is not worth living and her temper reflects the condition of her nervea. Poor, suffering wife—poor, distracted husband. If the husband is acheerful, good-humored man be will sympathise—if he is nervous, tired and irritable himself, he will probably go of to the club or neck alsowhere more congenial company.

A sick women is to be pitted because she is miserable and because she has not yet learned that Dr. Pierce's Pavorite Prescription will make her well.

The "Pavorite Prescription" was developed over health, happiness and contentment to as many houses.

"My wile was sick for over eight years," writes Albert H. Fulle, Eaq., of Altamont, Grundy Co. Tuna. "She had uterine disease and was treated by two physicians and got no relief. At last I read about Dr. Fleron: Favorite Prescription. I gent to the drug store, got one bottle and the first does gave ease and sleep. She had not alept any for three nights. Being sure that it would cive her I sent for Sev more bottles and when she had taken the sixth bottle she was sound and will. We now have a fine boy it our house."

The "Pavorite Prescription" contains no alcohol and no opium or other surcottle, and is perfectly harmless in any condition of the system.

Who Cares for Combinations?

Beaverton is quietly excited over a safe robbery which took place there a couple of weeks ago, but this was kept ascret in hope of developments. Friday evening 950 was placed in the safe of Cameron & Cameron; next morning the money was gone. In these days of easy combinations the moral seems to be 'don't' keep a safe.' Still It cannot be said that Messra. Cameron, used the burglars quite right, they might have made it the even $100.

Snap Shets With a Graphophene.

The Graphophone is to the ear what the photograph camera is to the eye and more, for the gramaphone catches instantly and preserves every tint and sheds of sound. A most interesting use of a gramaphone is to make records of your friends voices to be preserved for future use. You can catch the story of your jolly friend just as he told it, or the favorite song of some loved one, just as she easy it and have it reproduced perfactly at any time and as often as you please. Shesides the Graphaphone affords wonderful entertainment in the way of reproducing the music of bands creleates or worsh or instrumental soloists. No investment will return so much in pleasure as the purchase of a Graphophene. It is the perfact talking insching. In an interesting paper recently published on the value of sugar as a food, as compared with fat, M. Auguste Chauvanu maintains that its nutritive value is considerably higher than that deduced from its heat of combustion, and that the calculation that 0.756 pound of the latter is in many cases exceeded. The increase in relative nutritive value is due largely to the fact that sugar promotes assimilation, and the value of a food must necessarily depend not only upon the energy it is capable of supplying, but also on the indirect influence that it is capable of supplying, but also on the indirect influence that it is capable of any limit of view the matter is regarded the superfority of sugar over fat as a food, whether for men as reast or an Bust Indiaman.

London, May 28 .- The Foreign Office officials confirm the statements made The London Times to the effect that the negotiations with the Canadian have reached an almost hopeless stage owing to the insistence; of the Canadians that they receive a slice of Alaska, which apparently precludes any agreement between the American and Canadian High Commissioners. The evening newspapers here re-produce the New York despatch with comment, generally regretting the attuation, but objecting to the con-clusions that Canada is blameable. The Globe says- "The Canadians would be far less patriotic that they are if they yielded to what they consider to be an unjust and undefermible de-mand for the make of the establishment of more friendly relations with their big neighbor."

Continuing, The Globe remarks that The Times "by publishing its correspondent's unjudicial aumming up has adopted the surest way to inflame public opinion on both sides of the Atlantic."

London, May 26.—The Bangkok, Siam, correspondent of The Duly Mail writes— 'cliam is likely to come very much to the front, in the near future, and in more ways than one would exp et.

"To begin with, mobody last up to the present resilized (indeed, the Slamese Government did not know until recently(, in what a languificent liminetial position they are. No accounts have ever been published, or even kept in such a mann's that a comprehensive view of the position could be had.

"The French have suddenly waltened up to the fruitlemmens of their past policy towards Sum, and they will not make a movement?" to undermine our existing predominance of influence and interest. Unless Great Britain puts her foot down pretty firmly and soon too, she will only be in thesame position, and have the same weight in the Councils of Siam, as any one of the other five great bowars—i.e., France, Germany, Russian, Italy and America, to my nothing of Belgium, Holland and Denmark. Siam will become a varieable international playground, a country where the right and interest of all the powers are equal, and where none (except perhaps france) is to have greater weight than the others. WOMEN IN POKER.

Game That Changed Two Dear

Friends into Deadly Enemies.
Said a man of my acquaintance recently:
"Do you know, I believe women would be the most desperate gamblers on earth if they dared!"
"Nonsense if was my remark.
"I've watched them, old and young, pretby and homely, light and dark, and even in the small games that their pockethooks and their consciences allow them to play their axcitement in winning or losing is something terrific."

And he caused me to do a little thinking on his aids, though not for the world would I have admitted it to him.

I remembered a game of cards that caused the esparation of two of the dearest and sweetest women in the world three years ago.

ort and swortest women in the world three years ago.

Of course it was poker.
Poker soems to be played everywhers, or was at that time, and this disbolical cluster of "fulls," "straights," "two pairs," "threes of a kind," "flushes" and "fours" has caused more misery and made more mischief among the women of this city than will ever be exploited!
There were five of them in a fashionable boarding house up town, and I, as a caller, made six.

Rain had ruined a matines proposition.

Rain had ruined a matinee proposition tere was nothing to read, and dulines "Splendid!" was the general ejaculation.

Two of the ladies had never played, but, they were soon instructed. Them it was discovered that there were no "chips."
But a descent upon the cook produced 800 or 400 white beans, which Mrs. O. took charge of.

"I'll be banker," she said as she counted out the beans in lots of 100 such. "We'll play 5 cant limit and you shall have $6 worth."

ment.
"How awfully funny!" they said.
"Why, we feel like real gamblers."
I declined to join the game, believing that $5 in the pot was worth $30 in the

"Jack pos."
The game proceeded amid much nervous excitement and many "Ohs!" and "Ahs!" and "Dear mes!" and remarks of that sort.

"Why, isn't that a flush!"

"Why, isn't that a flush!"

"Why, your hand wasn't as good as mine. I think you're real mean."

The somebody asked:

"What good are four queens!"

Whereupon all laid down their hands and the inquisitive one gathered in all there was in sight, with the remark:

"I didn't have four queens, but just wondered."

At length there was a battle royal on between Mrs. C. and one of the beginners. I happened to sit right behind the latter and saw her hand.

It consisted of three aces and a pair of kings. Nothing but "four of a kind" could beat it.

Back and forth, back and forth, bet and "raise," more bets, more "raises," until "raise," more beta, more "raises," until the holder of the "full hand" had exhausted all her beans and clamored for more.

The banker gave her 100 more and made a memorandum of it.

The betting went on as feroaly as before. I felt like giving the "full hand" lady a hint that she was betting her hand tee high, but of course could not do so.

At last the banker "called" and threw
her hand on the table.

"Four sizes!"
"Dear me!" sighed the losse. "I thought I'd surely win. What a lot I bet! Leaky to wasn't real money!"
What do you mean!"
"Why it's lucky they were only beans."
"You must be cray, Mrs. B. The beans represent money. You ove me $4."
"Why, you're talking nonsense."
Mrs. O.'s lips grew very white.
"Do you mean to may," she saked, "that you didn't understand that we were playing for money!"
"Of course I didn't."
Mrs. O. wept the beans into a receptaole, dabbed the cards into the table drawer, onet a look of withering accorn upon her late opponent and stalked out of the room.

ROACH, THE ROBBER, CAUGHT AT LAST.

WAS AN ACCOMPLICE IN THE NAPANEE BANK ROBBERY.

-A angellon as to whether he will be extradited.

Boston, Mass., May 25 -- John T. Roach, who is alleged t obave been a fellow-constitute with Pare and Holden in the Napanee Bank robbery, waterrested here on Tuesday by Pinkerton men setting in conjuction with the local relice. Roach, the police say, got the idea of the robbery from Muckie, now serving ten years in Kingeton penttentiary. He knew Pare and in said to have enlisted him for the work on account of his skill as a lookmith. Pare got Holden into the case

After was a popular anpposition in Napanee that Pare and Holden had murdered Roach when he could not be produced at the trial Pare swore that he got $900 out of the process of the robbers.

DOLDTH REGARDING EXTRADICTION.

Toronto, May 25—The law officials at the Parli iments build mys were very reticent this morning when questioned regarding the extradiction of koach, the alleged confederate of Pare and Holden, who has been arrested at Boston. Their statements, however, tended to confirm the suspicion that no evidence can be produced to secure Roach's extradiction in connection with the Napanee bank robbery. The evidence of Pare and the other prisoners at the Ponton trial cansot, it seems, be used to secure Roach's extradiction. And now that Pare and Holden have broken juit, no declaration can be obtained from them to serve as ground for making such a demand on the United States authorities.

A BOAD TO APSLEY.

The C. P. R. Mare west sien over the Ro to increameter.

Some few days ago the Times announced that the C. P. R. were considering the construction of a line of ratiway from Norwood to the head of Blomey Lake and on to Appley and Coe Hill. A letter received yesterday from Mr. Hawson, Clerk of Burleigh and Amstruther, confirms this. Mr. Shewen states that a Mr. Armetong, representing the C. P. R., spent some time in that locality looking over the ground. He gathered all possible information as regards the assessment, population, timber and natural wealth of the district through which the road will run. Mr. Shewen is confident that Mr. Armstrong will make a satisfactory report, and that the work of construction will seen follow.

It will be observed that the road will start from Norwood and will cut off the entire back country from Peterborough. We commend this to the attention of our Bahrd of Trade.

MOLLY BAWN.

BY THE DUCHESS.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

Three full weeks that, so far as Molly is concerned, have been terribly, wearisumely long, have dragged to their alone. Not that, they have been spent in idlenses; much business has been traumated, many plans fulfilled; but they have been barreis of news of her lover.

"In the spring the young man's fancies lightly turn to thought of love;" but his thoughts seem har removed from such tender dallianges. She known, through Ceoll, of his being in Ireland with his regiment for the first two of those interminable week, and of his appearance in London during the third, where he wan seeking as exchange into some regiment ardered on foreign survice; but whether he has or has not been eicecerful in his centrel she is subramely ignorant.

Brooklyn, her dear old home, harthe children, I was here alone."

"Gutte right," says fire. Massereene, unblushingty. Then with considerable impatisone, "Will that postman never comes!"

All country posts are irregular, and

All country posts are irregular, and this one is not a pleasant exception. Today, to create aggravation, it is at least one good hair nour later than manul. When at length, however, it does come, it brings the expected letter from Luttrell.

"Open it quickly—quickly, Letty," mays har stater, and Letitla hastens and reads it with much solemnity. It is abort and rather reckless in tone. It tells them the writer, having affected the desired exchange, hopes to start for India in two weeks at furthest, and that as he had never at say time contemplated leaving England with set bidding Mrs. Ms ser abs goods bye, he would seize the opportunity—she being now alone heavily deaned)—to run down to Brooklyn to see her this wary day.

"Oh Lettyl to-day!" exclaims Molly, paling and flushing, and pasing again. "How I wish it was to-morrow!"

"Out have been praying for three whole weeks to see him, and new your prayer is answered, you look absolutely miserable."

"It is not sudden," says poor Molly. "And—be mever mention my name. What if he refuse to have anything to may to me even now! What shall I do than!"

The murier 'Or which the two man were hanged was a peculiarly strocton one. October last Wasyl Boseczho, a Galician, and his fouctohildren, whose ages ranged from 10 to 3, ware found dead at Stuartburn.' The father had b'n shot through the feed and wounded on the head with an axe, which weapon had also bear used to kill his offspring. Upon being arrested Oruby made a confession, which caused the arrest of Guasezak. Both ware tried, and each betrayed the other. The object of their crime, it turned out, was to secure the pattern sum of $50 from Bojecsko. The first named prisoner shot the father, while the second slew the children with an axe.

The situation in Toronto is the hanged. The mass meeting held in Occident hall, Saturday aftermon was well attended. Among the speakers were Mr. D. A. Carey and Ald iman Woods. Several of the men also spoke and referred warmly to the manner in which they have been treated by the road and encouraging active brethern to stand close together. Reports of the most encouraging nature were received from various points stating that the strikers are receiving every sympathy from every branch of labor. A name of outsiders were present and all were determined to adher to the stand they have taken.

The Critic calls the transaction a "gamble," but it is difficult to see how wash assurance can be unfavorably diffigurantiated in this respect from the forms of insurance recognized as entirely legitimate. Surely the litigant flas an insurable interest in the result of a litigat on in which he is engaged and, in theory at least, the element aff pure chance plays a smaller part in this than in other forms of insurance. AN EXCITING ADVENTURE WITH WILD OSTRICH

A Thrilling Chase on an Africas Voldt That Was Interrupted by a Kame, Who Was Then Kicked to Death by the Inturiated Bird.

The open veldt lag before as bathed in The open veldt lag before as bathed in the dest and the lingving shades of early morning as we mounted our horses for a ride across country. Before we had gone far, however, my companion was summoned back, and I continued my ride alone. As I advanced mile by mile the scenery grew wilder, and the great rocks, just tinged with the purple of the sunfise, rose majestically on either side. When the road divided, my Basuto pony turned off into a bridle path which led through a wild gorge and eventually lost itself among the rocks at the foot of a hill. The surficeted little creature started up the side of wild gorge and eventually lost itself among the rocks at the foot of a hill. The aurefooted little creature started up the side of the mountain and eventually landed me at the top. Here I diamounted and left him to graze. We had been out some hours kemounting, we followed a half beaten truck on the opposite side from which we had come, and in a short time we were at the foot of the hill and on the level valid once more. Going forward into the main road, which wound round the base of the mountain. I started off at a quick canter toward home.

For some time we went along at a good pace, when suddenly I was startled by the sight, not far shead, of a cock estrich rushing wildly backward and forward, with the black and white wings flapping and quivering with rage. I pulled up with a jerk, for at first I thought the bird was loose on the veldt, but on closer inspection I found that a wire fence was between us. Just at this moment I saw on the other side of the camp a hen sitting on her nest, and, knowing only soo well the danger I was in. I paused to consider what I should do a short distance in front the road ran close to the fonce, and I knew it would be impressible to pass that way. There was nothing for its but to retrace my steps and close to the fonce, and I knew it would be impossible to pass that way. There was nothing for it but to retrace my steps and follow the road back Yound the mountain till it joined the one by which I had come. I was not afraid, for it was by no means an uncommon position in which to find oneself in the center of an ostrich farming country, and, besides, I felt sure of getting away. Accordingly I turned the pony's head in the opposite direction and whiked quietly back, hoping to escaps notice. A few moments passed, and I began to think we were safe, when suddenly a strange sound made me look around. To to think we were safe, when suddenly a stronge sound made me look around. To my horror I saw that in one of his wild charges the enormous bird had caught sight of us and was making frantic dashes along the fence, which was unusually low, and was not of barb wire. In a few seconds he would be over, and then it meant a race for dear life. My pony, I knew, was one of the quickest in the country, and, as we had a good start, possibly for a short time we should keep ahead, but in the end I knew the ostrich must easily eatch us

There was a distant shout, and I was dimly conscious that a short, heavy kerrie whizsed past me. iy another kerrie came whinting past, and this time it must have interfered in some way with the progress of the great hird, for I could tell it had stopped short, and as the chase was not resumed I vebtured to look back. By heart seemed suddenly to stand still. By heart seemed suddenly the seemed suddenly seemed suddenly three kerries after kerrie, which passed wise of the mark. Vague ideas flashed through my mind of going to his help-an absurd idea, of course, and sow impossible, for the pony had become shorting now, and I hoped that others had seeme to the secue; but, glancing back again, I saw it was too late. Ostrich and man had med!

The Kaffir made a tremendous spring shifts to recover—th indeed he ever could—the bird was literally dencing upon him, and I shut my eyes to hide the glassily sight. By this time several Kaffirs and a Dutchman had come up, and with a long lasse they caught the sensitive part of the bird's neck and extrangled it, dragging it off the prostone Kaffir at the same time. I never knew how I reached home that day. Judge J. M. Hurt tells a story on a couple of members of the Dallas legal pro fession which goes in this wise:

They were on a hunting and fishing expedition to Wynne's lake. On the day of their arrival one of the heroes of the story, who was at that time a district judge, found a cance that had been buried in the mud. He excavated it and found it to be in pretty good shape. He washed off all the mud and calked a few holes in the bottom, and it was a good boat. It was a long, narrow affair and was evidently never intended to be built for two.

However, when the judge started out to fish in his cance, his lawyer friend insisted on going with him. The judge was sitting in the end toward the lake, where the water was about six inches deep and the mud about four feet.

"Now, keep out of this boat," exclaimed the judge. "You will turn it over, sure, if you try to got in it."

"That's all right," said the lawyer. "I am an old boatman and have fished in a dugout many a time, and you know a man has to sit mighty level in a dugout." With that he steepped into the onnos, and it cepsised instantly. The lawyer saved himself by a quick spring for the bank, but the judge, who was about 15 feet off shore, was thrown in the shallow water and mud. He crawled out like an ald hog coming out of its wallow, and when he reached the bank he delivered his opinion of the lawyer in anything but judicial language and wound up in italics, punctuated with dashes and exclamation points, saying that he hoped the lawyer was astisfied. The lawyer apologized profusely and assured the judge what clothing he had with the judge and helped wash his wet and muddy suit. Peace was thereby patched up, and all went well.

At the next term of court the lawyer had a case in which he was very much interested to come up in the judge's court. He worked on it very hard and thought he had it perfected. All during the trial he sat up nights studying every point. He made a long and very enhaustive argument and thought to himself that he had a sure thing, but the

There is no argument so good as an absolute, plain, truthful statement of fact. There is nothing so interesting as fact.

In the true happens ings in the every-day life of every-day people are materials for most thrilling novels. There are every day stories of heroism, suffering and the final triumph of good over evil — of happiness finally crowning endeavor. Here is a case in point:

In the county of Eacambia in Alabama is the little town of Flomaton and there hives Mrs. Mollie Grimes. She was a good wife and mother but several years ago she found her health slipping away from her. She realized that this meant the inevitable nervousness and irritability that would surely lose for her the affection of her children and husband, and that as her health declined discord and misery would appear in her home. She was filled with the loving motherly instinct, but two miscarriages in succession almost broke her heart. She had almost lost hope when the clouds rolled away and the light of health and happiness returned.

She tells her story in these words:

If was almost heart-broken to think I could not raise any more children and had to mifer as I did. I had lost two children by miscarriages

Even in the unnappy ages when people know nothing of the bath and its rejuvenating properties noted beauties found out the scores of preserving their loveliness by ablutionary aids. Imbest of Bavaria heard that chickweed was good for the skin and had enormous decoctions brewed thereof and bathed in them daily. Dians of Poitiers was another of the cleanly sequettes and plunged into a tub of rainwater every morning.

The eighteenth century beauties likewise believed in bathing, says Woman's Life, but they put all sorte of odd infusions into the water to improve the skin, such as the bouillon in which veal had been boiled, waters distilled from the honey extracted from roses, a preparation of almouds, melon jules, the, milky jules of green barley and linesed distilled with Mexican halm dissolved by the yolk of an erg. These remarkable decoctions were freely used by the ladies who sunned themselves at the court of Louis before the revolution.

Marie Cretwertynoska, a Russian beau-ty who exercised great influence over Cast Alexander I med to bathe in Malace wine ty who exercised great influence over Caar Alexander I, used to bathe in Malaga wine. The Marechaie Davout, Princess Eckanih, was at 85 renowned for her queenly carriage, superb eyes and besutiful color, her skin being so white as to rival the snow of her abundant locks. She had sever used anything but pure water on her face, and she always kept to a very simple diet, even when her table was loaded with good cheer for her gueets.

She remained equally attractive to her last hour, although in her youth she had been one of the prettlest women at her time. Her daughter, Mma de Blooqueville. lived to be just such another white haired beauty and was noted in her old age for dressing with consummate taste and elegance.

Cremwell and England's Navy.

Under Cromwell England for the first time felt the power of a strong navy to build up a great nation, says Samuel Harden Church in The Atlantic. It is true that Queen Elizabeth had repelled and destroyed the Spanish fleet, but she assembled her ships only to resust invadon, and her important maneuvers were at the detensive. Troumwell built the first fleet that England had yet seen created for the purpose of crushing her ensmiss and striking down the oppressors of free religion.

striking down the oppressors of free religion.

Spain, still aiming at universal emptre, received her first staggering blow when Cromwell, daring to throw away the traditional policy which England had hugged for four centuries, allied himself with France and made war on Spain. His ensures as a self then and for long afterward that he destroyed the balance of power in Europe. But Cromwell cared nothing for political maxime when they stood in the pathway of that human liberty of which he was the champion. "A Cheerful Look Makes a Dish a Feast."

"Cheerful looks" depend just as much upon physical well-being as upon natural disposition and temperament. If the blood is disordered, the brain is starved, and no "dish is a feast," for the reason that the vitalising elements do not reach the proper spot.

A step in the right direction is to purify the body by the use of a natural remedy. Hood's Sarsaparilla is Nature's remedy. It acts upon the blood, and whether the seat of the disorder is brain, stomach, liver or kidneys, the purifying process of this medicine is equally sure and successful.

It never disappoints.

We gave her Hood's Sarsaparilia and in a few weeks she was able to sit up in bed, her appetite improved and the cough and accompanying pain disappeared." Liky Walkin, 24 Cottingen Street Hallian, N. 8.

Dyagopasis—"My husband suffered with dyspepsis. Physicians did not benefit him. Two bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilia relieved him. My husband's father and our little boy have been wonderfully benefited by this medicine." Miss. O. F. Charberlair, Glen Sutton, Que.

Run Down-"My system was run down. I could not sleep nights and my appetite was poor. Hood's Sarsaparilla restored an appetite and strength and has made me feel like a new woman." Mas. S. E. Davbers, Amberst, N. S.

or Captain Maurice 18-11, a British militia officer, who last year left England fost the Congo in the service of the Free State.

It appears that Captain Bell and his small forces of fifty triack troops proceeded in the direction of a village called Mondimbs. While marching in Indian file, through a drive forest they were sufficiently surrounded by 300 appearm to The soldiers, who were mere boys, and like all their comrades, arrant cowards, no moner saw the natives approaching than they threw down their riffers and cartridge belts and cleared into the bush, leaving Captain Bell, his native sergeant, and one boys to resist the attack.

Added by his boy Captain Bell lorded and fir d his rifle again and again, and when at close quarters used his with such off ct that he accounted for fully ten mitives before the end came. The teambals, however, in the end maturally overcome Captain Bell and his two companions. First, the three were speared, then cut up, and afterwards esten. In accordance with their usual custom, when a white man is killed, pi ces of the body were dispatched to hil the surrounding villages to niflams the institues.

When the pewa of the tragedy reached the main river, a punitive expedition was sent from Basko, and also a fewer from Commandent van Wert. Portions of the bod is were then found in a village twenty miles cistant from the ac no of the struggle. In the punitive expedition 100 natives were killed and a grumber taken primmers.

ODD COSMETICS.

Existed Long Before Modern Inven-tion Made Them Complex.

Existed Leng Before Medera Invention Made Them Compten.

Even in the unhappy ages when people knew nothing of the bath and its rejuvenating properties noted beauties found out the secret of preserving their loveliness by solutionary aids. Inshean of Bavaria heard that chickweed was good for the skin and had enormous decoctions brewed thereof and bathed in them daily. Diama of Pottlers was another of the cleanly consistes and plunged into a tub of rainwates every morning.

The eighteenth century beauties likewiss believed in bathing, says Woman's Life, but they put all sorts of odd infusions who the water to improve the skin, such as the bouillon in which weal had been boiled, waters distilled from the honey extracted from roses, a preparation of aimends, melon julos, the mility julose of green barley and linseed distilled with Mexican baim dissolved by the yolk of an egg. These remarkable decortions were freely used by the ladies who sunned themselves at the court of Louis before the revolution.

Queen Marie Antoinette made liberal use of a "tith," mutting into the water wild thyme leaves, marjoram and a listle sea salt.

Marie Czetwertynoska, a Russian beauty who exercised great influence over Czar Alexander I, used to bathe in Maiaga wina. The Marechale Davout, Princess Ecknuhl, was at 85 remowned for her queenly carriage, superb eyes and beautiful color, her skin being so white as to rival the snow of her abundant looks. She had never used anything but pure water on her face, and she always kept to a vary simple diet, even when her table was loaded with good cheer for her guests.

She remained equally attractive to her last hour, although in her youth she had been one of the prettiest women of her time. Her daughter, Mma de Blooqueville, lived to be just such another white haired beauty and was noted in her old age for dressing with consummate taste and elegance.

Cromwell and England's Navy.

Cremwell and England's Navy.
Under Cromwell England for the first time felt the power of a strong navy to build up a great nation, says SamuelHarden Church in The Atlantic. It is true that Queen Elizabeth had repelled and destroyed the Spanish fleet, but she assembled her ships only to reast invasion, and her important matieuvers were on the defansive. Cromwell built the first feet that England had yet seen created for the purpose of crushing her enemies and striking down the oppressors of free religion.

striking down the oppressors of free religion.

Spain, still aiming at universal empire, received her first staggering blow when Cromwell, daring to throw away the traditional policy which England had hugged for four osssuries, allied himself with France and made war on Spain. His enemies said them and for long afterward that he destroyed the balance of power in Europe. But Cromwell cared nothing for pulticed maxims when they stood in the pathway of that human liberty of which he was the champion. Holland sent out her fisets, more terrible than the old Spanish armada, but Cromwell's generals, noting on scaled orders penned by his own hand, boat the Dutch admirals and sent their ships to the Dottom.

PETTY SQUARBLING WITH CANADA-From the Chicago Chronicts

Readers of the Chronicle will recall the fact that nor long ago there was a threat from Washington of retaliation against Canada under the Dingley lew b.cause the government Ontario had made a regulation that the timb-r of that province must be made into lumber there. It was state d that Am ricans had bought timber lands or standing timber in the pro-lands or standing timber in the province tefore that regulation was made and the regulation was made and the regulation was regarded in Washington as an attempt to deprive them of their rights.

As the Chrunict pointed out at the time, the provision of the Dingley law which the administration threatened to put in force provides only for the imposition of additional duties upon imports into the United States in certain contangues where duties on American products are increased. But in the case of Ontario there is no attempt to lay any duty on any import from the United States. It is a production of the exportation of logs, that is all. There is no provision in the Dingley law for retailation in such a save. If there is not provision in any other law the factors not generally known.

R. W. Stott, the Canadian a creater as see. If there is any such provision in any otherl aw the factules not generally known.

Rt. W. Scott, the Canadian a cretary of state, has directed attention to this point. He says that no train import duties have been imposed by Canadia. He explains that the order requiring timeer to by made into lumber in Outario is all regulation of the Outario crown lands departed it am has nothing to did with the Canadian tariff, as the Washington authorities a name.

This may be true, but it looks much aw though this means had been taken to remind our protectionist administration that something could be some two remind our protectionist administration that something could be some two reminds of the Dingley bill on Canadian, pine lumber the Canadians can brevent us from getting the logs. There is no denying this. It may be a said that Assertions have bought the lamber on the rights of dumning in the their own risk, suoje to to the energy where the property is alterned to the sountry where the property is alterned to the sountry where the property is alterned. ht their own risk, and et to the exercises of the rights of dumnin in the country where the property is situated. And that is not so very unreasonable.

The pretty obvious truth is that the old maid, the cas thing I most detect;

Ontario regulation is merely a move in the foolish shi hurtful sommercial war which was begun when congress passed the offensive Dingley bill. It is a move which the authorities in Washingt propose to meet if they can der the grant of power or semblast the propose to meet in the state.

The wonderful effects of this great "Discovery" are genuine and permanent; they are not due to any false or alcoholic stimulus for it contains no alcohol. Real substantial healthy musuclar strength is built up; the stomach and liver are toned; the blood is purified and vitalized; the nerves are steadied; the entire constitution is rejuvenated and renewed.

In case of constipation, there is nothing quite so effective as Dr Pierce's Pteasant Pellets. They act comfortably though surely; they do not gripe; you do not become a slave to their use. Their effect is lasting There are countless substitutes; but nothing else is like them.

Horses.

"There is no doubt in my mind," taild the driver of a team of fire horses, "that horses have many semilities. I know that many fe-1 pride and prejudire, and art keenily susceptible to disappointment. I have driven horses for twenty y ara, and they have always be n of the best. I have therefore had an excellerit opportunity to study them.

"About ten years ago one of the team that I drove was a big bay horse we called Dam. He was the finesal I save that I drove was a big bay horse we called Dam. He was the finesal rever had anything to do with. He came from the west and was put alongside an old tire horse. It was hard work for him at first, but he caught on rapidity; said at the end of a month he was always out of the stall and in position ahead of his partner. It seemed to be the ambition of Dan's life to make a record. When the other horse was allow in gesting into position ben at the harness I ha would stagnp his fey and lear as him. He expressed disc rank put as fire, slipped to other horse, he would liky for he house, or, on and delay do ther horse, he would liky for he house, or, on and lear ground grier, all position also we were going down as we were going down.

the fire, but it was so evident to me that he wanted a change to retrieve himself that I put him back in the barness. You should have seen him go the rest of the way. Never a misstep did he make. He almost leaped out of the harness. But he was grieved over his error. When he got back to the barn he trotted into his stall, refund to eat his oats, and for four hours acted like a achool boy who had been whipped. I petted him and talked to him, but he had to have his pout out.

had been whipped. I petted him and talked to him, but he had to have his pout out.

"Fire a month we drove him with a heavy home that was rather slow. Dan had to wait every time there was an alarm, and on the way to's fire had to hang tack to accommodate the alower home. Dan was patient, believing evidently that in time nin partner would improve. At the end of a month, when no sign of improvement was noticeable, Dan made a daily practice of biting the strange home. I may that Dan was displeased, but I got a new astmal. Dan changed at conce. Now, if any one can tell me that Dan didn't have as much sense as most men. I'd like to know what ground he has for the assertion. He got too old for service, and he was said to a farmer. I saw him once after that, sad he reminded me for all the world of a poor old man who has been existed and is heartbroken. The farmer told me that wherever Day heard a bell he would prick up his ears and dance around. After that he would ramble away to a lonely part of the pasture and stay there for hours.

"I ence had another horse named

"I once had another horse named

Paridy that was as fine a beast as one could find. Like all fire horses, he would, of course, start whenever he h. ard the going ring, but he would to more. He would rear on his hind fet, short and kick, just out, of pure joy. While he and his mate were being havenessed he would shiver, all over, so anaions was he to be out and lift. He was a good got and was sure footed. He liked to be petted better than Dan. For instance, on his return from a tire to which he knew had had made a fine run, he always made a practice of rubbing his head against me till I getted him pand to, dhim he was a goof boy. If I forgos the petting he would kiels and n igh till ient red his stall and caressed him. Patitly got to be a find horse, though. We had a substitute driver here for a while, and he abused l'addy all the fung. The result was that we had to get rid of the horse. He was said to a farmer a sen miles from the city. One day wh in the farmer was driving him in the city fire engues went by. Paddy was seized with the old spirit, and, getting the bit is his mouth, he rea to the fire. On the way he overturned the. farmer as wagon. The farm r was thrown against a stre t car and was killed. "The Colonel is another fire-horse. He is the proutest beast we have. He driver has always taken exceptionally good care of him, and the Colonel's his call the time. If ever dirt is left on the smirn's love legs, where he can see it, he fusses around till the driver nuth it off. When Colonel is all trimmed up and is paraded for inspection before the heads of the department he steps up and strute like a norto dade. For four years Colonel has had an ambition to out run the Patration Chief's horse. When the Colonel and his mate have to half a street and har the going on the Chief's at ed, for the reason that the latter has only a light verbile to draw, while Colonel and his mate have to half a team that was allengaide him colonel. Its made are a lafforts to get up, I we had to unhitch him before he did do so. He ought to have been supported by the stay of the sta which a few pails of water extinguishes. When Tom left the engine, house the first thing he would do would be to look all arounds to note if there ware any reflection, if there was none he would not strain himself to hurry. You see he had about decided that there was no need of fiverying except once in a great while. But if there ware at red reflection I couldn't hold him. He grould get (the bit in his mouth and tear away likmail. He would go through passages none too wide for the engine at a furious clip, and would fairly drag his companion along with him. You know most horses, like all other animals fear fire. But Tom did not fear it. I have driven him sho close to a burning building that the beat was almost unbearable. His mate would tack and try to get away from the heat. But Tom would stand his ground as well as a man. I setually believe he would have stood till the heat kill d him. It seemed that' he liked to be doing something brave; something to distingtish himself. In return for it he liked to be geted. "There was one thing to which Tom always sersously objected, and that was the whip. It is unn cossanty to why any fire horse that has been in the business for any length of time, but all drivers don't seem to understand this. An extra man ones gave Tom a few cuts with a whip, where upon Tom slackened up, came to a stop and refused to move? A hundred cuts with the whip only made his obstinacy worse, and he didn't go to that fire. I neves used a whip on him in my life It is simple. He takes a whipping as an insult to his intelligence. He understands as well as any fireman that it is his duty to get to the fire as swiftly as possible, and it injures his pride to the whipped." "I'll never forget one time. Tom moped around the barn for a week. He was rest! as, dispirited, and while he made his runs well he did not enter into the spirit of them's see he usually did. I knew something was the matter with him, but I caudion't tel what it was over he rubbed me, with his nock at offer of while we did it. It, hurt but he stood it fin-ly, and when it was over he rubbed me, with his nose and did everything but any Thank you.

"There is a horse in the department now that uses tobacco. We call him Plug because of his love for the weed. He pick d up a piece of s plug that lay on a wishlow sill one time and ate it. He took such a liking to it that he tried to get at our tobacco everytime he new us take it out. Wa feed him castoff eads now, and he eate them with a relish. He will follow a man who has to tabacco in his hand a cails. It seems to do him good. Plug is just an ordinary horse otherwise. I have hendid probably 200 horses in may time, and I never was bitten or kicked one. The reason is plain to be seen. I always have treated them gently As long as a horse is used kindly he will are reason is plain to be seen. I always have treated them can the beats, which in itself irritates a good horse; but he kicked them and out them with a whip. He tried it on the gentlest borse we had in the department one time, and for it he received a kick that made him quit work for two months. That horse had never kicked any one else. He never again kicked! I didn't blame him for what he did. I can lie urder, the hoofst of my horses with perfect asfety. You couldn't get them to kick or bite me Any well-bred horse will return kindness for kindness and crucity for orucity. It is so every time. An animal may pretend to be cowed moto hermlessness, but it is mever so. That anne animal is waiting for an opportunity to be reveniged, and the opportunity for ore of the best horses we were had in the department, was pestered constently one summer by a young fellow who stayed around the barn ore day and essayed to pet Tops. Tops mapped at him, knocked him down and kicked him, knocked him down and kicked him, knocked eess of it. The young fellow was away for three years. He went into the barn one day and ensayed to pet Tops. Tops snapped at him, knocked him down and kicked him to death There was an example of the revengeful spirit of a hurse.

"I have men times when my animals were on the varge of speakings it so med that their hearts were rairly bursting. I knew that the poor beasts had something they wished to tell me, and I have often been me carried away with expectation that I asked them, to any what they intended to my. There is a difference in horses of course; just so there in he people. A well-bred person, is more tractable. A neglected, eige-leasily bred horse oft-times, as a moust of generated, though, as in man, there are some exceptions. And of all horses, the well-bred fire horse is by tar the most admirable. He is human—to the drivers.—New hork Sun.

Thrilling Chase on an African Voidt That Was Interrupted by a Kadlr. Who Was Then Kicked to Death by the infuriated Bird.

The open veldt lay before us bathed in the dew and the lingering shades of early morning as we mounted our horses for a ride across country. Before we had gone far, however, my cooppanion was summoned back, and I continued my ride alone. As I advanced mile by mile the scenery grew wilder, and the great rocks just tinged with the purple of the sunries, ross majestically on either side. When the rosd divided, my Basuto pony turned off into a bridle path which led through a wild gorge and eventually lost itself among the rocks at the foot of a hill. The sure-footed little creature started up the side of the mountain and eventually landed me at the top. Here I diamounted and left him to grase. We had been out some hours. Hemounting, we followed a half beaten track on the opposite side from which we had come, and in a short time we were at the foot of the hill and on the level veldt once mors. Going forward into the main road, which wound round the base of the mountain, I started off at a quick canter toward home.

once more. Going toward into the base of the mountain, I started off at a quick canter toward home.

For some time we went along at a good pace, when suddenly I was startled by the sight, not far shead, of a cock ostrich rushing wildly backward and forward, with its black and white wings flapping and quivering with rage. I pulled up with a jerk, for at first I thought the bird was loose on the volds, but on closer inspection I found that a wire fence was between us. Just at this member I saw on the other side of the camp, a hear sitting on her nest, and, knowing only too well the danger I was in, I paused to consider what I should do. A short distance in front the road ran close to the fence, and I knew it would be impossible to pass that way. There was nothing for it but to retrace my steps and fedlow the road back round the mountain till it joined the one by which I had come. I was not afraid, for it was by no means an uncommon position in which to find oneself in the center of an estrich farming country, and, besides, I felt sure of getting away. Accordingly I turned the pony's head in the opposite direction and walked quietly back, hoping tobacape notice. A few moments passed, and I began to think we were safe, when suddenly a strange sound made me look around. To my horror I saw that in one of his wild charges the snormous bird had caught sight of us and was making frautic dar es along the fence, which was unusually I-w, and was not of barb wire. In a few seconds he would be over, and then it meant a race for dear life. My pony, I knew, was one of the quickest in the country, and, as we had a good start, possibly for a short time we should keep ahead, but in the end I knew the ostrich must easily catch us.

short time we should keep shead, but in the end I knew the ostrich must easily catch us.

As if by instinct my faithful friend scented danger, and after one whispered word in his ear he was off like the wind. There was suddenly a crash behind us, followed by a measured beating which almost made the ground vibrate and set my heart thumping. If you have never heard the "tramp" of an infuriated ostrich, no words will adequately describe it. The nearest approach to it that I can think of is the sound of the regular "thud, thud? of soldiers on the march. There was no mistake. We were being pursued by a furious cock ostrich—a formidable foe indeed! Now it was only a question of tima. The pony's feet seemed scarcely to touch the ground, and I bent forward, urging him on feverishly as I had never done before. Nearer and nearer came the beating, the distance between us and our strange pursuer growing less and less every second. I was powerless to do anything but hold on to my flying horse. We were miles away from any farm in the direction we were going, and those behind knew nothing of the terrible danger I was in. Could there he no help? Alone on the boundless valds, I looked vaguely up into the blue sky.

There was a distant shout, and I was

HOW TO BE WELL

There was a distant shout, and I was dimly conscious that a short, heavy kerrie whitsed past me. I dared not stop, for the ostrich was now but a few yards behind, and I could almost feel the vibration of its great wings as it skimmed, half flying, half racing, over the earth. Presently another kerrie came whitsing past, and this time it must have interfered in some way with the progress of the great bird, for I could tell it had stopped short, and as the chase was not resumed I ventured Will Overcome All Your Toronto, May 20.—Yesterday afternoon the Haptist convention discussed Northwest missions and the report regarding Manitons, Northwest, shid firitish Co umbia was read and acopted. The financial statement showed, the year's receipts to have been $8,655, or which $4,018 came from the churches, $1,107 from individuals, and $2,226 from sundry sources, of this, $31,550 went to British Co umbia.

The secretary, Rev. T. B. Davis, stated that the Northwestern Esprist missions were not well suplied with ministers, while in British Co umbis the outlook was most, encouraging. The need of a Baptist school for Manitoba was referred, to, and he was glad to announce that a gentleman in Toronto had agreed to contribute $3,500 a year for five years towards maintaining a achool there. The new college would be established almost impendiately, and they had the assurance of more than 200 students to commence with.

The sub-committee of ladies super-mediately, and they had the assurance of more than 200 students to commence with.

The sub-committee of ladies supervising the Indian mission at Fairfoot gave a favorable account of the progress of the work.

The estimate for the present year for British Coumbia, Manitoba and the Northwest amounted to $12,000, tof twhich 20 per cent. would be devoted to British Columbia.

Sir James and that it had been his good fortune to be thrown a great deal into contract with this man, and with him as any person in the British Empire, and he had always found the Empire, and he had always found the President to be a, man of his word. President Kruger had riever gone back upon a single syliable he had ever promised, and any little success that might have attended his (Sir James') negotiations with the President, he set down to the fact that he was a "feoteman brought up amongst the north country farmers who were imbued with the amme Calvinistic spirt as that which animated the President. In dealing with President Kruger he had always had to put himself in the President's place, and it was his (Sir James' belief that if he had been riduculed, jered at, laughed at, and had his country attempted to be a stolen from him, he dualited very much if he would have behaved as the President as an agel. His Honor had made mischakes; every public man did. But he would tell the mischen that although they heard a great deal at the present moment about trouble in South Africa, he could assure them that there was not the slightest cause for a single shot being fired there in order that what was right and proper should be done to maintain English honor and English dignity, and astimately to affiliate that great country as part and parcel of the Empire.

The Times published the other day an article ficaling with the experience of Peterborough in organizing and operating a arcond telephone exchange, and pointing out the impossibility of maintaining a service in opmonttion to the present very sutisfacthry service. We did so became we observe that a company is being formdividing the business with the Bell. Probably the most entisfactory reseon why a small concern has no chance against the present big corporation is the fact that the latter possesses all the latest appliances, including the new switchboard, which has just will, we understand, be placed in many of the leading exchanges in the country at an early date. The cost of this switchboard is very great, entailing an expense in Ottawa many thousands of dollars. Even if the amuller, concerns could raise the funds to put in services equal to the Bell, they have not the right to do so on! account of patents which are owned by the latter Company. People who still contemplate taking stock, if there are any, should bear this in mind also. A short description of the switchboard will be interesting which we are indebted to the Ottawa Journal.— "A new switchboard suitable to this abnormal demand had to be designed for Ottawa, and for some months past such a board has been im course of construction at the company's factory in Montreal. Warts and Helpiess Decters.

The doctors excuse their incompetence by declaring that these nuisances disappear as a child grows older. I profess to believe them. No one in the household remembers the historic case of Cromwell, fortunately. His warts did not vanish. You see them as plain as his nose on the mask taken after death preserved as Warwick castle.

And there is Cloero. Not that he himself had warts to speak of, though I have seen that statement in a schoolbook recently. It was an ancestor of his who won distinction that way, astonishing the Roman public with an excusions on the tip of his nose of trefoil shaps. Wherefore they called him Cloero (vetch), and the nickname clung to the family.

It is rather comforting than otherwise to learn that the heroes and says of old were afflicted with warts. Even the "godlike Greeks" had them, as Lucian tells us in passing, and their mothers applied to old women for charms. The doctors were as helpless then as now, of course with more excuse.—Pall Mall Gasets.

Comb when filled with honey is never heistle. It is only when empty and dried out that it becomes so.

There is hardly any question but that bees will generally store more honey in old combs than in combs that must be wholly built while the storing is going on. If you destroy the queen belts of a colony ready to swarm and divide the colony into two, completing both hives with empty combs, both will construct queen cells again.

Bees do not swarm until the hive is well populated and honey againg in from the fields; hence if combs are put on they should be put on before any preparation for swarming is made.—St. Louis Republic.

A MASTER OF MAGIC.

TRICKS BY WHICH HOUDIN ASTOLIND ED THE ARABA

Ine Instance When the Great Magician Extrionted Himself From an Awkward Predicament by the Quickness of His Wit.

To witness Houdin's first performance in Algiers the neighboring tribes were invited. The theater was speedily filled with them and the French officials, who attended in all their pomp and glory. Interpreters were contered through the house in order to repeat Houdin's remarks to the natives in their own language. With true oriental dignity and gravity, the Araba witnessed the first few tricks in stelld silence, but the taking of a huge. Canhon ball from a borrowed hat are used great excitement.

great excitement.

Then came the great tricks of the evening, especially prepared to astonish the Araba.

"By a wonderful power which I possess," said Houdin, "I can deprive any man of his strength. I invite any one to prove my words."

On this being interpreted to the Araba, a tall, strong man stepped forward on the stage. Houdin held in his hand a little iron box, and, balancing it carelessly on his little finger, he asked the Arab:

"Are you strong?"

"Are," replied the man carelessly.

"Are you sure of always remaining so?"

"Always."

The Arab did so and asked contemptueusly, "Is that sli?"

"Wait," said Houdin, making a solemn gestura. "Now you are weaker than a woman. Try to life that box again."

The Arab seized the handle and tugged again. He could not raise the box an inch from the floor. After many attempts he paused for a moment to brace himself for a final effort. He seized the handle again, but shrieked aloud with pain, dropped on his knees, then, rising, threw his closk round his face to conceal his shame and rushed from the theater, leaving his compariots stricken with fear. The trick was as simple as the result was startling. The box was placed on a powerful electro magnet, and the current being complete, no man on earth could have lifted it. An electric shock, sent at a signal by Houdin from behind the stage, was what caused the Arab to shriek and hurriedly retreas.

Before the accitement caused by this trick had subsided Houdin announced that he had a talisman which rendered him invulnerable, and he defied the best shot in Algiers to kill him. A manabout immediately sprang on the stage, exclaiming, "I want to kill you." Houdin handed him a pistol, which the Arab, examining, pronounced a good one. "It is a good pistol, and I will kill you."

"Very well," said Houdin. "To make sure, put in a double charge of powder. Here's a wad. Take a bullet from this tray and mark it so you will know it again. Ram it into the pistol well."

"It double took a pear, stuck it on a knife and walked a few pases in front of the well; so kill me."

"Yea," respiled the marabout, "I will do that."

Houdin took a pear, stuck it on a knife and walked a few paoes in front of the Arab, and told him to aim at his heart. He fired, and the marked bullet was seen on the pear. After the powder and wad were rammed home, and while the Arab was marking the bullet Houdin slipped a little tube into the pistol. This tube was closed at the lower end, and into this the Arab dropped the bullet. As he thrust the wad down with the mmrod, the tube fitted snugly on to it, and was withdrawn with it, being polished to resemble it. Houdin thus got possession of the marked ball, and all was then plain sailing.

On one occasion during his visit to Algiers Houdin was planed in a very awkward position, from which he only extricated himself by his quick wittedness. He was the guest of an Arab chief, Abou Allem, and entertained his host and friends by a few tricks. One of the company was a marabout, who asserted that the spectators in Algiers had been merely duped by a vision. Houdin, however, produced the marabout's wasch in his hand, and, on feeling his each, the marabout found there a 5 frame pleos. Convinced by this and other feats that Houdin was really a sercever, he challenged him to repeat his performance in the theater and produced twe pistola. "You need not have," said the Arab, "dance you know how to ward off bullets." Without loning his salf possessions Houdin explained that his invainerability lay in a taliaman which was with his possessions in Algiers. "By six hours' psayer, however, I can do with-was with his possessions in Algiers. "By six heurs' smyer, however, I can do with-eut that talleman, and at 8 o'clock tomor-now morning you can fire at me." At the appointed time there was a large concourse of Arabs, which the news had attracted. The pistois wave brought and carefully examined. The merabout drop-ned in the newster. Houdin handed him a

A Lawyer's Confession to a Judge After an Adverse Decision

Atter an Adverse Decision.

Judge J. M. Hurt tells a story on a couple of members of the Dallas legal profession which goes in this wise:

They were on a hunting and fishing expedition to Wynne's lake. On the day of their arrival one of the heroes of the story, who was at that time a district judge, found a cance that had been buried in the mud. He excavated it and found it to be in pretty good shape. He washed off all the mud and calked a few holes in the bostom, and it was a good boat. It was a long, narrow affair and was evidently never intended to be built for two.

However, when the judge started out to fish in his cance, his lawyer friend insisted on going with him. The judge was sitting in the end toward the lake, where the water was about six inches deep and the mud about four feet.

"Now, keep out of this boat," exclaimed the judge. "You will turn it over, sure, if you try to get la it."

"That's all right," said the lawyer. "I am an old boatman and have fished in a dugout many a time, and you know a man has to sit mighty level in a dugout."

With that he stepped into the cance, and it capsized instantly. The lawyer man has to sit mighty level in a dugout."

With that he stopped into the canos, and it capsized instantly. The lawyer saved himself by a quick spring for the bank, but the judge, who was about 15 feet off shore, was thrown in the shallow water and mud. He crawled out like an old hog coming out of its wallow, and when he reached the bank he delivered his criticine of the lawyer in anothers his old hog coming out of its wallow, and when he reached the bank he delivered his opinion of the lawyer in anything but judicial language and wound up in italica, punctuated with dashes and exclamation points, asying that he hoped the lawyer was satisfied. The lawyer apologized profusely and assured the judge that there was purely an accident, and to show that he was sincere he divided what clothing he had with the judge and helped wash his wet and muddy suit. Peace was thereby patched up, and all went well.

At the next term of court the lawyer had a case in which he was very much interested to come up in the judge's court. He worked on it very hard and thought he had it perfected. All during the trial he sat up nights studying every point. He made a long and very exhaustive argument and thought to himself that he had a sure thing, but the judge decided in favor of the other fellow. It was a great disappointment to the lawyer, and after court had adjourned he called the judge to one side and said:

"I told you out at Wynne's lake that I turned that boast accidentally, but I want to tell you here and now that it was intentional, premeditated and done with express malice aforethought." — Dulias News.

The wife of a tenor singer says that of all the tributes paid to the beauty and pathos of her husband's voice the one which touched her most had in it an element of humor despite its gravity.

She sat, at a concert, directly in front of two old ladies, whose comments on the soprano who graced the eccasion were far from flattering.

"She can sing high," said one of the old ladies, "but some way I'm not moved by it, Sarah."

"I should think not," returned her friend decidedly. "The woman lacks coul."

Later, when the tenor sang, his wife listened half anxiously to hear what the old ladies would say of him.

"Oh, Sarah," seclaimed the one who had not been "moved" by the soprano—
"oh, Sarah, what a sweet singer!"

"Yes, and what a voice for a funeral!"

"ch, Sarah, what a sweet singer!"

She Ceuté Write Tee.

Professor L. T. Weeks of Southwest college wrote a poem which he thought was all right and which he offered to The Century Magasine for publication. His wife, Ida Aheborn Weeks, made fun of his literary aspirations and kept tailing him about the fail which lay in wait for his vanity. In due time, however, an acceptance came from the magasine, accompanied by a check for $10, and then that man began to lord it over the woman.

Finally she got read and declared that the could write better poetry than he with the could write better poetry than he with the could write better poetry than he with the he had tied behind her, and, to prove it, she indited a piece and sent it to The Century. Almost at once she got back an acceptance, accompanied by a check for $30, and then she made life such a burden for her $10 husband that he was sorry he ever wrote poetry.—Kanses City Journal.

"Lat's play poker," said Mrs. O.

"Let's play poker," said Mrs. C.
"Splendid!" was the general sjacule tion. Two of the ladies had never played, bus they were soon instructed. Then it was discovered that there were no "chips." But a descent upon the cook produced 800 or 400 white beans, which Mrs. C. took charge of.

"I'll be banker," she said as she counted out the beans in lots of 100 each. "We'll play 5 cent limit and you shall have $6 worth."

"How awfully funny!" they said.
"Why, we feel like real gamblers."
I declined to join the game, believing that $5 in the pot was worth $50 in the "lack pot."
The game proceeded amid much nervous excitement and many "Ohs!" and "Abs!" and "Dear mes!" and remarks of that sort.

It consisted of three aces and a pair of kings. Nothing but "four of a kind" could beat it. Back and forth, back and forth, bet and "raise." more bets, more "raises," until the holder of the "full hand" had exhause ed all her beans and clamored for more.

The banker gave her 100 more and made a memorandum of it.
The betting went on as flercely as before. I felt like giving the "full hand"
lady a hint that she was betting her hand too high, but of course could not do so.
At last the banker "called" and threw
her hand on the table.
"Four sixes!"
"Daar me!" sighed the loser. "I thought I'd surely win. What a lot I bet! Lucky to wasn's real money!"
Mrs. C. started at her.
"What do y mean!"

""You must be crasy, Mrs. B. The beans represent money. You owe me $8."
"Way, you're talking nonsense."
Mrs. C. 's fing grew very white.
"Do you mean to say," she asked, "that you didn't understand that we were playing for money!"

"Of course I didn't."
Mrs. C. swept the beans into a receptaele, dabbed the cards into the table drawer, east a look of withering scorn upon her late opponent and stalked out of the room.
The two women have not spoken to each

Said a man of my acquaintance recently: "Do you know, I believe women would be the most despeate gamblers on earth if they dared!" "Nomense!" was my remark. "It's not nomense," be argued warmly. "I've watched them, old and young, pretty and homely, light and dark, and even in the small games that their pocketbooks and their connciences allow them to play their excitement in winning or losing is something terrific." And he caused me to do a little thinking on his side, though not for the world would I have admitted it to him. I remembered a game of cards that caused the separation of two of the deerest and sweetest women in the world three years ago. Of course it was poker.

THE CLOCK.

There was at Epinal in 1600 or 1700 mething-it is so long ago that do not remember the exact dateclock with chimes, music and movfigures that excited the admiration of all the a ighboring towns.

log figures that excited the admiration of all the neighboring towns!

From Vessual, Cheamout, Nancy and even Strassburg, from the four cardinal points, in fact, flooked inquisitve men and women, who at the approach of middly crowded into the back shop of old Blaster Tiphaine, the ingenious constructor of this complicated machine. Master Tiphaine, had never consented to part with his master-piece. To the offers of honors and money, a hundred times repeated, he gave formal refusale, asying—

"My mative town will inherit it after my death. If you took away my clock mow, you, would kill me, you a e; for it is a part of my life."

Menter Tiphaine did not exaggerate. For long years, absorbed in the most impossible calculations, he had concluded and thought out his plan of mechanium. In fact, it took ten years before his project was realized. He made all the piscus himself and fitted them together patigntly after a thousand fruittees trisla. Oh, how many skepless nights, how many bidden discouragements! He attained finally the cartainty of triumph. Ladwed Blaber Tiphaine did not exaggerate in chimings that this clook was a part of his life.

One day, then, the inhabitants of Epinal learned that the old clock-

"Unce more!" they called out.
"I cannot oblige you," replied Master Tuphame. "The machinery is arranged to work only every 24 hours. If I cisturb the least thing, the whole is derenged, and I am too old to recommence such isbors. Come back to-morrow."

On the next day the sightness came in still greater numbers. Then the news spr. ad and reached the country and the neighboring towns. Every day the tack alop was filled with admirers who were untiring in applauding the mast rpiece of deverin liphance.

mirers who were untiring in applauding the mast ripione of Severin Tiphanes.

But for some years Master Tiphane had remained indifferent to the vincerest and the loudest praises. In the confused dan of exclamations he listen at only to the laugh of a chief, a clear laugh, poyous and fresh as the chant of a mountain cascade, purer and more includious than the mysterious hells that song in the clock. Among all the faces that tent toward him gaping with sourprise Tiphans observed only the pink and white obeds of Guillemine, a pretty little child of five years of age, his granddaughter. Guillemine did not miss one of the midday representations. Master Tiphane installed her in the first row; then he raised the curtain that protected his clock. From this moment all his attention was directed to his grandiaughter. With a s much impationed as the child he counted the lickings, he awaited the preliminary clicks. Immovable, in a state of constagy, fuellemine fixed her wide open a blue, eyes on the clock.

There it is—the temptation of St. Anthony! The imps which dance about and the fri sid that gambols carport unceasingly. That was the surprise that Master Tiphaine waited for. The old grandfather laughed in his turn. He laughed until he was ready to weep, and the procession ended as the cock, rising again, closed the entertsiam as with a crowning conconsioned Master Tiphains saised the little girl shaking, with faughter, claspedher in his arms and mingled his snoway locks with the blond ringlets of Guilleinine.

One cold day in D. cember the sightness of Epinal, who in spits of the sold came! to the shop of the manter clockmaker as punctually as certain citizens of Faris stot long ago used to go to the Paris Royal to regulate their watches by the report of the cannon, found the door obstruct d by old Feverin Tiphains.

"No one can come in to-day," said he saddy, "Whyt" they maked. "Is the clock."

"No one can come in to-day, each andly, "Why?" they maked. "Is the clock broken?"

"The clock is not broken," replied Tiphaine in a still addier tone. "But Guillemine is sick, pore little one, and we are expecting the dottor, who ought to be here soon. So then, I ask your please to go away without noise."

A local business concern, not a hundred miles from the Times office, recently engaged as office boy a country youth it was part of his duties to actend to the telephone in his master's absence. When first called upon to answer the ball, in raply to the usual query, "Are you there?" he nodded assent. Again the question came for the fourth time however, the boy, losing his temper, roured through the relephone— "Mass are ye blind? I've been modding my head off; for the last half hour."

The Graphophone is to the ear what the photograph camera is to the eye and more, for the gramaphone catches matantly and preserves every tint and shade of sound. A most interesting use of a gramaphone is to make receive of your friends voices to be preserved for future use. You can eath the story of your jolly friend just as he teld it, or the favorite song of some noved one, just as also may it und have it reproduced perfectly at may those and so often as you please. Peterborough is rapidly becoming famous for her divore d men and women. There must be something in the orane that kindles the flame of illicit love in the breasts of her men and women, or perhaps it is because many of her pople are not suited for the married state, and are ever in the out-look for a loop-hole of escape from the infilicity of incongrain companionship. He that as it may, the fact remains that quite a number have secured separation paper—in most remed sparsitist papers—in most cases the husband from wife—by av-ailing themselves of the United States have, which permits of divorce after a certain legal process and a two Januar residence in the land of Uncle-a certain i gal process and a two parar residence in the land of Unciviant.

The latest case of this kind is Mrs. James Kellett, who was married some ten of twelve years ago in Bethany. She was a Miss Olivia Wilson, a sister of Mrs. John Hurt and Miss Bells Wilson, Bethune atreet. Kellett was a carpenter, and is well known having carried on the business of builder and contractor in Peterborough for several years, evene six or seven rears ago the husband and wife got our separation papers, Mrs. Kellett getting poss asion of the child. Kellett, it is said is now residing near Rachester, N. Y. While living here Mrs. Kellett met Mr. E. Round, an employe of the Peterborough Light and Power Company, and when Mrs. Round died shout a year ago, a fri ndship was formed, which later on developed into love. Having removed the obstacles of their unken by divorce, Mrs. Kellett arcepted their woring of her second hove, and the woring of her second hove and the marriage took place at Buffalo on the 18th instant. The couple have taken up their permanent residence at Buffalo.

The annual excursion of the Olympic Club will take place to-morrow to Stony Lake, per steamer Majestic. The "deed of seperation" from wife and family has been duly executed, and the freedmen will proceed, at an early hour, to make Rome how! It is expected that the saund of revelry will be districtly observed by our citizens who will take the usualle of putting their at to the ground.

teerge Taylor is Trouble.

A despatch from Winnip g states that anginquest was held at Fleming N.W.T., on the body of the infant of Agaes Gluffenning, who has been living with Georg' Taylor in Manitobs. This man has a large family in or near Paterborough. Out. The evidence showeds that the mother left the child on the prairies to perish. When the baby was discovered it was almost dead and without clothing. It only survived a short time. The jury returned a verdict f wilful murder against the woman, who was committed to Brandon goal for trial. Taylor will the dealt with later as an accessory, pending instructions from the Attorney-Gemeral.

The Lindsay, Council have been requested to, and a deputation to Ottawa ingthe interests of the Lindsay and Politypool Railway. This line is intessited to start at Pontypool, on the C.P.R., run to Lindsay and thence to Believygeon. If built it will deatroy Peterborough's trade with the morth. Thus we have at the present moment a yerposed road on either side of us trying to get into our back country. The project of constructing a line, from flowwood to Apsley is being exploited vigorously. Some fine day Peterborough will wake up and find herself depending on the trade of the three or four townships that lie next to the town for existence. We have a Board of Trade, but they appear to have no thought of the morrow.

A merchant who should carry into affect as decision to come advertising would soon find his business involved in a regular's mercantile solar eclipse. However extensive his establishment, and however varied and vatuable his warea, they might as well be gems hitten in dark and unexplored caverns; for what would the public know for thems He might have contly fabrios from India, the rarest creations of the goldsmith's art and all the muttifarious articles of domestic utility within his emporium; but unlam 4the white light of publicity should be shed upon them through the medium of advartisements the goods would remain unbold and even undistarbed. A little reflection will show that while the tradesman must organize his business, he must also intelligently and extensively advantise it.

Whoever has vasited a printing office and inted the almost countless numbers of metallic pieces daily handled by the compositor, cannot wonder that typographical errors now and then occur; wither must be deem it remarkable that they are an few. Such arrors may be caused by the use of the parons letters, the changing of a word, the commission of the punctuation marks, and in various ways. The result is generally amusing to the reader, though frequently calculated to work forcible rather than eloqueht language from the authors of the article in which they appear. "Welcome, Evil, If Thou Comest Alone."

One evil that cannot come alone is impure blood. If this is allowed, it is attended by kindred ailments galore. This condition means that every vein and artery of the body, instead of carrying to the organs a healthgiving flow of life, is laden with a slow and impure fluid that is harming instead of healing.

It is unfortunate when there is "bad blood" between people. It is worse when it is inside of you. Hood's Sarsaparilla will not make enemies friends, but it will make "bad blood" good blood, and blood should be of the best quality. Hood's never disappoints.

Pirrpins—"My face was covered with pimples and blackheads but after taking Hood's Sarsaparilia a short time, I was entirely cured, and my skin left smooth and clear. I recommend Hood's Sarsapa-rilis very highly." May RYAR, North Street, Chatham, Ont.

Erysphese.—I would strongly urge the use of Hood's Sarsaparilla for erysphese or any scrofulous disease. I have received great benefit from Hood's Sarsaparilla for the former complaint. It is an excellent blood parifier." Mas. H. D. Warr, Church Street, Carnwallis, Nova Scotia.

Tired Feeling—"I had no appetite and experienced a tired feeling. Different medicines did not belp me. I tried Hood's Sarsaparitia and in a short time I was enjoying perfect health. Since then we always take Hood's Barsaparilia when we need a blood purifier or tonic." Mrs. S. Kincz, Beatrice, Ont.

Beatrice, Ont.

Stormach Trouble — "I had pains in my sides and kidneys. Stomach and liver troubles caused my distress. I had doctored without avail and used many medicines unsuccessfully. My sister advised Hood's Barraparilla and in a short time it cured me. I am now stronger and sleep better. I shall never be without Hood's Barraparilla in the house." Mss. the Power Conveyed in the Sultan of Apneighbor to Responsible Offices.

Oniro, May 31 .- That the collapse of the party of reaction lo Egypt is com-plete has been demonstrated by the events of the past few weeks.

For years the Michkemich Sheraich, with question of marriage, divorce and uccession, have oried aloud for reform. Missiems whose orthodoxy is beyond dispute have pointed to the existing evils and clamored for redress.

The Egyptian Ministry, fully realising the position, resolved to transfer two Mosliem judges from the Native Court of Appeal to the Mehkem Shersieh in order to put an end to an intolerable condition of affairs. These judges had qualified at the great Moslem University of El Ashar, and their ability to interpret the religious law was unquestioned. Still the Cadi of Egypt, who by the way, is at that head of the Mehkemeh Shernich. and the Sheikh of El Azhar, considered It their duty to oppose the proposal and, as a result, the Legislative Council passed a resolution claring against the innovation.

Memlem Objects.

The objection of the Moslem digni-taries was based on the contention that the Sultan, in his capacity of Calioh, had alone the right to appoint judges to religious courts. This idear was shattered by the production of a proclamation of Lemail appointing the predecessor of the present Cadi, and expressly declaring the right of the Khedive to make the appointment. Moreover, many educated Moslema wrote letters samerting that their leaders are absolutely wrong in their leaders are absolutely wrong in their contention, and urging the Government to carry out the proposed reform. The Legislative Council happily has not the power to veto the proposal, but the point of the incident lies in the fact that the appeal to religious prejudies has met with no no response in the country. The party of reaction is dead.

MRIGER AND MILNER MEET.

ing the damands of the Uitlanders He was received by a guard of henor. He was welcomed by the President of the Orange Free State, M. T. Steyn, and the Cabinet. Salutas were fired the Transvaal astional hymn was played. Replying to an address President Kruger said he had come here to work for the welfare of the whole of South Africa and to discuss all questions except the interpendence of the Transvaal. Sir Alfred Milner has also arrived here.

London, May, 21.—The Caterham plate of 200 soverigms at Epsom to-day was won by Lord William Beres-Blord's Lutetia 4 to 1, ridden by Tod Sloan. Locosta was second and Winnipeg third. Thirteen borses ran. The result was con-sided, Lutetia always holding a prominent place and ways holding a pruminent place and winning in a canter. The ground was very hard.

The thunkey stakes of ten sovereigns each and 200 added were won by Mr. J. Musker's Lady Schomberg & to 1, by Aughrim—Clomparn. Sten rude Lord William Beresford's bay gelding Yumbes 5 to 2, and finished second. Ser J. Scott's Lottle Hampton bay colt 5 to 1, was third.

CANAGE PROMERTEE EXTERNALY.

Paria, May 31.—The surroundings of the Palace of Justice were aimont described to-day when the Court of Cassition renumed hearing the arguments in the application for a revision of the Dreyfos trial. Many of the public seats in, the court were empty.

M. Mainau, the Procurator-General, continued his speech, which was interrupted yesterday by the adjournment of the court, and his voice could be heard throughout the hall contending that Count Exterhasy was the author of the bordereau which has figured so prominertly in the case, and not Dreyfus. During the course of his remarks, he said that, whoever was guilty, somebody had committed the crime of treason. Exterhasy, however, he pointed out, having been acquitted of the authorable of the bordereau, could not again be prosecuted on this ground even if he were at alundred times guilty.

Later M. Manna mad— "What proof exists that there has been at act of treason of a mature tending to compromise the security of the Statef Are we not, perhaps in the presence of a mythericous boax, an audacious piece of swindling perpetrated by the author of the lordereau upon his foreign correspondent? This is a terrible question and one which involves the growt foots."

New York May 31.—Amother United States man-of-war, this time the orusers Brooklyn, has came to grief through contact with a hidden obstruction off the battery, and one which lay but a short distance from the spot where the battleship Massachusetts met a sunker enemy, an encounter which sent her to dry dock for several months.

This accident may keep the Brooklyn in dry dock for a similar period, happened yesterday afternoon just as the cruiser was rounding the battery on her way up the North river, where she was to fire a salute opposite Grant's tomb. The officers of the Brooklyn cannot say what has been floated down the East River channel. The examination showed that part of the vertical keel had buckled, that the rement and cracked, and that rivets had been attricted all along the plates from the forward to the after magazine. The will go into dry dock.

THE CRY FOR YOUNG MEY.

The old question, What shell we do with our boyst no longer has any sigmifiance. The real problem to-day is, What is to become of the old and middle-aged men? The boys are doing well enough. They are crowding out their elders. In all lines of business the demand is for young men. There is no room for the man of mature life. His gray hairs may speak of experience, but employers will none of him, Unfortugate is the lot of the man who, having devoted the best years of his life to the pursuit of as honorable calling, finds bimself out of employment. Twenty-five years ago his record of long service would "mave beloed him to a new position." To-day It is his worst handicap. He are wanted and if he obtain work at all it is likely to be at a salary out of all proportion to his experience.

is looked upon as "a back number." "I can't get work," mid a man who he out of employment for the first time in his life. "I have a thorough knowledge of my business in all its details. I have worked for the same firm for twenty years and if it had not have home out of business I should how with it still. I have the highest amendations as to ability and harrester, but no one will have me-They all tell me more or less blunty that, though my experience is valuable my age is against me. They say frankly that they want none but young men. What am I to def I can't learn a new business and even if I were to do so I should be no better off. My years—and I am not yet go—would still I ar me out. What is going to become of me had the thousand it like me who cannot connect. inuis like me who cannot compete with the younger men in the strug-gle for work?"

What is to become of the men who are thrown out of employment by edicts like that issued by the president into like that issued by the present of an eastern railroad summarily discharging all shop employees over a specified age? Are they to become public charges, and if so will not the burden of their maintenance abortly become a transmission tax if the prebecame a tremendous tax if the pre-jutile against age continues tagrowf How long will it be before all the Entivities of life will be mesopolized by young men, while those who have par-sed the maridian of life, will be com-pelled to step aside and depend upon the liberality of their younger rivals for a bare livelihood? It is claimed that the more compli-lated mechanism of modern industry and the severity of its competition rea-ner men unders at an arrier age than permetty. Whetever may be the prile for billousness, and have found both very effective remedies. We presented in the affirmative. It is en age of young more and the tendency in that direction is growing. Those who can accommand a compatency during the about period of activity alloted to them will be safe from want. The future of those less fortunate-the tutes a problem with which society will sooner or later have to deal if the ban upon gray hairs is not re-

Very handsome costumes of vicuna, lightweight ladies' cloth or soft kid cloth are made of two distinct shades of the fabric and decorated with straps of the darker shade and small round tailor britigns.

Me dels of summer tollets show fine tacking employed in diagonal, diamond shaped and horizontal forms. Epsulets are tucked, as are cuffs, the edges of tunios, poplum ends and tiny applied basques.

Polha dots, small diamond shapes, vermicelli and coral designs predominate among the fuller oldered for cool traveling, beach and walking costumes. They are trimmed with frills of the silk and have a plain silk vest and stock collar.

Some pretty shirt waist models have been designed for the coming summer, some of them showing a deep satior collar joined to pointed revers that reach the bels in front; the entire piece of woven guipure lace, with suffs and girder to match.

Among the latest compromise styles in dress shirts designed particularly for those who cannot or will not adopt the extreme models is one formed of graduated bux plaits that reach from belt to hem, tapering to about two inches in width at the top.

of midday crowded into the back aloop of old Master Tiphaine, the ingenious constructor of this complicated machine. Master Tiphaine, had never consented to part with his master-piece. To the offers of honors and money, a, hundred times repeated, he gave formal refusals, agying—"My native town will inherit it after my aesth. If you took away my clock now, you, would kill me, you see, for it is a part of my life."
Master Tiphaine did not exaggerate. For long years, absorbed in the most impossible calculations, he had conceived and thought out his plan of machanism. In fact, it took ten years before his propoet was realized. He made all the pieces himself and fitted them together patiently after a thousand frustless trusts. Oh, how many elecpless nights, how many hidden discouragemental He attained finally the certainty of triumph. Indeed Master Tiphaine did not exaggerate in claiming that this clock was a part of his life.

One day, then, the inhabitants of Epinal learned that the old clock-master tiphaine did not exaggerate in claiming that this clock was a part of his life.

They took care not to miss the appointment. They admired very much the construction of the machine, but when at the stroke of 12 the mechanism set an motion the figures, men at arms, heralds, apostics, etc., when the chunes rang, mysterious bells played a popular air, the cock crowed, the ox bellowed, the ass began to bray and the fat goose to utter his hoarse cry—due, as every one knows, to a cold contracted by an ancistor on Christman high—there was a wild admiration, an arresstible enthusiasm, among the spictatoms. "Once more!" they called out.

"I cannot oblige you," replied Master Tuphane. "The machinery is arranged to work only every 24 hours. If I uisturb the least thing, the whole is deranged, and I am too old to recommence such labors. Come back to-morrow."

On the next day the sightseers came

On the next day the sighteeers came in still greater numbers. Then the news spread and reached the country and the neighboring towns. Every day the tack shop was tilted with admirars who were untiring in applauding the masterpiece of severin liphaine.

But for some years Master Tiphaine had remained indifferent to the sincurest and the loudest praises. In the confused die of exclamations he listened only to the laugh of a child, a clear laugh, poyous and fresh as the chant of a mountain cascade, purer ant more melodious than the mysterious belist that sang in the clock. Among all she faces that bent toward him gaping with surprise Tiphain concared only the pink and white cheeks of Guillemins, a pretty little child of five years of age, his grandiaughter. Guillemins did not miss one of the midday representations. Master Tiphaine onstalled her in the tirst row; than he raised the curtain that protected his clock. From this moment all his attention was directed to his granddaughter. With a a much imputance as the child he counted the tickings, he awaited the prelimnary clicks. Immovable, in a state of sectany. Guillemins tixed her wide open at blue eyes on the clock. Click, click, f-r-r-roul. Guarings, aprings, cogwheels began to move with a mouse like the flasping of wings. Master Tiphaine read on Guillemine's face the emotions that pervaded it, and he fast a childish joy.

They accided to his request, made their excuses and withdrew. Master Tiphains ther entered a room with closed shufters, jit up by a few burning fagota. At the end of this room in an alcove, where the fantantic shadows, danced about, there was a white bed, and in that white bed quiet pale and deficate Guillemine was lying. OUR NICKEL MINES

May be Beveloped of English Capital-Dr.

Toronto, May 30 .- It is altogether probable that English capital will now be applied to the development of our nichel mines. Dr. Mohr, of London, England, who is at present in city, has come to Canada on a mission which may lead to great results in the future. He is associated with Dr. Ludwig Mond, of London, one the largest nickel-producers in the as well in cheap methods of producing nickel. The object with which Mr., Mohr came to Canada was to examine the nickel deposits in Denison Township and other parts of the Sudbury district upon which Dr. Mond and his businem partn rs hold options from the local owners, Prospecting work on the property has been for some time carried on by means of a dismond drill, and about 58 men are employed sinking shafts and exploring d posits. It is unnerstood that Dr. Mohr has been favorably impressed with the proparties, and that there is a probability that they will be taken over by the Mond company. In that case mining operations with be commenced within the next two mouths. The Mond company propose to export Bessemer matte, which contains 80 per cent. of metal, half nickel and half copper; whereas the Canadian Copper Co, which at present has the monopoly of Canadian nickel manufactures matte carrying 60 per cent. of metal, 40 per cent nickel and 20 per cent. copper. The company would export this matte to London, England, where it would be manufactured.

Effect of the Duty.

Effect of the Duty.

The imposition of an export duty, which is now in sgitstion, might perhaps put a stop to the whole acheme. It is shought by those enxious to secure comp tition in the development of our nickel industry, that in the event of a duty being imposed a perference should be given to British manufacturers if, indeed, the duty should not be entirely waived in this case. Nicket is so largely used in the building of vessels for the navy that such a proposal might be defended on patriotic grounds.

JAPAN THREATENS RESSEA.

London, May 30.—The Shanghai correspondent of The Mail says Japan is assuming a threatening attitude toward Russia and is sympathizing with Chima, while Chima is determined to resist Italy's seizing of Sambfun and any further German ancroachment at Shew Tung. The British squadron, it is said, will shortly assemble at Wei-Hai-Wei.

An Incident That Frevee Hew Deceptive Appearances Hay Be.

"During one of the Mardi Gras crushes in this city," said a man who frequently visits here, "I eccupied half of what was normally a suit of rooms at one of the hotels. The other section was secured by a married couple with a very young child. I never could understand why babies seem so tent on bringing their parents to hotels, and this paritular infant kept up an almost incoment walling, day and night, which was painfully audible through the folding doors that separated the apartments. On the evening of the second day I ran in to change my clothes for dinner, and, as usual, the youngster opposite began to how!. It was unpleasant, of course, but at the same time I was rather shocked to hear a man's voice growl out suddenly:

"Confound it, Mary, is there no way you can shut it up?

"No, there isn's? snapped the thin tones of a woman. If you think so, why, try it yourself?

"He it with something! Sit on it arclaimed the man savagely.

"I was wreetling with my collar at the time and pretty thoroughly occupied, but the fellow's brutality angered me through and through. I could read exhaustion in the voice of the wife, and there rose before my mind's eye a picture of a jaded, nerve racked woman, tired out by an alling child, and a burly brute of a man whe roared like a bull of Bashan whenever he happens to be slightly disturbed. In the interval that followed the baby oried louder than ever.

"Presently the man spoke up. 'By the sternal, I'll fix it!' he shouted furiously. 'Ginme that strap!'

"Goed heaveste? I said to myself. 'That's too unuch! I'll have to interfere? Snatching up my cost, I stepped into the hall. The outer door of the next room was open and I had a clear view of the interfere? Snatching up my cost, I stepped into the his shirt sleeves, red and puffing. He was trying to close a trunk."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Presching stories naturally predominate in the Rev. De. Newman Hall's "Autobiograph," but here is one of seoular out which is well worth quotation.

One day during Mr. Hall's pastorate of a church in Yorkshire he was chatting with a farmer about the best method of self defence when attacked by a savage dog.

"Take off your hat and hold it in front of you," advised the farmer. "The dog will at once bits the rim. Then kick violently under your hat, and, the distance bring exactly that of your leg, the toe of your boot will strike the lower jaw of the dog, who will at once go off in great pain."

There was no ratuge near. He had no stick. He remembered his lesson. Body Brevered.

On Tuesday evening about 7 o'clock Mr. Con. Wall discovered in the Little Lake, the body oof his little ann. Joe, who was drowned in the river three weeks ago. It rose to the surface about one hundred yards above the east out, of the railway bridge, which cromes the river just above the facks bridge. Mr. Wall has been indefatigable in his search ever since the drowning, and rowed around the lake, six or eight times each day. He was at the spot half an frour before the disboured the body and saw no rign of it, so it is supposed it rose at that point.

KREP THE PEOPLE IN TOWN.

Dear Sir,—What is the matter with the proplet of our town? They do not seem to get up any morte to keep the money in our town on public holidays. So far this year on all the holidays the majority of people have left town to enjoy themselves. Now, Mr. Editor, we have a good town and lots of good holel accommodation for any number that may come, and welwant to bring people into the town instead of letting them go savey to spend their money. We have good bands here, and I hope they for the firemen or some of the different collettes will take the mat are up at once and feit us have a celebration on the lat of July, that will be a credit to the town and also a standing advertisement. Thanking you for the papers, I remain, Yours Truly. To the Editor Morning Times,

FRANCE GREETS HER IDOL ON HIS HOME COMING.

The French Explorer who Bracked Fashods Receives a Bearty Welcome from his

Paris, June 1 .- The civil and milibary authorities and a big crowd of people went to the railroad station at Lyona at one o'clock this morning in rder to welcome Major Marchand, African explorer, on his return from Fashoda, which place he was compelied to evacuate owing to protests from England. The major was on his way to Paris from Touton, and a great concourse began assembling around the depot here of the Lyons-Paris railroad at an early hour to-day. 'Members of the League of Patriots arrived in wagamettes decorated with garlands and flags. A tremendous the arrival of the popular idul's train at 9.10 a.m. A' victoria was sent by the Minister of Marine, M. Lockroy, tol convey the major to the Ministry of Marine, where a lunch was given in his honter.

The carriages were literally covered with flowers and had a tri-colored flag at each curner, while the coschman's whip was tied with tri-colored ribbons. Major Marchand and the representative of the Minister of Marine, Lieut. Darrines, entered a vehicle, which, on emerging from the railroad station, was greated with storms of cheering. All present with the exception of the officers and non-commissioned offi-cers on the sidewalk, uncovered their heatis as the explorer passed. The military men saluted in military fash-

Delirous enthusiasm marked every step of Marchand's progress along the Hauvelard Dideret to the Henriquature bridge. On either step of the carriage stood a policeman, who kept the explorers's frantic admirers from entering the vahicle.

There was tractic enthusiasm along the enture route. The crowds, in spite tif the efforts of the police, broke into the procession, out of Marchand's carriage from the others and surrounded it, cheering and waving hats and sticks. Finally the procession arrived at the Place de la Cancorde at a walking pace and stopped in front of the Ministry of Marine, where Marchand entered.

[Wanted a Flag.,

The crited noticed that there was no flag hanging from the Ministry of Marine, and shouted for one, whereusen the occupants of a none oppusite threw a flag to the crowd. The police, however, seized it and prevented, the flag from being attached to the Ministry building after some hard acuffling. The Place ds la Concorde was black with people. Squads of municipal guards, mounted on foot, eventually cleared the Avenue de l'Opera and diverted all traffic from it. Marched at the Ministry of Marine, a number of generals and admirals being among the guests. The explorers will
